YALE DECISIVELY DEFEATS HARVARD CREWS ON THAMES

VARSITY WINS BY 7 LENGTHS

25,000 LINE THE COURSE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 23.—Three homespun American crews from Yale, rowing their brand-new American stroke and rowing it in a mighty manner, won all three races from Harvard today in the fifty-sixth annual regatta of the series between the two universities, while 25,000 persons lined the course.

It was a complete victory. From Bartlett's Cove, far up the river, to the span of the railroad bridge four miles further down, the Thames was swept clean of the Crimson enemy. Not a Harvard crew finished within five lengths of its rival from New Haven. There was not one that did not fall hopelessly behind after the half-way mark, while the exultant Elis pulled and pulled, sweeping that American stroke through as if they had been rowing it for years.

It was the first time in eight years that either of the two rivals had been able to make a clean sweep of the regatta. Perhaps that can be termed another triumph for the American school of rowing, in which Yale is the newest member; perhaps also it was a personal victory for Edward Leader, the home-bred coach from the State of Washington, who taught the Yale crews how to row.

A Great Triumph.

Coach Leader's masterpiece was his varsity crew, and it was the varsity which recorded Yale's greatest victory of the day and Harvard's most crushing defeat. The senior crew from Cambridge was beaten by seven lengths, the juniors by five and a half and the freshmen by six.

The time in the varsity event was much slower than the record, chiefly because a stiff breeze blew up the river against the crews. Struggling against this handicap Yale did well to cover the four miles in 20 minutes and 10 seconds, which is 3 minutes and 6 seconds slower than the course record. Harvard's time was 20 minutes and 35 seconds.

In the two-mile junior varsity race Yale, winning by five and a half lengths, was clocked in figures of 10:10 and Harvard in 10:32. The Eli freshmen, who rowed away as they pleased, did their two-mile stunt in 10:27 3-5 and Harvard needed 10:46 to traverse the same distance. This race Yale won by six lengths.

For Harvard it was a day of alternate hope and despair. In the early morning the Crimson had placed great reliance in its sturdy freshmen and junior varsity eights. When they were badly beaten hopes shifted to the varsity. Tonight, under a gloomy sky, Harvard scarcely knows where to look for consolation, unless it be in the remarkable courage, the grim and dogged grit that a badly beaten Cambridge eight showed down that "last long mile."

Harvard's Game Effort.

No synopsis of the race could overlook that last dying effort of a losing crew. Two years ago Harvard oarsmen did the same thing, trying desperately and in vain to overhaul a flying Yale crew. Then there was the stimulus of possible victory today there was nothing but the weary determination to do a task as they thought it ought to be done.

For the first two miles Harvard was a magnificent surprise. Just as the flags marking a mile and a half had slid past, the Crimson spurted and came up nearly to even terms. It was a great effort, and Yale looked worried as the crews came almost abreast. But as events turned out it was not only Harvard's first great effort, it was also her last.

Yale quickly recouped her losses and struck back. At the submarine base, a group of brick and concrete buildings huddled at the two-mile mark, the Elis answered the challenge. They drew away irresistibly. The observation train shot behind the buildings and then out into the open again, and the new vista presented to eager eyes was that of a smooth, easy rowing crew drawing away with the speed of a phantom.

A hundred feet down the course tugs, launches and submarine chasers hugged the shore. When the Yale varsity approached these it lurched ahead again, as if at a signal. It was opposite these craft at Uncas Spit that open water showed for the first time between the shells.

The open water became a boat's length long. It widened more and more, stretching out in the dusk like a silver thread. When the railroad bridge was near at hand Harvard's friends saw a new twist to that bromidic phrase which tells of the great open spaces.

"Miracle Man at Rowing."

From those same spaces came Ed Leader, who tonight is being hailed as the miracle man of rowing, the wizard from the West. This was his first year at Yale. Last season he coached the University of Washington and nearly defeated the Navy at Poughkeepsie. He came East to show Yale how to row in American style and fashion. The Elis were defeating Harvard, but nobody else, and they began to resent remarks that their great regatta with the Crimson was only for the championship of the East.

Leader came and threw overboard the English stroke, English rigging and

Radio-Called Students Fill Rail Strikers' Jobs in Olean

Special to The New York Times.

OLEAN, N. Y., June 22.—College students are working in the places of striking shop craftsmen in the Olean shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Fifty have just arrived and taken jobs, and there will be at least 200 in a short time, railroad officials say. The union men went out July 1 last.

The students are from Purdue University, Pennsylvania State and Ohio State universities and technical schools. They are studying engineering and came here for practical experience. The railroad has asked the colleges and universities by radio for men seeking work in the courses they are studying.

The students have taken rooms and board in private families and have not been molested.

'PUSSYFOOT' SAILS TO DRY UP DESERT

Moslems, Prohibitionists for Thousands of Years, Drinking Too Much, He Says.

U. S.? IT'S MUCH BETTER

Gov. Smith a Great Help to Cause, Declares the Noted Dry Law Advocate.

William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson sails today to convert Islam to prohibition and on his way to the Near East he plans to do a little bit of "sponge work" in South Africa, Egypt and Palestine.

Moslems and Americans, thinks Mr. Johnson, should join together to extend the arid area over the entire world.

True enough, as "Pussyfoot" admitted last night, Mussulmans have been taught prohibition as part of their religion for nearly 2,000 years, but the fact remains, everything and so forth to the contrary, that there are too many wet sheiks galloping around the deserts and a trifle too many dragomans imbibing in the shade of the bazaars tents.

"Pussyfoot," who is what the cruder element might call a "regular guy," arrived at the Hotel McAlpin last night with a flock of luggage and a topee. A topee is a fore-and-aft sun helmet, it should be explained, which "Pussyfoot" expects will prove handy when he comes to that 150-mile walk which is part of his itinerary.

Mr. Johnson has just completed a five-month tour of this country, gathering statistical ammunition on prohibition to be fired off abroad. He admitted that a number of prohibition missionaries have been and are taking post-graduate courses in this country, getting statistics to be used as arguments in other lands. They extract this to be able to nonplus the belief abroad that prohibition here has not been a success.

"And prohibition here is a success," said "Pussyfoot," gazing out the window of his room on the twelfth floor. "I'll admit that things are rotten in spots, but they are a darned sight better than they were. Prohibition sentiment is spreading all the time, no matter what the liquor interests may shout.

Five Drunks in Five Months.

"Why, in my entire five months traveling I saw only five drunks. Two of them were in California, one in New York and two at Wilkes-Barre. Out in Chicago prohibition is gaining. Why, before the dry law went into effect they had 7,500 saloons out there, and when I was in the city recently a reporter told me there were 1,000 places where one could get a drink. He thought he was giving me an argument on how bad a failure prohibition was. Well, in the old days there were more than 1,000 places where you could get good stuff, and now there's only 1,000 places that ease you toward the undertaker.

"I'd say that the driest place in the United States today is the Middle West. I guess that New York and Maryland are the wettest. Pennsylvania was pretty wet for a long time, but lately it's getting dried up. It will soon be as dry as the Central West. They are going after the wets in Pennsylvania rather thoroughly.

"New York, of course, backslid on the Mullan-Gage repeal, but I'm not kicking about New York. Governor Smith has done a very good thing headless he has put the vet and dry issue squarely up for decision. This thing would have to be fought out for a showdown some

SEALED LIQUOR ON TWO BRITISH LINERS TO BE SEIZED TODAY

REGARDED AS TEST CASE

Ships' Officers Told They Will Be Treated With Dignity, Not as Bootleggers.

ARE SURPRISED AT DELAY

Cunard Captain Held Ship at Quarantine Expecting Removal of Wet Cargo.

The Cunarder Berengaria and the White Star liner Baltic arrived here yesterday with full supplies of liquor under the seal of the British customs for use on the outward voyage. The ships' officers were informed that the liquor would be seized and removed early this morning in accordance with the orders of the Treasury Department.

The manifest of the Baltic was entered at the Custom House at Bowling Green by Captain John Roberts, the master, at 11:30 A. M., with the liquor listed on the back of the document as supplus stores under seal. Captain W. I. R. D. Irvine, R. N. R., of the Berengaria did not reach the Custom House until late in the afternoon, as he had to go with Purser Stanley Beynon and Surgeon J. H. Doherty to 25 Broadway to attend a conference with Sir Ashley Sparks, the Director of the Cunard Line in the United States.

When the British steamships arrived at their piers the captains and pursers were informed that the liquors brought in the ships would be seized, is at was a violation of the decision made by the United States Supreme Court. The officials added that it was quite understood by the Treasury Department in Washington that this was a test case and that the officers of the ships would be treated in a dignified manner and not as if they were bootleggers or pirates.

After standing by all day to be ready to check over the wet stores after the seals had been broken without any official appearing from the Customs Department, the barkeepers were told at 5 o'clock last night by inspectors on duty at the pier that the liquors on the Baltic would be seized at 9 o'clock today and those on the Berengaria a little later, as the manifest of the latter ship had arrived at the Custom House too late for examination.

Issues Order for Seizure.

Upon receiving information from the Collector of the Port that there was a quantity of liquor in excess of the proper supply for medicinal purposes aboard the Baltic, Federal Prohibition Director Fairfax Cantield instructed Chief of Visional Chief R. G. Merrick to detail sufficient men to remove the liquor from the vessel this morning at 9 o'clock. Under the Treasury ruling it becomes the duty of the Collector of the Port to seize the liquor and turn it over to the local Prohibition Director. It will be removed from the White Star pier, at the foot of West Eighteenth Street, to the Knickerbocker warehouse, at First Street and the Bowery, where the liquor will remain until the matter has been decided.

The Baltic was scheduled on the other side to be the first British steamship to arrive in New York with wet stores under seal, as she was the first to leave a British port after the decision had been made by the various steamship lines to make a test. The liner left Liverpool on June 9 and had to put back through striking a piece of submerged rock in Queenstown harbor. All her wet stores were taken off and she went into the graving dock to have the damage repaired that had been done to her plates.

Large Supply of Liquor.

Shortly before the liner left the river Mersey late on June 12 the White Star Line officials sent on board 2,736 bottles of ale, stout and lager, 265 bottles of spirits, 119 bottles of wines and 26 bottles of liquors, and had it sealed by the customs officials at Liverpool. There were four large red seals on white tape bearing the imprint of the British crown and the words "Customs, Liverpool." The liquor was stored in a battened room and the bottles could hardly be seen from the deck outside, but could not be reached.

In addition the Baltic has seventy and

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—What is interpreted in some quarters in Washington as the first sign of foreign retaliation against the American Government's attempt to prevent the transportation of intoxicating beverages within the three-mile limit came out tonight when it became known that the Canadian Government has refused to interfere with vessels leaving with liquor destined for the United States.

The American Government in March called the attention of the Canadian Government to the difficulties experienced in enforcement of the Volstead act along the northern frontier through clearance of motor boats with liquor cargoes bound for the United States. As it is illegal to import liquor into the United States, Secretary Hughes suggested that the Canadian authorities might be disposed to refuse clearance papers to vessels with liquor bound for this country.

Through Ambassador Geddes, the Government of Canada has now notified Secretary Hughes that as the exportation of liquor from Canada is not prohibited, it cannot refuse clearance papers to vessels bound for the United States merely because the carry of liquor is prohibited at the port of destination.

There is a disposition here tonight to link the decision of the Dominion Government with the action of the various British lines in evolving liquor routes and customs ports, to this country for the homeward voyages of such steamers.

The question is being asked by some: Do not the British Government and the other British Dominions also intend to decline to interfere with the clearance of ships from British ports carrying liquor, even when bound for the United States, when there is no British law against the exportation of liquor? In view of the Canadian Government's decision there is every disposition to assume that retaliation is being begun against the inconvenience which the application of the Volstead act, under the Supreme Court ruling, is causing British subjects.

The decision of the Canadian Government, although delivered to Secretary Hughes three days ago, was not made known until this evening.

Leviathan Sets New Speed Record for Liners, Steaming 5 Hours at Rate of 28.04 Knots

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD S. S. LEVIATHAN, June 22.—The Leviathan today established a world speed record for the competition of international shipping, when, headed homeward for New York on her trial cruise, the liner ran for five hours at 28.04 knots an hour.

Officials on board were confident the liner would exceed even this record some time in the rest of the twenty-four hour maximum speed test. Announcement of the record was made to the passengers at luncheon and evoked a noisy demonstration. Chairman Lasker and Shipping Board officials were toasted (dry) by the members of the party and members of Congress aboard were enthusiastic in their expressions regarding the attainment of marine speed supremacy by America.

The previous speed record was held by the Mauretania—27.47 knots an hour for several hours. The Leviathan's day run up to noon prior to the test was 690 nautical miles at an average of 24.58 knots. The ship was steady and free from vibration, although experts say unfavorable conditions obtained in the Gulf Stream. Officials assert that the temperature of the sea, 86 degrees, interfered with efficient steam condensation.

Conditions are better in the North Atlantic, it is maintained. The usual test of the British liners in the English Channel, it is contended, is aided by a six-knot current as compared to a four-knot current in the Gulf Stream to aid the Leviathan.

The tanker Gargoyle, sighted at noon, was the first vessel to fly tribute to the record holder, dipping its flag and saluting with its whistle.

A new wireless record has been established aboard the Leviathan also, according to David Saranoff, Vice President of the Radio Corporation of America. More messages are transmitted and received daily than from the United States to any the European country. Fifteen thousand words are received or transmitted daily. The Rocky Point station, handling the European circuit, is devoting itself exclusively to transmitting service for the Leviathan.

ABOARD THE STEAMSHIP LEVIATHAN, June 22 (Associated Press).—The Leviathan speed record was made after passing Jupiter Light off the Florida coast. Officials aboard declared the liners engines had behaved perfectly under the test. The Leviathan headed toward New York after a night passage through Providence Channel, Bahamas, and is expected to dock at New York Sunday, after some trial manoeuvres in Ambrose Channel. She will make her first transatlantic start as an American passenger vessel on July 4.

SOFT COAL INDUSTRY SEEKS AN OVERLORD

Henry L. Stimson May Be Selected by the National Association.

EMERGENCY PLAN OFFERED

Machinery to Place Entire Bituminous Industry in Hands of Government in Wartime.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 22.—The soft coal industry of the United States is looking for a Will H. Hays or a Judge Landis. This was the interpretation placed on the action of the National Coal Association when at the concluding session of the sixth annual convention at the Traymore today it instructed the Board of Directors to employ a "full-time" executive at the earliest practical date.

Officials of the association said that no selection had yet been made for the place, although there was a rumor that the job would be offered to former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, counsel for the bituminous special committee appointed to co-operate with the United States Coal Commission. Mr. Stimson spoke before the convention at yesterday's session, advocating the adoption of arbitration as the definite policy of the coal operators.

The newly elected President, John C. Brydon of Somerset, Pa., said that the industry was so vitally important and was so widely scattered, with varying conditions in every locality, that the association needed an executive who would be influenced neither by his own business interests nor by section considerations. He said that "when such a man was found" who could devote his own time to the work he would gladly surrender all executive authority which had been vested in him.

Emergency Plan Submitted.

In his inaugural address President Brydon outlined a plan, which was immediately endorsed by the convention, whereby machinery should be set up to be instantly available in war or peace time emergencies, whereby the entire soft coal industry of the country would be placed at the disposal of the government.

The plan included appointment by the industry of regional district and subdistrict key men, to serve as a volunteer fuel administration at need, co-operating with the War and Navy Departments in case of war and the Interior and Commerce Departments in peace emergencies. Only an enabling act at the time of the crisis would be needed, the speaker said, to swing the machinery into functioning.

The plan would include the personnel, so that when an emergency arises they may go individually and collectively to their prearranged posts and begin to function. The plan is to be so comprehensive that it would not only apply to the central organization at Government headquarters but to the remotest coal producing districts in the United States.

Colonel Guy D. Goff, former General Counsel to the Shipping Board, and until recently Assistant Attorney General, attacked Socialism and Communism in the country, attacking particularly the "one big union" idea.

Governor Eph W. Morgan of West Virginia, who has been a guest at the convention, spoke briefly at the final session.

"Most of the trouble between operators and miners in West Virginia comes from inspiration furnished at Indianapolis," he said. Governor Morgan declared that the State had been "investigated" by many who had colored the facts and given the people of the country an unfavorable impression of West Virginia.

Harding Bespeaks Public Interest.

The following letter from President Harding to John Hays Hammond, head of the United States Coal Commission, was read:

Washington, June 18.

My dear Colonel Hammond: In acknowledging your brief statement of the progress of the work of the Coal Commission, I wish to express again the high value I put upon the work you are doing.

Though this is the season of the year when both temperature and vacation habits may tempt the average

LACK OF CASH HALTS ALL MAIL TO EUROPE

HUGE TIE-UP INEVITABLE

Enormous Increase of Mail Exhausts Appropriations of Congress.

No parcel post packages will leave New York for European countries during the whole of next week, and even first-class mail will be discontinued from June 28 until July 1, Thomas C. Walters, Superintendent of Outgoing Foreign Mail at the Varick Street Station, asserted yesterday as he received these instructions from the Post Office Department in Washington. Postmaster Edward M. Morgan asserted he had received the information of the proposed embargo during the week, but did not make it public because he did not get the authority from Washington.

Superintendent Walters estimated the number of parcel post packages that would be held up at approximately 50,000, and asserted that the average weekly total of first-class mail for Europe is 1,000,000 pieces. At this rate, Mr. Walters figured that about 500,000 first-class letters would be delayed three or four days at the Varick Street station before being placed on ships.

Lack of Funds the Cause.

The reason for this measure, said Mr. Walters, is the lack of funds in the Post Office Department. The new postal appropriation, he said, being July 1, when European mail service will again be inaugurated.

"With the exception of parcel post packages, the only outgoing European mail that will be sent after next Wednesday is that upon which a specific ship to carry it is mentioned," said Mr. Walters. "A number of business houses, for instance, make plain on their letters or packages that they want them to go over on a certain boat. In every instance we expect to comply with their request. However, any first, second, third or fourth class mail or packages that are mailed undesignated will have to wait until July 1 or later."

The heaviest first-class mail at the present time, is consigned to England. Next in line comes the mail for Italy. France and Germany are about even, he said, and then come Poland, Russia and the smaller countries of Europa.

While there will be disappointments, Mr. Walters asserted that the parcel post situation will not be very serious. If these packages were sent by freight, he pointed out, the delay would surely be longer than one week. Parcel post mail at this season of the year, is not very large, owing partly to warm weather.

"Just before Christmas," he said, we might send packages at the rate of 50,000 a day to European countries. Now I doubt if the total mail during an entire week is any more than that. The greater portion of our foreign packages are sent to England and Germany. Germany, since the war, has become most popular from our standpoint because so many people on this side have been sending whole crates of food and clothing to their relatives in that country. I should say that 90 per cent. of the German packages contain clothing. If these are held up one week I don't believe very much harm will be done, despite the reports of distressing conditions over there."

The first ship to carry parcel post mail after the embargo is removed will be the Leviathan, which is scheduled to sail July 4. The Leviathan will sail July 4. It will be a simple matter for these two ships to take all the mail which might accumulate during the week, Mr. Walters said.

Enormous Increase in Mail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—American mail destined for foreign countries has increased so tremendously and so unexpectedly in volume within the fiscal year now ending, that the Post Office Department finds its $6,000,000 appropriation for that purpose practically exhausted.

The hiatus in the movement of foreign mail which will be caused by this condition next week is doubtless due to an

FIVE-POWER TREATY FOR NEW WAR RULES GOING TO THE SENATE

COMMISSION DRAFT READY

Senate Will Receive It for Formal Action Early in the Coming Session.

AIR BOMBING RESTRICTED

Terrorizing Civilians Is Forbidden—Use of Radio on the Seas Is Defined.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Harding will submit to the Senate another important treaty when that body meets again in Washington. It will take the form of a five-power convention by the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy for a new code of international law with respect to the use of two of the newest and most vital agencies in warfare—aircraft and radio.

The proposed treaty is an outgrowth of the arms conference which met in Washington in the Winter of 1921-1922. Unable to agree upon any convention at that time for the limitation of aircraft construction, the delegates to the conference adopted a resolution calling for an international commission of jurists to consider changes in the rules of international law in view of the development of new agencies of warfare. Under that resolution it was agreed that the commission should consist of representatives of the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy, the same nations which signed the five-power naval compact, which has been ratified by every signatory except France.

The commission was appointed last September, held its first session at The Hague December 15, and has come to a complete agreement upon a convention containing rules for the government of wireless and aircraft in war time. The agreement is not binding in its present form upon the United States or the other nations whose representatives at The Hague have signed it. But it was framed by a group of eminent authorities on international law who had the advantage of expert military and naval assistance, and is regarded as embodying the best thought of the technicians of the five principal powers regarding the uses to which radio and aircraft may be put in war.

Dr. John Bassett Moore, the American member of the new World Court which President Harding wishes the United States to join, was appointed by the President to serve as the American member of the Commission of Jurists which framed the new code of war rules. He was the Chairman of the commission. Rear Admiral William L. Rodgers, who was a member of the President's Advisory Committee at the arms conference, attended The Hague sessions as the technical adviser of Judge Moore.

Provisions of the Treaty.

The text of the treaty has not been officially made public by the Washington or other interested Governments. Secretary Hughes has been arranging with officials at London, Paris, Rome and Tokio for simultaneous publication of the new convention about June 25. Although the convention has not been given out officially, its text became available to THE NEW YORK TIMES tonight and discloses the character, range and importance of the new arrangement.

Part 1 of the treaty dealing with the use of radio provides that "in time of war the working of radio stations shall continue to be organized as far as possible in such manner as not to disturb the services of other radio stations," but this provision does not apply as between radio stations of opposing belligerents. Belligerent and neutral powers are to regulate or prohibit the operation of radio stations within their jurisdiction.

The erection or operation by a belligerent or its agents or radio stations within neutral jurisdiction would constitute a violation of neutrality on the part of such belligerent as well as on the part of the neutral power which permits the erection or operation of such stations. A neutral power would not be called on, however, to restrict or prohibit the use of radio stations located within its jurisdiction except so far as may be necessary to prevent the transmission of information destined for a belligerent concerning military forces or military operation, as prescribed in Article 5 of the new treaty.

Under this article, belligerent mobile units are bound within the jurisdiction

HARDING COURT SHIFT IS COOLLY RECEIVED

MIDDLE WEST INDIFFERENT

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22.—While it is too early to ascertain what the general reaction has been to President Harding's World Court proposals announced in the speech he delivered in the Coliseum at St. Louis last night, the impression has been created here that there is considerable disappointment among advocates of American participation in the World Court over the course of the President in advocating new and important reservations to the resolution for participation which will be laid before the Senate for its sanction.

The attitude of the President's audience in St. Louis last night while courteous and inclined to be friendly to his personality created the impression that the bulk of it was not in sympathy with his espousal of American membership in the Tribunal of International Justice set up by the League of Nations at The Hague, even with the qualifying reservations suggested by Mr. Harding, according to observers in St. Louis and Kansas City, sentiment in Missouri in regard to the World Court is more indifferent than active, but with a considerable portion of the State's population inclined to be suspicious of any organization which is connected with the League of Nations.

Inquiry in Kansas City today indicated that there was little interest in the proposal here and in the western part of the State. The people, it was said, are more concerned over their local affairs than in any national question. The matter of railroad rates, freight rates and railway transportation generally, and have no real interest in any international question. For this reason, it is claimed, the President's announced recommendation to the Senate that it consent to American participation in the World Court if an arrangement can be reached by which the court will be divorced from any direct connection with the League of Nations as an organization, has not yet any feeling either for or against his plan.

The Kansas City Star prints this editorial, a symposium of newspaper comment on President Harding's new proposal, which is summarized by The Star in the following quotations from the editorial columns of newspaper comment:

Comment on President Harding's speech on the World Court in St. Louis last night expressed the belief that the President has weakened his own position by consenting to reservations from the irreconcilable group, and has not gained ground in the direction of beating a party breach threatened by the issue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Official Washington read with interest today the President's St. Louis speech, but there was very little comment. Senator McKinley of Illinois, one of the few Senators now in Washington, said he thought the President's proposition for a self-perpetuating World Court was a fine one, and that it would meet the approval of the country. On the other hand, Senator Caraway, the Democrat, characterized the proposal as a ridiculous one, and one which in his opinion will never be approved by the Senate.

"We must assert our moral influence for the betterment of suffering Europe," said Senator McKinley. "The President in his St. Louis speech says all I think, pointed the way."

This statement seconded by the President in St. Louis last night, that the United States would not enter the League of Nations battle for war as at different times on all three sides of the question. As for the self-perpetuating court, I apparently found a way to get us in the court, and for the time the six or seven years that it has been in existence we shall never have anything to say about who represents us on that court. The Senate will never adopt any such reservation as that.

Harding Gets Sunburned in Kansas City; Ice Applied to Lips to Enable Him to Speak

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22.—President Harding was exposed to the rays of the sun to every appearance yesterday when he made a speech at the rear end of his special train at 11 Sourwood across Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Arriving at St. Louis at 4 o'clock yesterday on a day of torrid heat, he was another bit of sun. In his presidential progress through and around Kansas City this afternoon the sun beat down on the President's face and head and when he got to the hotel he was suffering so severely from a blistered lip that Dr. Sawyer ordered compresses of ice for

Mr. Harding had intended to play golf after luncheon at the Blue Hills Golf Club and to go later to the Red Bird Country Club at Swope Park. He was scheduled also to visit Sun and Chanute soldiers of the World War at the Hospital of the Veterans Bureau. He was to ask his hosts to accept his invitation to attend the Text of President's Speech On Railroads at Kansas City

Mr. Chairman:

Stopping as I am en route across the continent to visit, in an official way, the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska, I stand before you to-night as President and, if possible, as a loyal citizen of the United States. Since the Government is a little closer to the people than the States, those of us who have the honor to represent the Federal Government have a little the better opportunity to know the people of the States. Here in their Governmental capacity, it has been something of a problem to select subjects for local discussion and take cognizance of the various interests which are peculiar to the States. At the same time, I am sure that the proper setting in the midst of any people is the atmosphere which is best known to them, and which is available to us Americans. I do not mean that there are any commonwealths under which the Federal Government may not act, but I mean that the best way to understand the people is to know their environment, their ideals, their aspirations, their problems, their hopes and their fears.

The siege coach, the wagon train of the Midland trail, the prairie schooner of that day and the sand-boat were the last word in luxury on many waters. The great Missouri Valley was then unrevealed, and only awakening transportation was the revealing agency. In the infinite bounty of its resources, it available to us Americans do not mean that there are any commonwealths under which the Federal Government may not act, but I mean that the best way to understand the people is to know their environment, their ideals, their aspirations, their problems, their hopes and their fears.

I have returned to the previously recited instance because it so perfectly illustrates the whole situation which the country must meet in dealing with its railroad problem. Events which in the last few years have come to us as a surprise were sent out of mind by the same fine spirit of optimism which has always characterized the people of the West. Possibilities of the West were bestowed, but they availed little until the whistle of the steam locomotive proclaimed its westward march with the Star of Empire.

Mistakes in Building Roads.

It is a curious trait of human nature that we acclaimed railroads in the building and then turned to hamper them in the operation. Missouri and Kansas were doubtless like Ohio. We gave from our purses to contribute to needed building funds; we donated vast areas for right of way, we witnessed financial exploitation with little protest because of our eagerness to acquire, and acclaimed the acquisition. Marvelous development attended the railroad, and the precautious which would have avoided many present-day difficulties.

Everybody knows how necessary transportation is in this modern world of ours, and how essential it is to quick exchanges. Everybody knows that our very social scheme, as now organized, is dependent on the maintenance of adequate transportation media. Everybody knows, and we have latterly come to wonder if it might not be possible even that we have committed our welfare and prosperity too largely to the assumption that it would always be possible to provide all the transportation that the community might desire, at costs which would not be prohibitive. That we have even staked our very existence on the daily continuity of transportation.

Future of Transport the Question.

There is a new, and I think increasing, school of thought on this subject. Its adherents are beginning to ask whether, in the long run, it would not be better to attempt making local communities more nearly self-dependent by diversifying their means of production, and thus reducing the amount of transportation and exchange of products over long distances. Even such a course would be a reversion to the old order, which no modern community willingly would accept, back to the farm self-contained, back to the restricted community with its attendant burdening of the half-bushel measure.

Of one thing we may be reasonably assured, and that is that since railroads first began to be built in the world there never was a time when so many people in so many communities were frankly and intelligently questioning the future as regards its instrumentalities of transport. They are asking very frankly and pointedly whether railroads enough in the next few generations to supply them, along with other agencies, with the transportation they will require. I doubt if there is a country in the world in which railroads have come to be a considerable transportation factor which has not some sort of a railroad crisis on its hands right now. There are some countries which merely need more railroads and more rolling stock, almost any price to get them, just as we would have done a generation or two generations ago.

There are others which have more railroads than current traffic and a distributing of rates make profitable, so that they have been made, in some fashion or other, a burden on other industry, or the public treasury. There are still others which have excellent railroad systems, but are confronted with all of these difficulties. In which of our territory we need more railroad facilities, and sometime future, or supply them in the near future, is Alaska. Alaska is another country that the indirect losses in industry and commerce due to insufficient transportation run into figures equal to the burdens of Federal taxation.

The great transportation problem which is now before Congress is the outgrowth of that day of construction. It is a problem to which neither haste nor prejudice should contribute. It is a problem which, though apparently with us for years, is entitled to progress only as it is difficult to secure a wise and just solution. It will affect a diminution in rates without making a net return impossible. It will make sound finance possible for expansion. A relief in the program of consolidating the railroads into a small number of systems, the whole to be under rigorous Government supervision, and the larger systems to be so constituted that the weaker and unprofitable lines would be able to lean upon the prosperous lines, and all carry a just and profitable return until the growth of the country makes them all carry a just return upon capital invested. Transportation has not been known in the summer time of prosperity, and it is contemplated this kind of consolidation. But made it permissive rather than mandatory. In effect it gives to the railroad transportation subject to the supervision set up by the Interstate Commerce Commission the advantage of the system groupings of the roads.

That provision was adopted only after long and detailed consideration by the best wisdom and experience the country possessed. The practical judgment of leaders in both political parties, in the railroad world and in all those activities interested or involved in so enormous a transportation as that was reasonably certain that the legislation passed that it was reasonably somewhat approximately adequate. Whether it is adequate, whether the wisdom of a whole Congress, acting as National Transportation and Chairmen of Boards, and as financial backers of these great properties, could equal to the task of establishing a system of regulation which would represent fair treatment of all the interests involved, including those of the public.

Duty Now in Congress.

There now appears to be no difficulty about any constitutional inhibition to the voluntary consolidation as authorized by Congress. But the question of reconciling the interests of the hundreds of different ownerships and managements of lines to be merged into systems has proven a task for which no solution has been found.

It is therefore being seriously proposed that the next step be to give the Interstate Commerce Commission power to consolidate, as it sees fit, the railroads into a few systems. It is my conviction that the time for such action has not arrived. It is my conviction that the time for such action has not arrived. It is my conviction that the time for such action has not arrived

ETNA LESS VIOLENT; EARTHQUAKES CEASE

Lava Flow Is Gradually Slowing Down—Refugees Suffer From a Cold Wave.

Ambassador Child Visits Linguaglossa—King Returns to Rome Hopeful.

CATANIA, June 22.—Though Mount Etna continues in eruption, there was a distinct improvement in the situation today as compared to yesterday. There are signs that the eruption is subsiding, though occasional vicious roars and especially violent spurts of flame issue from the craters.

The pillar of flame, which can still be seen for miles around, seems to have lost a large measure of its luminous intensity. The earthquake shocks have ceased almost entirely and internal rumblings, which are among the most terrifying phenomena of the eruption, are not so loud. The sharp explosions which had been almost continuous during the last few days are fewer.

The lava advances more slowly, destroying whatever it touches. During the day it crept closer toward Linguaglossa, so that the situation in that town, despite the improved general conditions, is still critical. The fierce heat has dried up the wooden rafters and split roofs. All lead piping has buckled. Most of the houses are in very insecure positions. Engineers, helped by police and Fascisti, are engaged in propping up those which appear to be in imminent danger.

Castiglione's Danger Abates.

The situation at Castiglione, the other most threatened town, remains unaltered. The stream of lava which engulfed the railroad station there, and which, it seemed, would swoop down the mountainside on the town, has made small headway. It is now so cooled that it advances at small speed. One has to watch it very closely to perceive that it is moving at all.

Either owing to Etna's decreased activity or because the wind has changed, the clouds of ashes are less thick and the billowing sea of smoke which recently covered the lava has disappeared in large part. It is therefore possible for the first time to get a clear view of the surface of lava in the daytime. It is now almost black in color. Vibrating with the fierce heat, it looks as if titanic wagonloads of soft asphalt had been dumped. The surface roughly follows the configuration of the ground.

The lava has not filled up the valleys, but slips down one side of a hill and up another. On its outer flange huge chunks of hardened rock occasionally detach themselves, giving the startled beholders a glimpse of the white-hot interior.

Crazed Woman Rushes to Death.

While cordons of Fascisti national militia were holding back an eager crowd which was watching the lava approaching an isolated house, a woman elbowed her way through them and, before any one could prevent her, started running toward the house, her hair streaming behind her, waving her arms as if demented and shouting incoherent words. She entered the house and disappeared from view. Anxious moments passed and she did not reappear, while the lava crept ever closer.

Finally a Fascista broke the tension by wrapping a scarf over his mouth to protect himself from the fumes and making a dash for the house. As he did not reappear, two Fascisti, as if by common consent, though not a word was spoken, fought their way to the door. A few seconds later they reappeared tottering under the weight of the dead bodies of the woman and their companion. A dozen willing helpers sprang to their rescue and drew them all to safety.

Apparently the woman had become crazed at the sight of her house being destroyed. Both she and the first Fascista had succumbed to the fumes and the intense heat.

Mr. Child Visits Linguaglossa.

Richard Washburn Child, the American Ambassador, arrived in Catania this morning aboard the cruiser Pittsburgh to convey the sympathy of the American people to the sufferers in their time of trial. He was accompanied by the Counselor of the Embassy, Franklin Gunther, and by a naval attaché.

From Catania Harbor he proceeded in a motor car to Linguaglossa, where he was met by the Vice President and the Bishop of Catania and by all the notabilities of the town, who greeted him. The Ambassador and his party found that a wall of lava twenty feet high had already invaded some outlying sheds and barns and was near some large isolated homes which mark the extreme limit of Linguaglossa. Lifting his eyes up the steep mountain slope, he was able to trace the broad river of black almost to its origin and to form a good idea of the vastness of the destruction.

Then circling the edge of the lava field, he witnessed several poor peasants making desperate efforts to remove a few things of value from their houses. He was especially touched by two old women tottering under a load of tiles which they had removed from their roof. Their house was only a score of yards from the lava and would be soon reached.

After conveying expressions of sympathy to the Linguaglossa officials who accompanied him, Ambassador Child returned to Catania and again embarked on the Pittsburgh for Rome.

Experts say that a number of houses in Linguaglossa are almost sure to be destroyed because the lava is bound to flow some distance before it solidifies completely, even if Etna ceases immediately. They say there is no foretelling what lava may or may not do.

Damage 100,000,000 Lire.

CATANIA, June 22 (Associated Press).—A relatively small number of fresh craters at Mount Etna, about twenty in number, opened last night, indicating that the pressure within the mountain was less.

The latest estimates place the damage at more than 100,000,000 lire, exclusive of the injury to crops caused by the showers of ashes and cinders.

The refugees are hard hit by the cold wave which is sweeping the country. Warm clothing, part of the remaining war stock, is being sent here by the Italian Red Cross for the fugitives from the stricken zone.

It was announced this afternoon that Dr. Ponti, an authority on volcanoes, Professor Gaetano Platania, Director of the Mount Etna Observatory, and Professor Malladra, Director of the Royal Observatory at Mount Vesuvius, have collected sufficient data to lead them to believe that all danger from the present eruption will end by next week.

King Finds the Situation Better.

ROME, June 22 (Associated Press).—King Victor Emmanuel returned to Rome today from the scene of the devastation in Sicily with a hopeful view of the situation. He expressed the belief that the Etna disaster was taking a less serious turn than had been feared.

The King praised the patience and endurance of the inhabitants of the affected area, many of whom were already longing to return to their homes and begin efforts to repair the damage from the eruption. He said that he was touched by the spontaneous evidences of sympathy from America, represented by Ambassador Child, whose impulse to get personally into touch with the misfortune would never be forgotten.

The situation growing out of the eruption of Etna, "though grave, fortunately does not take the form of a catastrophe," says the semi-official Stefani News Agency today in scoring some of the Italian newspapers which, it declares, "publish exaggerated accounts and even faked photographs of the eruption."

Pope Pius has sent 25,000 lire more to the Bishop of Acireale for relief work.

Yellow Smoke in the Alps.

GENEVA, June 22 (Associated Press).—Yellow dust, which is believed to have been carried by the wind from Mount Etna, is falling around Monte Rosa, in the Alps, on the Swiss-Italian frontier.

The same phenomenon was observed during the last big eruption of Mount Vesuvius.

WOMAN TRIES SUICIDE IN FLAT OF H. G. WELLS

Mrs. Gattenig, Austrian Translator of His Works, Cuts Throat —Likely to Recover.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—The Evening Star last night printed an account of an extraordinary incident that occurred Wednesday evening in the flat occupied by H. G. Wells, the novelist, in Whitehall Court, Westminster.

Mr. Wells was dressing for dinner at about 7.30 o'clock, when a woman called, asked to see him and was shown into his study to wait till he had completed his change of costume.

When Mr. Wells entered the study his visitor, who was greatly excited, told him she was going to commit suicide. He tried to calm her and left her sitting in a chair while he went downstairs to request the porter of the flats to communicate with the police.

On his return to his study Mr. Wells was horrified to see his visitor walking around the room with blood flowing from a terrible wound in her throat. It had been inflicted with a razor, which she still held in her right hand.

Mr. Wells at once went toward her, but before he could reach her she collapsed on the floor. Assistance was summoned, and it was then discovered that the injured woman was wearing only a nightdress under her long coat. She was removed in an ambulance to a hospital, and it is expected that she will recover.

At the hospital a letter was found in her possession which, according to The Star, made "strange statements."

The Star added that before going to Mr. Wells's flat, the woman visited the apartments of a well-known woman novelist in Kensington and there acted in a strange manner.

Mr. Wells, in conversation with a newspaper representative, said he did not feel called upon to make public the details of the occurrence.

"An extraordinary report has gained currency of something which occurred in a private house," he said. "Something of the kind did happen, but the facts as reported are incorrect and exaggerated. I do not want the thing talked about, and the less I hear about it the better. I am not going to add to the snowball at all."

Great reticence concerning the affair was observed by the police and also at the institutions where the woman was treated. Scotland Yard refused to make any statement and officials at both Charing Cross Hospital and Westminster Infirmary decline to speak about the case. The woman was first taken to Charing Cross Hospital and thence to Westminster Infirmary, where she is still under the care of physicians.

The morning papers give the name of the woman as Mrs. Hedwig Verena Gatternigg and she is described as an attractive and pretty young woman, small, with petite features, dark hair and big brown eyes with long curling lashes. She is a clever and witty conversationalist and speaks English perfectly. Her age is about 28. She is the wife of an Austrian naval officer and the daughter of a professor in Vienna.

She came to England to earn her living when economic conditions made life impossible for her in Austria, and had been working in London for a Vienna newspaper. It is stated that recently her brother died and this very much affected her. A woman acquaintance said Mrs. Gatternigg had not seen Wells at his flat before Wednesday, but that he had granted a business interview to her at his publisher's office, as she was anxious to translate some of his works into German.

ISMET TELLS ALLIES TO HASTEN ACTION

Warns Them That Turks Cannot Wait Much Longer for Signing of Treaty.

LAUSANNE, June 22.—Ismet Pasha tonight called on the chiefs of the British, Italian and French delegations to the conference, and, issued to them the same ultimatum that their Governments were planning for him. He informed the delegates that he could not remain in Lausanne more than a few days longer if action looking to the signing of a peace treaty was not started, and further stated that the three big questions of the Ottoman debt, concessions in Turkey and the evacuation of Constantinople must be settled before other details were taken up.

Later a Turkish delegate told the correspondents that the reports of Turkish concentration of troops on the Syrian border were untrue. If there was any concentration there, he declared, it was being carried out by General Weygand.

It is known here that most of the money appropriated by the Angora Assembly for the conference has been used up. The appropriation was 2,500,000 gold francs. Less than a million of this remains unspent.

PARIS, June 22.—England and France, after the British Ambassador's conversation with Premier Poincaré tonight, are said to have agreed, in conjunction with the lesser powers, to issue an ultimatum to the Turks.

According to The Matin, the two powers favor sending the Turks immediately their projects for the text of all the clauses of the treaty still in suspense and demanding that they be acted upon immediately. The Matin adds:

"The desire of the Turks to see Constantinople and Gallipoli evacuated at the earliest possible moment gives the Allies means of forcing their move and of recompensing their good will if they should finally show proof of any."

FRENCH LOSSES IN MOROCCO

War Minister Says Those Inflicted by Rebels Are "Appreciable."

PARIS, June 22 (Associated Press).—French troops have "suffered appreciable losses" in their present campaign to conquer Moorish rebel tribes in the Atlas Mountains. M. Maginot, the War Minister, made this admission in the course of the Senate's discussion of the war budget today. He agreed to give the exact casualty figures to the Army Commission.

The Minister's statement was drawn by a question from Senator Victor Bérard, who asked whether it was true that the casualties suffered by the French Army of 25,000 men engaged in attacking the tribes in the mountain region were "such as to make the operations veritable war."

Senator Bérard also charged heavy waste in the Syrian occupation, but M. Maginot said this had been eliminated. The Senate allowed only 220,000,000 francs for Syria instead of the 235,000,000 francs which M. Maginot said were indispensable.

LONDON, June 22.—Spanish airmen on the Tizzianza (Morocco) front report that the tribesmen are again gathering near the Spanish lines, says a Madrid dispatch to The Times. The Spaniards continue to reinforce their positions around Tafielt.

BRITAIN IS PRESSING FRANCE FOR A REPLY

But Quai d'Orsay Announces That It Awaits End of Belgian Cabinet Crisis.

RUHR DISCUSSIONS KEEP ON

Official Paris Hopes for a Franco-Belgian Agreement on the Conditions for Evacuation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—At the Quai d'Orsay it was stated officially today that there would be no reply to the British questionnaire before the Belgian Cabinet had been formed. This decision holds despite the request made today by the British Ambassador that a reply be returned as soon as possible. Yesterday and again today the Belgian Ambassador to Paris had conferences with Premier Poincaré and there is a considerable amount of official optimism as to the possibility of France and Belgium being able to find a common formula for their definition of the terms of German surrender in the matter of passive resistance, and also for the conditions of evacuation of the Ruhr as German payments are made. But there is no indication that these terms are being modified in a manner to make them either immediately acceptable to Germany or entirely satisfactory to England.

With the exception of the memoranda of the conversation, kept by each party in the present discussion, there have been no written proposals, and it is the intention of M. Poincaré not to reply to the British Questionnaire in writing. Although in the past he has shown a marked disposition toward note-writing, this time he seems strongly to prefer oral communications which will allow for elasticity of interpretation. This method has the additional advantage that, if complete agreement with Belgium is not reached, the Ambassadors of each country will be able to lay before the British Government their own versions of the points at which they agree and on which they differ.

There is little doubt that the delay caused by the Ministerial crisis in Belgium is welcome to France. Hope is strong that M. Theunis will succeed in re-forming his Cabinet; for if he does the prospects of agreement will be greater than if there is a change. So far as the discussions have gone, it is stated at the Quai d'Orsay, agreement has been complete; but it is inevitable that if M. Theunis does not succeed in forming a Cabinet the whole matter will have to be gone over again, and alterations made.

The time which has passed since the questionnaire was submitted has only strengthened France in the belief that the evolution of the resistance in the Ruhr from the "passive to the "elastic" variety will end in its total abandonment by the local population and in a change of Government.

The tone of the Paris press just now is that there is little good in even discussing reparation problems while the chaotic state of German finances and currency renders their solution and the application of any decisions quite impossible. Much rather, say the Temps and other inspired papers, let us apply our energies and resources to the pacification of and the construction of a solid situation in those parts of Germany which are in our hands.

FRENCH FOR TREATY PRIOR TO DISARMING

They Want General Guarantee in Case of Attack and Also Regional Agreements.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—As conditions to any League of Nations disarmament scheme the French Government wishes, first, a general treaty of guarantee among all members of the League and, second, particular treaties between groups of powers having similar interests. This "recommendation" it makes to the Secretariat of the League in reply to a request for comment on "solution fourteen" of the Commission on Disarmament which was discussed at the last general meeting of the League.

The French Government in its comment declares its readiness to collaborate in all efforts of the League and recognizes the importance of linking the question of disarmament with that of national security. But, says the reply, before proceeding to drafting any general or particular treaty form it believes it is necessary to reach an agreement as to the nature of the precise and effective organization for mutual assistance among members of the League which will enable them to reduce their armaments."

The note to the Secretariat recalls that at the plenary meeting of the League two solutions were discussed, first that there should be a general treaty guarantee among the League members to come to each other's assistance if attacked, and second that there should be countenanced local agreements between different groups. Neither of these suggestions seems fully to satisfy the French as a condition on which they would consent to any disarmament scheme.

It is, therefore, suggested that both should be carefully examined from the technical and political sides, and in some way welded together, or applied separately, to different cases. For some States it is argued, who agree to work together, particular agreements to render each other military assistance in case of common danger would be the best method by which they could proceed to economy in armament. For other States a conditional undertaking to give general progressive assistance provided for in a wider treaty which might embrace military agreements, such as those noted above, would be the best solution.

In the latter category are, of course, such States as France, which has an army sufficient for her own defense in normal circumstances were she attacked. It would be more beneficial for her to have a wide agreement bringing in most of the members of the League than to have a simple local military agreement, say with Belgium.

On the other hand a country such as Rumania might profit best by having local agreements with other nations which would be of assistance to her, but would not in case of the outbreak of war entail widespread mobilization.

POLICE OPPRESSION OF NEGRO CHARGED

Cuvillier Informs District Attorney of New Complaint Against Enright's Men.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, in a letter to District Attorney Joab H. Banton, called attention yesterday to another case of alleged police oppression, in which it is charged that Daniel Cox, a negro, has been barred by the police from his home at 45 East 131st Street. Cox is out on bail on a charge of maintaining a disorderly house and his case will come up August 2.

Earlier in the day Mr. Cuvillier appeared with Cox before Justice Prince in the Municipal Court in a dispossess proceeding brought by the landlord, and on the Justice's advice, presented the matter to Magistrate Goodman in Harlem Court. The Assemblyman asked the Magistrate to issue summonses for Inspector McDonald and Captain Noble, but the application was refused on the ground that there was no proof that they were responsible for barring Cox from his home. The Magistrate, however, expressed a willingness to issue a summons for any policeman directly accused of barring Cox.

Cox was arrested on June 2 following a raid. Immediately after the arrest, according to Mr. Cuvillier, uniformed policemen were stationed in front of his house day and night. Cox told Justice Prince that despite the fact that he has paid his rent the police have prevented him from entering his house to sleep, or even to get his clothes.

"When has it come to pass," asks Mr. Cuvillier in his letter, "that the Police Department of the City of New York can ignore with impunity Section 6, Article 1 of the New York State Constitution? Cox has not been convicted of maintaining a disorderly house and every person is presumed to be innocent until found guilty by a court of competent jurisdiction. This case is one of the many hundreds of police oppression, as Justice Prince well stated in the case at bar. I do not know whether you ran a disorderly house or not, but until such time as a proper court convicts you and until I sign a warrant for your eviction your home is your castle and not all the policemen or the Mayor can stop you from doing what you want in your premises, and I advise you, Mr. Cuvillier, to proceed downstairs to the Magistrate and recommend to him that this is the worst case of oppression by the police that has come to my notice during the many years that I have been on the bench. This man is entitled to a summons against that officer.'

"By what authority of law has a policeman the right to enter and take possession of a man's home without a search warrant? There is not a State law except the health laws which authorizes a police officer to take possession of a person's home or property. I trust you will take this matter up and give it the consideration it deserves. The time has come, where a showdown is required that the Police Department of the City of New York is not above or greater than the laws of the State of New York."

The Appellate Division failed yesterday to hand down a decision on the appeal by the Corporation Counsel from Judge Crain's subpoena calling upon the Police Department to produce records asked for the defense of Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in the criminal libel proceedings brought by Commissioner Enright. Judge Crain's inquiry had been adjourned to Monday with the expectation that the matter would be decided by that time.

STINNES LOANED NATION £500,000

Advanced It in April to Help Government Pay for Railways' Coal.

By CYRIL BROWN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—Hugo Stinnes loaned the Government £500,000 in April to pay for English and American coal for the German state railroads and navy. This assertion was dramatically made today by a representative of the Stinnes interests, stung by the taunt that Stinnes had "stabbed the mark in the back" by soliciting offers, after Boerse hours, for £100,000 on April 18.

Director General Minoux of the Stinnes concern and Stinnes's youngest son, head of the Hamburg branch, who is rated by insiders as a more brilliant business genius than his father, were called to testify this afternoon before the special Reichstag committee investigating the failure of the effort to stabilize the mark. The Director General testified that the foreign exchange requirements of the Stinnes firm from Jan. 1 to May 31 amounted to £2,200,000, a monthly average of £440,000. These foreign exchange requirements included the covering of purchases of coal in England and America for the State railroads and the German Navy as well as purchases of coal, paper, pulp, ores and other materials needed by the Stinnes concern.

Herr Minoux further testified that his firm had never hoarded foreign currency; that it never had more than two days' requirements in foreign money on hand at any time, and that most of the time it was short of its foreign exchange requirements.

The lines along which the Cuno Government proposes to combat the decline of the mark are now definitely fixed in a memorandum prepared by the Economic Ministry which will probably be submitted to the Cabinet at the beginning of next week and will undoubtedly be adopted.

The principal points are general prohibiton of dealing in foreign exchange and bank notes; the prohibition of dealing in so-called valuta stock and securities, to wit, foreign securities; limitation of State-licensed dealing in foreign exchange to ten or fifteen banks; the prohibition of such permitted dealing except during Boerse hours, from 11 to 1; all dealing in foreign exchange and bank notes to take place at one uniform rate, to be fixed daily by the Reichsbank.

extraordinary interest in foreign business by Americans, so Paul Henderson, the Second Assistant Postmaster General, said tonight. The foreign mail division, headed by Edwin Sands, comes directly under Mr. Henderson's jurisdiction.

"It became apparent about March 15 that the foreign mail was increasing so largely that it became necessary to reduce the rate paid to the steamship companies for carrying these mails," said Mr. Henderson. "Much to my surprise the volume in April and May continued to increase steadily. Again in June it was necessary to lower the rate paid to the steamship companies, which, I may add, acted with splendid co-operation, realizing the situation entirely. It was evident in June that if we were not extremely careful we would not come out quite even at the end of the year, and the companies saw this."

It has been necessary, so it was learned, to exercise a very careful scrutiny for weeks in order to extend the foreign mail appropriation to suit the situation.

One of the most startling revelations to the department was that the April mail for foreign countries exceeded that sent at Christmas time, something which has never occurred before in the history of the American postal service. The increase over the business of April, 1922, is enormous.

The peculiar situation was of course largely created by the fact that Congress left Washington in March, and that it was not until after that date that the mounting volume of mail became alarming in respect to the money available. Had Congress been here a deficiency appropriation would almost certainly have been provided. As it was, the Post Office could do nothing if the appropriation was actually exhausted.

Advices from New York this afternoon estimated that 50,000 packages of parcels post would be affected, but at the Department it was said that any estimate could only be a guess.

ENRIGHT SKIPS OVER TWO LIEUTENANTS

Ignores Hackett and O'Connor, High on List, in Promoting Seven to Be Captains.

WOODS REGIME RECALLED

Enright Was Passed Over Twice When Hackett Was Commissioner's Confidential Man.

Commissioner Enright, in promoting seven lieutenants to captains yesterday, passed over two men who were near the top of the list. This is the second time that the Commissioner has passed over a man at the top of the eligible list. The first man was Deloss Evans, who was passed over last March. The men who were sent to the bottom of the list yesterday are John L. Hackett and Joseph O'Connor, both of the Butler Street Station in Brooklyn.

After the promotions had been made Commissioner Enright was asked why he had passed over Hackett and O'Connor. The Commissioner's answer was "for police reasons."

In police circles yesterday this question was raised: Did Lieutenant Hackett ever report to former Commissioner Arthur Woods anything about Commissioner Enright while Enright was a lieutenant attached to the Bushwick Avenue Station in Brooklyn during Woods's regime? Hackett was known as "Woods's man," conducting confidential investigations, and it was recalled today that Woods twice passed over Enright's name in making promotions. Gossip at headquarters had it that Enright was giving Hackett a dose of the medicine he himself had received from the former Commissioner.

Yesterday was the second time that O'Connor was passed over when near the top of the captains' list. He was passed over by Commissioner Waldo in 1912, when he was accused of violating a department rule. In the same year he was dismissed from the department, but was reinstated by the courts in 1913. O'Connor was acting captain of the Butler Street station in Brooklyn, an assignment usually given to a lieutenant before being promoted to captain. He was transferred from the Butler Street station yesterday to take command of the Gates Avenue station, Brooklyn, to take the place of Captain William Sullivan, who was retired.

Rumors of a Wholesale Shake-Up.

It was said at headquarters yesterday that the Commissioner proposes to infuse new blood into the commanding officers in the department. Yesterday's retirements is the beginning of a wholesale shake-up in the force. It is understood that ten lieutenants are about to go on the retirement list before the eligible list runs out. The list expires at midnight next Tuesday.

In the promotions yesterday seven lieutenants were made captains, thirteen sergeants became lieutenants and fourteen patrolmen were made sergeants. The men were called to the Commissioner's office at 10 A. M. and were promoted to fill vacancies made by the sudden retirement of seven captains.

Shortly after naming the new candidates, Commissioner Enright announced the transfers of nine captains and the assignment of new candidates.

The men promoted yesterday are: Captains, James B. Trenor, Patrick McCormick, Matthew Kennedy, Daniel Kerr, David J. McAuliffe, Edward J. Mulrooney and James J. Fitzpatrick.

Lieutenants, Daniel P. Hart, John J. Flynn, James P. Conlon, Joseph F. Day, Charles Dourschell, Joseph L. Unger, Louis F. Dittman, Patrick Maguire, William W. O'Brien, Thomas F. Duffy, James Rooney, Joseph Smith Jr. and John L. Travers.

Commissioner Enright also promoted Lieutenant Thomas O'Brien, in charge of buildings in the department, to be Superintendent of Buildings. The new position was created by an act of the Legislature during the last session. Lieutenant O'Brien will have supervision over all buildings in the department and will also draw up the plans for all additional buildings. The new Superintendent was appointed in 1890, was made a Sergeant in 1895 and Lieutenant in 1896. He was put in charge of buildings by Theodore Roosevelt when he was Police Commissioner. The new position pays a salary of $5,000 with the rank of Inspector.

Developments bearing on recent charges of police brutality resulted yesterday in the postponement for two weeks of the hearings of Patrolman Robert M. Porter of the Stapleton Station and Detective Butler and Price of the Special Service Squad.

Porter is charged with blackjacking Thomas V. Gonsalez, a war veteran, while the latter was assembling members of the Holy Name Society in Rosebank, S. I., for church services.

The two detectives are alleged to have attacked several foreign war veterans at Saturday night after being refused liquor by the proprietor of the place in which the James J. Foley Post temporarily is quartered.

At a hearing yesterday Patrolman Alfred Wabe of the West New Brighton Station was convicted on a charge of assault made against him by Thomas McDermott of 125 Crescent Avenue, New Brighton.

THREE GERMANS KILLED IN RUHR BY SOLDIERS

Drastic Penalties Are Imposed Upon Two Towns for Death of Belgian Soldiers.

ESSEN, June 22 (Associated Press).—Three Germans were killed today in different parts of the Ruhr. The first one was shot by French soldiers when he was caught doing damage to railroad tracks in the town of Linthrop. The second, one of a party of five or six Germans who attacked a German who was working for the French, was killed near Recklinghausen when French soldiers fired on the attacking party. The third was one of the two Germans who killed a Belgian corporal and a private and wounded another private near Recklinghausen yesterday when the Belgians endeavored to search them.

In consequence of the attack on the Belgians, the most severe penalties have been imposed upon the towns of Marl and Buer. Six hostages have been taken, including the burgomasters of the towns. The use of telephones has been interdicted for two weeks; there will be no street cars for three months; all coffee houses, saloons and restaurants will be closed for three months; no one will be allowed on the streets from 8 P. M. until 6 A. M. for one month, and the moving picture theatres will remain closed.

The attack on the Belgians took place at Marl, while the punishment of Buer was decreed because the family of one of the offenders lived there.

COAXING THE APPETITE

"Hunger is the best sauce," runs the proverb, and this is generally true;

But with people who live a sedentary life the appetite sometimes has to be coaxed.

It is then that aroma and flavor exert their greatest influence.

Who could resist the delightful aroma and delicious flavor of a vegetable dinner at CHILDS?

BRITISH SEE HUMOR IN LIQUOR CONTEST

Take Lighter View Now That Fear of Confiscation of Ships Is Dispelled.

GOVERNMENT STILL ALOOF

"No Shred of Case for Lines," Says International Authority Concerning Seizures Here.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—Developments in the liquor test case provided by the sealed supplies for the return journey carried by the Berengaria and the Baltic are awaited here with great interest and some sense of amusement, the view being held that the American dry law legislation has reached a stage containing certain elements of humor—which, however, may not be appreciated by anti-dry passengers traveling eastward across the Atlantic.

At the same time the serious aspects of the problem are not overlooked. Apprehensions that the British liners, arriving in New York carrying Government sealed supplies of liquor for the return voyage might be dealt with as contraband carriers were allayed by the latest reports from New York that the American authorities would confine themselves to seizing the sealed stores and placing them in bond pending further action by the steamship companies.

Besides the Berengaria and the Baltic, other vessels starting for America or already on the way with sealed "home voyage" supplies, it is understood, include the Aquitania, the Olympic, the Albania, the Ohio, the Caronia, the Cedric and the Lapland. Some imaginative people had conjured up the picture of the cream of the British Atlantic passenger vessels being confiscated under the extreme penalties of the Volstead act, evidently overlooking the fact that were the Berengaria and Baltic treated in this fashion the seizure of the other vessels could be obviated by diverting them in another direction.

It is authoritatively stated that in providing this test case on the liquor issue the shipping lines in the North Atlantic Conference are acting strictly under the advice of their legal representatives in New York. The British Government departments concerned and the custom officials were notified of the intended procedure, but, it is added, the Government declined to enter into the matter and, in fact, is taking no official cognizance of it.

Intervention by the British Foreign Office is not likely, it is declared, unless a case is made out by advisers of the shipping companies, which has been confirmed after consideration by international jurists. The authority of the American officials to break the British customs seals is not challenged. An international authority quoted by The Evening Standard says:

Much ill-informed nonsense has been published about liquor having on it the seals of the British Government and that it would affront the British Government to break those seals. Nothing of the kind exists in practice. Customs seals on cargoes in foreign vessels entering our ports are broken almost every day by British officials.

"My information is that the British, French and Italian companies are acting in concert and that following what is understood to be the contemplated action of the American customs officials the seizure of all liquor supplied on board sealed or unsealed apart from certified medicinal stores. A case will be enteerd in the United States courts and decision will be awaited, but it is difficult to see under this test that British or any foreign vessels have a shred of a case from a legal standpoint."

The Daily Chronicle editorially discusses the proposed extension of the territorial limit from three to twelve miles and declares that in no circumstances could this country afford to acquiesce. It says:

"Dependent solely upon sea power for our security, no other nation is so vitally concerned over this question as we are. It is no exaggeration to say that some 50 per cent. of the fish taken by British vessels is in fact taken in waters from where they would find themselves excluded by any considerable extension of territorial jurisdiction. That would ruin an industry which in normal times provides us with £12,000,000 worth of food and the capital investments of which have been estimated at as high as £200,000,000.

"Nor would the disastrous consequences end here. Not only does the navy and mercantile marine depend upon the fishing industry for recruitment, but in wartime our fleets could not keep to sea were it not for the auxiliary services rendered by deep-sea trawlers.

"Agitation for an increase in territorial limits is not a new one, but is it not of significance that those nations which today desire most an extension of authority should on other occasions be enthusiastic advocates of the freedom of the seas while none of them have fishing interests at all comparable in magnitude with those of Great Britain?"

States British Position.

The Daily Mail says:

"Before the United States Government carries any further its attempt to force prohibition on British shipping it would do well to understand what the British position is. To us our shipping is our very existence. Without its earnings we cannot hope to pay the enormous amount which we borrowed from the United States in the war for the common cause of the Allies nor can we permit it to be arbitrarily attacked or harassed.

"If it were believed in this country that our ships were being so attacked, retaliatory legislation against the United States ships and goods would be certain and the inevitable scope of such legislation might be very wide indeed.

"We have always deprecated reprisals and shall continue to deprecate them, but if interference with our shipping persists, there may be no other choice where our existence and our solvency are at stake."

The Daily Express says:

"It would seem that the British Government are standing evasively aside, leaving the shipping companies to fight their own battle in the American courts. We regret this inactivity thich can hardly be described as masterly. We can conceive of no peril to Anglo-American friendship. Supposing that the British Government weer to stand behind the Cunard and White Star companies in this test of prohibition pretensions.

"The gesture with whicht he British Government washes its hands of this test will strike public opinion in this country as an exhibition of weakness, more likely to damage than to enhance that Anglo-American friendship which all sane men value as the great hope of modern civilization."

Thinkak It Still a Joke.

The Daily Graphic says:

"The people of this country will resent, and very properly resent, the attempt on the part of America to impose her will on British ships without having more than a specious reason for doing so. The chief effect of her action is to make her look ridiculous, though the secondary result may be that before long the only vessels leaving American ports with liquor stored away on board will be those flying the Stars and Stripes."

The Daily Mirror says:

"It is fortunate that our people on this side of the Atlantic are unable to take the pussyfoot crisis very seriously. Their sense of humor, still vigorous among us, has kept the dry ship drama from becoming an international complication. It is still a joke which grows more and more ludicrous as pussyfoot over there gets more and more excited about the wine and beer that may contaminate the atmosphere of New York, even if it is kept under seal in the Berengaria or the Olympic within three miles of the coast.

"Now, apparently, we are to have a formal challenge upon those seals. There is to be an elaborate test case between the shipping companies and the American Government, but what exactly will be tested? We should, perhaps, answer, it is the American Government's sense of humor and of proportion, for it seems incredible that the influence of a fanatical clique should have brought a great country to this nonsensical interpretation of the freedom of seas, that while liquor abounds for rich Americans in America, the crews and passengers of British ships are not to provide a supply for themselves, that there is not enough common sense going among the dry to see that the whole ridiculous squabble could be set right by a stroke of the pen and a concession in favor of foreign vessels.

"It is not too much to say that the whole world is laughing at America (politely, of course, and low), but there are many who think it would be better to speak to her more frankly about the antics of her cranks."

ARMOURS DISCUSS WHEAT POOL PLAN

Willing to Handle Co-operative Farmers' Shipments, as Suggested by Baruch.

NO DEFINITE PROPOSITION

Senator Capper Approves the Idea, but Is Not Committed to the Armours.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22—George Marcy, President of the Armour Grain Company, denied today that when he and J. Ogden Armour conferred with Bernard M. Baruch a few days ago a plan had been devised for selling the Armour Grain Company to farmers. He admitted, however, that they had discussed the farmers' grain selling problems and listened to schemes which the New York financier and farmer friends had to offer.

"There is nothing definite for us to consider in connection with the selling of the Armour Grain Company to producers," Mr. Marcy said, but he added that his concern was in the business of handling grain and would be glad to handle the co-operators' shipments.

In explaining his part in the conference with Mr. Armour and Mr. Marcy, Mr. Baruch, in a telegram to J. M. Mehl, Secretary of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., Chicago, said:

"Of course, as you know, I have not been negotiating with Armour & Co. or any other firm to handle United States grain growers' products, since I have no sort of authority to do so. What I have done was to outline to many farm leaders, some of whom attended the national wheat conference at Chicago, a plan which seems to me a practical short cut to co-operative marketing of enough American grain to have influence in a world market. In pursuance of my idea, and acting solely as a disinterested private citizen, I have discussed matters with Armour and Marcy, but entirely on my own responsibility, and making it perfectly clear that I was acting as one individual only. My letters on the subject to several farm leaders demonstrate that thoroughly.

"As marketing of grain is a pressing economic, and in no sense a political, problem, and being world-wide is of herculean proportions, I favor purchase entirely by farmers of a practical going concern like the Armour Grain Company and its personnel, but controlled by purchasers, as a short-cut solution of the problem. My conference with Armour and Marcy resulted in nothing more definite than information and belief on my part of possibility of consummating the deal if it met with approval of the farm organizations and could be arranged."

Secretary Mehl said today that the officials of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., would consider any proposition made by Mr. Baruch which he thought would bring relief to the farmer.

Capper Approves Farmers' Pool.

KANSAS CITY, June 22 (Associated Press).—When told of a plan outlined by Bernard M. Baruch in New York, whereby the Armour Grain Company would come under the control of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., Senator Capper of Kansas declared here today that he had received several letters from Mr. Baruch on the subject.

The Kansas Senator declared that he approved the taking over of some efficiently operating marketing machinery by the growers' organization, but would not state whether he approved taking over the Armour Company.

"The marketing problem is the most difficult one facing the farmer," said Senator Capper. "His is the only business in which a man takes what he is offered without having something to say, and he will not get on a permanent and successful basis until he has some say as to the price he is to get for his products."

Baruch Explains His Idea.

"I would not like to have my position in this matter misunderstood," said Mr. Baruch at his home last night after the dispatch from Chicago had been read to him over the telephone. "It was my belief that the farmers should own and operate their own selling agency, and to test out that idea I wanted to put the matter up to the best brains of the grain business. I investigated and was told that George Marcy was the smartest man in the business. I laid the matter before him, and he agreed with me that the farmers could own and operate their own selling agency. In other words, I verified my own judgment in the matter.

"My point is that the farmers, instead of attempting to enter the business was a brand new pooling agency, should make use of the experience of others, make use of their brains, their tried and approved methods. I think that for a time at least this would be necessary. The whole thing was merely in the stage of discussion. Nothing had been settled. I know that the plan I suggested is good; I know my advice is good, that what is needed is a practical short cut to the difficult and involved scheme of co-operative marketing through the agency of a solidly established selling concern owned by the farmers. I am sure, too, that the farmers should seek to employ the highest types of brains in the business, or men like Marcy."

Mr. Baruch said that he agreed with Senator Capper of Kansas, whose advice to farmers "always is sound."

WOMAN 'DRY' CLERK SEIZED.

She Is Accused of Stealing Records From Chicago Office.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Miss Katherine Mauser, formerly of Indianapolis, a stenographer in the office of A. R. Harrison, Prohibition Divisional Chief here, was arrested today on a charge of stealing Government records in connection with an investigation of attempts to extort money from druggists. A man is being sought as the instigator of the extortion scheme.

The young woman, who for two years was secretary to the United States District Attorney at Indianapolis, disclaimed any knowledge of the missing files or of any extortion plot.

The arrest was made after Leo Zindt, a druggist, had brought to the prohibition offices a letter addressed to E. C. Yellowley, Chief General Prohibition Agent at Washington, from the local office, which Zindt said had been given to him by a man who sought to obtain $1,000 from him. The man had promised to destroy the letter, which recommended revocation of Zindt's liquor permit, if the druggist would give him the money, Zindt said.

It was found that the letter had been written by T. Ed. Howard, assistant to Mr. Harris, and that, instead of being mailed, it had been abstracted from the office correspondence. The arrest of Miss Mauser was the next step, and in the meantime search is being made for the man named by Zindt and who, the prohibition officials believe, is a professional "fixer."

Austria Impresses Kent Favorably.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 22.—Fred I. Kent, Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company of New York, after a fortnight's stay, left Vienna tonight. He made a study of Austrian economic conditions and examined banks and big plants. Mr. Kent, expressing himself favorably on conditions, said that regarding prospects Austria was ahead of most of the central European States.

time and it might as well be right now. I think that Governor Smith by signing the repealer did a very helpful thing for prohibition. They tell me, however, that it's pretty wet in New York just now."

Prohibition Has Stopped "Cures."

One thing that "Pussyfoot" thought was significant in connection with the success or failure of the prohibition law in America was the disappearance of the Keeley cure advertisements, and the announcements of other "cures" for the drink habit.

"They've all gone out of business," said Mr. Johnson, with a wide grin, "but they are opening up in Europe. You can't pick up a magazine over there now without seeing ads about how 'we' and so 'breaks the hold.' I think some of these cures were really effective in the old days. I used to send folks to them, and while they didn't cure in every case, the majority of the patients were helped."

"Pussyfoot" then gave an expert analysis of the different types of topers. In his opinion the "old soak" is the most lamentable of all. Mr. Johnson said that the chap who goes "on a bat for a week and shoots up the town" isn't altogether hopeless.

"But the man who stews along and never gets drunk," he added, "the chap who simmers for 365 days, he is the danger. They are the symbols of what rum really does."

Nowhere, except in New York, did "Pussyfoot" find any real sentiment for light wines and beers. In fact, the chances for America getting the liquids with the lesser percentage of alcohol are about as bright, in his opinion, as the likelihood of the nation voting to do away with the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Do you think that this country has the right to bar liquor on foreign ships?" he was asked.

"I think America has the right to enact any law she darn pleases," said Pussyfoot. "I think these foreign nations ought to be content to respect our laws. We have the right to say what shall be brought into our territorial waters. When one of our ships goes into British waters she obeys the law, and if we respect their laws I think they should respect ours. I don't think the time has come for Congress to abrogate any of our laws respecting the territorial waters of the United States."

Britain Bars His Dog.

"Now, to get personal, I've got a dog out in Westerville, Ohio, where I live, and I'd like mighty well to take that dog along with me. But Britain has a law which says that no dogs can be taken into her territory and so I have to leave that dog behind. I guess they can leave their 'liquor dog' behind, too."

Branching off from a brief discussion of the difficulties that had arisen over the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, "Pussyfoot" admitted that enforcing prohibition in this country was a hard task. He cited the nation's 17,000 miles of coastal line as one of the chief problems, but added that he was convinced that it was merely a question of time when the only liquid touching the shores would be the waves.

"Now, as to my present trip," said Mr. Johnson, in reply to a series of questions, "I am going to the Near East to negotiate with Moslem officials for the organization of a drive to wipe out the liquor traffic. Of course, Turkey has had prohibition for years, but they never had actual prohibition over there until three months ago, when the Angora Assembly passed a real dry measure.

"Of course, the precepts of the Moslem religion forbade the use of booze, but there are a good many of them that were not religious. I remember when I was over there several years ago I had a Moslem working for me, and one day he got very drunk. When he came around the next morning he had a bad headache and felt very dismal.

"I hitched up the cart and took him down to the well in the city. He washed his feet the first thing and then took a drink out of the same water. When he got to feeling a trifle brisker I asked him how it was that he got drunk; didn't he know that the Koran forbade him to take intoxicating liquors. He told me that he never drank the things the Koran forbade, explaining that the Koran, which he followed very, very strictly, put a ban on red wine. Never never did he drink any of the filthy red wine. He took whisky straight.

Dry Germ Already Planted.

"There are 215,000,000 Hindus who are prohibitionists and 100,000,000 or so of Buddhists who have been taught total abstinence for somthing like 2,000 to 3,000 years. In India alone there are 281 temperance societies, and Mahatma Gandhi is one of the leading prohibitionists. Prohibition is one of the cornerstones of his popularity.

"I am going to the seat of Islam in an effort to get official co-operation for the passage of prohibition measures, like the recent legislation of the Angora Assembly, in all countries dominated by Moslems which lack prohibition laws at present. The prohibition idea has been spreading like wildfire since America went dry, and naturally since we took the lead the whole argument abroad is based on the record of prohibition in the United States.

"I think, as a matter of fact, that the chances for the world going dry appear to be a good deal better today than they were for prohibition in the United States twenty years ago. Why, twenty years ago, when we talked about national prohibition we got the laugh. Well, we have prohibition, and we aren't getting so many laughs nowadays when we speak of world-wide prohibition."

"Pussyfoot" spoke of his work in Great Britain. He admitted that the Britons were a "stubborn lot," explaining that they had quite a few ideas about "personal liberty" and the like over there. Lady Astor was doing splendid dry work in a quiet way, said "Pussyfoot," because "she never loses her temper."

"Only a year ago," he remarked, "Lloyd George told a friend of mine that if prohibition proved to be a success in the United States, the British Isles would go dry within ten years. In going about the clubs in London I find that the chief thing that is worrying the British business man is whether Britain wet can compete with America dry. They are studying our industrial efficiency very closely and you can bet that if they find, as they will, that we are forging ahead, doing better and more work, Great Britain will fall in line with much dispatch."

Tut's People a Bad Lot.

After "Pussyfoot" gets through with Cape Town and other points down in the southern tip of Africa, where he goes on invitation, he plans an overland trip to Egypt. He said that he planned to visit the tomb of King Tut-ankh-Amen, but didn't expect to do any dry research. The Egyptians were a bad lot, he said, because they and the Romans and Greeks drank themselves to death.

"In Egypt in the time of Moses," said Pussyfoot, reminiscently quoting a bit he has written for an encyclopedia which isn't out yet, "there were two kinds of beer. One was 'hak,' which was the domestic brew, and the other was called 'qued.' The latter was the imported stuff; it corresponded to the Bass of today. 'Qued' was imported from Assyria. It was good stuff, I gather, because the local brewers began to label their own stuff as the imported article. It was the first, I guess, instance of counterfeiting the label and was the first beginning of the crooked brewer. From that day to the day prohibition became effective they kept getting more crooked."

Very encouraging, as "Pussyfoot" saw it, is the outlook for prohibition in Mexico. Sonora and Yucatan already are in the near-beer stage and President Obregon is a "out-and-out dry." In France the situation is distinctly bright. Over in Paris the headquarters of the French League Against Alcoholism is receiving Government support.

"Pussyfoot" asserted.

"Why, Clemenceau himself," declared Mr. Johnson, "is one of our contributors. The fight just now is on the abolition of distilled spirits, and no effort is being made to attack wines. Many of those who are with us believe in wines and they are fighting spirits in order to prevent the abolition of not only spirits, but wines as well."

"Pussyfoot" was asked if the league wouldn't stop wines if it succeeded in halting spirits.

"Yes, I guess it would. But spirits are first."

LIQUOR ON STEAMERS TO BE SEIZED TODAY

a half bottles of spirts which were also under seal and marked on the manifest as surplus medical stores for use on the homeward voyage. It was understood that Dr. E. K. Sprague of the Marine Hospital has granted a permit for the medical supplies to remain on the Baltic.

The liner also had a supply of liquor put on board at Liverpool for the outward passage, but it was very small as there were only 83 passengers. They worked fast, Purser Robert Edwards said, and there was not a single drink of any kind of intoxicants left when the ship passed the three-mile limit at eleven o'clock on Thursday night.

The Majestic had sailed from Southampton on June 13 ten hours ahead of the Baltic but did not take any liquor under seal for the return passage from New York because the decision to make the test had not then been decided upon, it was stated yesterday.

When the customs officials received the manifest on the Baltic from Captain John Roberts before he went to the Custom House it was pointed out to them that there were wet stores under seal on the ship and they were listed on the back of the document as surplus stores. The captain was quite ready to see the United States Customs Inspectors go down to the lower deck and break the British seals, but to his surprise they contented themselves by going and inspecting the door to the spirit room and remarking that it was a pleasant day. Captain Roberts was informed that he should go to the Custom House and enter his ship in the usual manner.

The Berengaria reached Quarantine at 10 o'clock, and Purser Stanley Beynon reported to the customs officials when they went on board that there was under seal on the "H" deck 101 3-5 gallons of wine, 101 1-6 gallons of spirits and 3,588 bottles of ale, stout and lager beer. In addition there was a surplus medical supply consisting of 47 1-6 gallons of wine, 29 5-6 gallons of spirits and 150 bottles of ale and stout for the voyage back to Southampton.

Captain W. I. R. D. Irvine, R. N. R., the master of the big Cunarder, stopped his ship twenty minutes in Quarantine after she had been cleared by the health officers, to see if the customs officials intended to take the liquor off before the liner proceeded to her pier at the foot of West Thirteenth Street. The liquor for the outward trip had all been consumed, the purser said, and the last bottle of champagne vanished at midnight when the Berengaria was approaching the American coast.

After he had made his ship fast and the Customs officials had looked at the six big red seals and one leaden seal on the wine room down on "H" deck, where they were placed by the British Cutsoms Inspectors in charge of a surveyor at Southampton last Saturday, Captain Irvine drove in a taxicab with the purser and surgeon to the Cunard office, 25 Broadway. They had been summoned by telephone, to attend a conference with Sir Ashley Sparks as to what was best to be done with regard to the supply for medicinal purposes on the eastward voyage.

The officials of the White Star Line said late yesterday that no protest would be made by the company in New York. The matter would be left to the head office in London and would be made a diplomatic and not a court issue. Sir Ashley Sparks the director of the Cunard Line had no comment to make on the probable action that would be taken by the Customs officials today

Colonel Hayward to Follow Orders.

Colonel William Hayward, United States District Attorney in a statement issued at his office yesterday said:

"My office is prepared to carry out any suggestions from the Treasury Department or Department of Justice in connection with the foreign ships said to be coming to New York with the stocks of their bar rooms under some kind of seal, consular or otherwise. Having tried and won the Anchor Line case before Judge Julius M. Mayer and the Cunard case before Judge Learned Hand, the original 'Ship Rum' cases, both of which were afterwards affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States, we feel that no new point of law is involved in the present situation for the use of so-called 'seals' is obviously resorted to, for an artificial purpose in an effort to evade our laws. These 'seals' can not be so sacrosanct as it is the clear intention to have the ship bartenders reach them at the three-mile limit on the eastbound voyage.

"As we view it, the same old question is presented, and that question is not who will run the foreign ships, but who will run our harbors. My opinion is that the United States can, should and will continue to do the latter."

The Red Star liner Lapland arrived yesterday from Antwerp bone dry except for a small quantity of brandy under seal, which was reserved for medicinal purposes, the surgeon said.

Reliance Pours Whisky Into Sea.

The United American liner Reliance was also dry when she arrived yesterday from Hamburg. Before reaching the three-mile limit on Thursday night the smoking room stewards were instructed to take six bottles of Scotch whisky that was left over and pour the contents into a bucket and then dump the liquor over the side, which was done, they say, while veteran sailors stood by and wiped their eyes.

TRUST CUSTOMS DISCRETION.

Treasury Department Awaits Protest by Steamship Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The procedure in the cases of the Baltic, Berengaria and other liners arriving inside the three-mile limit, will be left largely to discretion of the customs officers at New York, so long as they follow the intent of the ruling laid down by the Treasury Department with regard to the Berengaria, it was learned this afternoon.

Official advices concerning the Baltic had not reached Washington up to the time the Government departments closed. It was assumed, however, that liquor on board the White Star liner would be taken over and held under a receipt given to the captain of the ship, just as the case would be in the instance of the Cunard boat. The protest from the steamship lines is expected by the Treasury Department, but what the next step will be was not announced.

Whether there will be an exception in the case of the Baltic because she sailed once before, June 9, put back into port for repair and then sailed again after June 10, would not be discussed in the absence of official reports of her arrival. However, it is believed she will be treated as are all other vessels arriving inside American territorial waters with "contrabrand" liquors.

The arrival of the Baltic with the liquor stores intact with as much a surprise to Ambassador Geddes as to American officials who thought the Berengaria would be in first. The Ambassador sails next Tuesday on board the Berengaria, and is expected to inform Downing Street at first hand of the attitude of the Washington Administration on the ship liquor question.

ADMITS DYE PATENTS MAY GO TO GERMANS

Federal Counsel Says That if Purchase Is Cancelled Congress Can Dispose of Them.

DECLARES TITLE IS VALID

And Insists Court's Only Power Is to Affirm or Set Aside the Sale.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—The Government admitted today the possibility that if the Federal courts cancel the sale of seized German patents to the Chemical Foundation and return these patents to the Government, the patents may eventually revert to their former German owners.

This admission, in reply to a query by Judge Morris, was made by Special Assistant Attorney General Henry W. Anderson. It is regarded as tending to bear out the contention of Isador J. Kresel, counsel for the Foundation, that cancellation of the sale ultimately would mean the return of the patents to the German dye trust, which he has described as "an invisible plaintiff in this action."

Colonel Anderson declared that if the Government won this suit the patents would be at the disposition of Congress, and he agreed that it was possible Congress could order their return to the Germans.

In an address during argument on legal questions Colonel Anderson made a summary of the Government's charge of conspiracy against the Foundation and the American Dyes Institute.

Cites Choate's Statements.

Colonel Anderson read extracts from testimony before a congressional committee by Joseph H. Choate, formerly general counsel to the Alien Property Custodian and now counsel for the Foundation. Mr. Choate appeared in June, 1919, before the House Ways and Means Committee as counsel for the Foundation and representing the American Dyes Institute, composed of manufacturers, and which financed the search for patents transferred by the Custodian to the Foundation. He declared in this hearing that the $250,000 paid by the Foundation for the patents was arrived at by guesswork.

Mr. Choate told the committee that the transfer of patents to the Foundation was at private sale because only at such a sale could there be assurance of bona fide bidders. At a public sale, he testified, "the only other kind of bidder would be a hold-up artist, who would buy the patents for profit or to hold them for his own use."

After reading this record, Colonel Anderson said:

"The evidence has now reached a stage which shows that the Chemical Foundation and the American Dyes Institute are one and the same thing; that the Foundation is nothing in the world but the hand of the Institute; that every dollar of money put into the Foundation was subscribed by members of the Institute; that they organized it; that they are the real beneficiaries of its operations; that the Institute and the Foundation and those who organized them are parties to the various transactions the purpose of which was to monopolize this industry, prevent and restrain foreign commerce, and bring about the condition we have enumerated.

Says Validity of Title Is Settled.

Judge Morris asked whether the Government held that the court could not determine the validity of the seizure, to which Colonel Anderson replied:

"The question of validity cannot be raised, because the Government cannot attack its own title. The foundation, claiming through the Government, certainly cannot attack its title, because it has no title. The original German owner cannot attack the title of the United States, because the treaty of peace ratified the seizure, agreeing that the property be held until Germany's compliance with the treaty, and Germany has not complied. Plaintiff and defendant claim title through the same source, the custodian. The question is merely as to whether there was a valid sale. If it was not, title rests in the United States and the United States holds it."

"Although," asked the court, "that seizure may have been one of the steps, should we find a conspiracy in acquisition of the patents by the industry?"

"Undoubtedly," answered Colonel Anderson, "if agents of the Government were guilty of conspiracy in the seizure the Government cannot be estopped by their wrong. The Government has contracted with Germany by treaty that its title against the German owner is good, and the only question is as between the United States and its assignee."

Discusses Holding of Patents.

In reply to the Court's question as to the Government's intention if it recovered the patents, Col Anderson said:

"I have not said the United States was going to hold them."

"I thought you told me the United States was going to maintain title at any cost," remarked Judge Morris.

"It will against the defendant, the Chemical Foundation," said Colonel Anderson. "The question of what Congress may do with the patents is not for me to consider. The Executive Department will hold them until Congress acts, and hold them as long as Congress elects not to act. The remedy against misuse of the patents lies in Congress.

"The United States has three courses if the patents are returned to it: One is, Congress has power to return them to their owners under such conditions as it sees fit; second, Congress may keep these patents and reimburse the German owners; third, Congress may confiscate, but I hope Congress will compensate the owners."

"You have spoken of a decree to protect the licenses under these patents," said Judge Morris. "Would that prayer go so far as to warrant a decree of this character, namely, that in the event that this or some Appellate Court should determine that the price received was not adequate, was not proper, and, for the purpose of ascertaining your views, assuming the proper price was $1,000,000 or $5,000,000, that the decree should be such that the Chemical Foundation might be directed to pay that sum into the Treasury of the United States within a specified time or surrender the patents?"

"I answer 'no,' without the slightest hesitation," Colonel Anderson replied. "Your Honor's power in this matter is either to affirm or set aside the sale. It is either good or bad. You cannot make a new sale. There is no power in the Court to make a new sale."

Many Documents Presented.

More than 150 documents were introduced by the Government in its effort to establish a high value for the 4,500 seized German patents which the custodian sold the Foundation for $250,000, and later in the day Colonel Anderson recorded bills of complaint in sixty-one suits filed by the Foundation against chemical and dye companies operating under patent licenses issued by the Federal Trade Commission. These were offered to help prove the alleged great value of the patents and to show the foundation was a money-making organization rather than solely altruistic.

Charles E. Parmele, a New York chemist, was recalled by the Government to tell about the seizure of his patent for chinosol and its sale to the Chemical Foundation, which demanded a royalty from him for its use. He did not pay, and eventually the patent was returned to him.

When Parmele declined to make known his profits from the chinosol patent, this making it impossible to verify his $100,000 estimate of its value, the Court, turning to Government counsel, remarked:

"I do not see how I can pay much attention to this testimony."

CROKER TRIAL NOTICE PUT OVER TO JULY 2

Plaintiff in Dublin Case Gets an Extension Without Security for Costs Asked by Widow.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, June 22.—Lord Chief Justice Molony today gave Richard Croker until July 2 to serve notice of a motion for a new trial of the contest of his father's will. The Judge pointed out that if it were expedited, he would not require security for the costs as the appeal would be disposed of during July.

Croker's counsel, James Lardner, applied on short notice for an order that the time within which his client might be at liberty to serve notice of a new trial be extended from June 23 to July 7. He explained that his client is now residing at the Salthill Hotel, Dublin, had made an affidavit grounding the motion and conferred with legal advisers as to serving notice and that it was considered full time and opportunity should be had to consider the transcript of trial proceedings, including the charge of the Lord Chief Justice. Accordingly, he asked an extension of fourteen days. He said he had not yet received a full copy of the transcript.

The Judge said that there seemed to be reason for granting the application.

Sergeant Hanna for Mrs. Croker, said the plaintiff had got all of the transcript except a small portion of the judge's charge.

Lardner replied that there were very difficult issues and the plaintiff should get reasonable time.

Mr. Jellett, counsel for Mrs. Ethel White, intimated that the Judge might take him as asking for an order similar to that asked by Lardner. The case was of exceptional magnitude, he said.

Sergeant Hanna opposed any but a minimum time regarding this application, as part of the sequence of applications was to delay and hold the case over the head of Mrs. Croker and embarrass her in dealing with her property in Ireland and America. If plaintiff and Mrs. White, who lived out of the jurisdiction, were getting an extension, he said, they should lodge substantial sums toward the cost. Richard Croker £2,500 and Mrs. White £1,000. He reiterated that the appeal should be heard before the end of the term.

The Judge intimated that he was prepared to grant an extension and gave Lardner an opportunity to discuss with his client the terms suggested by Sergeant Hanna.

Later Lardner said that he had communicated with his client, who told him he preferred that the Judge should make an order on the matter, as he did not want to give an undertaking to do something he possibly could not perform without first communicating with his office and bankers in New York.

The Chief Justice said that every one was anxious to have the case finally disposed of in July and every day the notice was delayed created difficulty. All materials would be before the parties tomorrow, he added, and then they would have fourteen days to consider them.

Lardner said his application was perfectly bona fide and that his client was anxious to expedite the matter.

The Chief Justice then made the order of extension until July 2.

LONDON, June 22.—A dispatch to the Central News from Dublin says Mrs. Bula Croker announces that she is cabling her husband's lawyers in New York, instructing them to visit Mrs. R. B. Kays, wife of a telegraph operator of the Rock Island Railroad, and obtain a full statement from her.

Mrs. Kays, residing temporarily in Bell, Mo., on June 16 told The Associated Press she was the wife of the mysterious Guy Marone mentioned in the Croker will case as the husband of Mrs. Bula Croker.

ROBBER SUSPECT CAUGHT.

Brooklyn Man Arrested in Maine Accused of $50,000 Hold-Up.

Louis Spencer, alias Costello, 25 years old, has been arrested in Portland, Me. He is under indictment as one of four highwaymen who, on Jan. 23 last, held up three messengers of the Municipal Bank, at Lincoln Road and Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and stole $50,000 in cash.

citizen to dismiss the subject of coal, the issue remains a serious one, and I therefore bespeak for the forthcoming report of your commission on the anthracite industry a very thoughtful reception. No solution of this vexing economic question can be found except as the general public thoroughly digests the facts you present and decides upon the proper action to take.

I regret that those who serve the anthracite consuming public, as mine operators and mine workers, have not already agreed upon the terms of a new contract, but with your report available on July 1 there should be no delay in reaching a speedy agreement.

The public deserve prompt assurance that there will be no interruption after Aug. 31 in the flow of household coal from mine to market. As I believe your commission stated in an earlier report, industry and the home alike must first be freed from the menace of constant interruption of their coal supply. To that end public opinion must be a well informed public opinion, and I therefore trust that our citizens may keep up a lively interest in coal in season and out of season.

The subject is a most interesting one, but it is much more. The issue is a vital one, in that it affects the well being of the whole nation, and not in a material way alone, for I know questions are before you that strike deep into the very hearts of our American institutions.

GIANTS WIN OPENER FROM BRAVES, 9-5

Champions Begin Series at Polo Grounds With Early Five-Run Lead.

SCOTT STARTS ON MOUND

Yields Eleven Hits, but Shows Form —Earl Smith and Felix Make Homers.

After returning from their trip through the West, where they were handled rather roughly, the Giants immediately set about the task of entrenching themselves more securely in the league lead. They opened a series with the Braves at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon and breezed through to an easy victory over the weak club from Boston. The final score was 9 to 5.

The champions practically clinched the game in the first two innings by piling up five runs. They drove Tim McNamara, former Fordham star, to cover in the first and then continued the attack against the veteran Rud Marquard. They scored three more runs in the fourth with Larry Benton on the mound, and then added another in the fifth. For the remainder of the game Benton held the Giants scoreless, but the outcome had long been settled.

Jack Scott started on the mound for the champions for the first time since he was injured during batting practice more than a month ago. The big right-hander showed splendid form even though he was found for eleven hits, the same number that the Giants collected off the Boston trio. Scott kept the hits well scattered except in the fifth and sixth innings, in each of which the Braves scored two runs. He yielded only three hits in the first four innings, but he eased up considerably after his mates had piled up a substantial lead.

Earl Smith, who was recently traded to the Braves for Hank Gowdy, made his first appearance at the Polo Grounds in a Boston uniform. In four trips to the plate he slammed out a home run and two singles. His homer, which was a terrific clout into the lower tier of the right field stand some distance from the foul line, came in the sixth inning with McInnis on second base. A home run by Felix, the Braves' left fielder, gave the Boston club its first pair of runs in the fifth inning. In addition to Smith, Nixon, the Boston centre fielder, also connected for three hits, one being a two-bagger.

Giants All Hit Except Frisch.

The Giants' eleven safeties were pretty well distributed, each of the champions, with the exception of Frank Frisch, getting at least one. O'Connell and Scott each made two singles, while Bancroft slammed out a double and a single.

McNamara paved the way for his own downfall in the first inning by passing Bancroft. Groh followed with a single through Bob Smith, the Boston shortstop. McNamara then pulled himself together and Frisch flied out to Nixon, after which Meusel expired on a pop fly to Bob Smith. Young came through with a two-bagger to right, scoring Bancroft and Groh. Kelly followed with a single to centre and Young completed the circuit. After Marquard had replaced McNamara at this point, O'Connell poked a single to centre, sending Kelly to third, but Snyder lined to Ford for the third out.

Scott opened another attack on Marquard in the second inning with a single to centre. Bancroft shot a hit to the same field, and when Nixon fumbled the ball Scott lumbered around to third and Bancroft took second. Groh lifted a fly to Nixon and Scott crossed the plate after the catch, while Bancroft moved around to third. Another sacrifice fly by Frisch brought Bancroft across.

After Powell had batted for Marquard in the third, Benton was sent to the mound for the Braves in the latter half of that inning. With the help of a double play, he turned back the Giants in that frame, but in the fourth the champions picked up three cheap runs. Snyder walked with none out, and Scott immediately hit into a fast double play, Ford to Bob Smith to McInnis. Bancroft drew a base on balls and stole second, after which Groh also received a pass. Frisch was hit on the shoulder by a pitched ball and the bases were filled. Meusel promptly drove a single to centre, scoring Bancroft and Groh and moving Frisch to third. On a double steal Frisch beat Ford's return throw to the plate, and Meusel continued all the way to third when the ball went through Earl Smith. Meusel was left at third when Young lined sharply to Bob Smith for the third out.

Nixon and Felix Score.

With two down in the Braves' half of the fifth, Nixon shot a single to left. Felix drove a fly to deep left field and Meusel was barely able to touch the ball with his gloved hand as it passed over his head. By the time the ball had been returned to the infield both Nixon and Felix had crossed the plate.

The Giants cut loose against Benton in their half of the fifth and drove out three hits which netted them their ninth and final run. Snyder started the trouble with two out by driving a single to left. Scott followed with his second hit, a single to the same field. Snyder pulling up at second. Bancroft chased Snyder across with a two-bagger along the left field foul line. Both runners were stranded when Groh flied out to Nixon.

Scott walked McInnis with none out in the sixth and, after Boeckel had grounded to Groh, Earl Smith drove his home run into the right field stand. Bob Smith went out on a roller to Groh and Ford and Benton each connected for singles, but Nixon ended the uprising with a fly to Meusel.

The Braves scored their fifth run in the ninth inning on Nixon's single, an infield out, and Southworth's sacrifice fly.

BOB MEUSEL STARS AS YANKS TRIUMPH

His Batting Yields Three Runs and His Fielding Stops Red Sox Rally in Ninth.

HUGMEN VICTORS BY 4-2

Bunch Hits Off Quinn, While Shawkey Holds Rivals Scoreless Except in One Inning.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 22.—Despite a painful boil on his neck, Bob Meusel rose to stellar heights today while the Yanks were defeating the Red Sox in the opening game of a series of four, 4 to 2. After winning the contest with his bat the New York outfielder saved it in the ninth with one of the most sensational plays of the season.

The boil on Meusel's neck is not a new one. It bothered him no little during the closing days of the Yankees' home stand against the Western clubs and last night, before he left New York, it was lanced by the club physician. Manager Huggins urged his outfielder to rest today, but the latter refused to lay off, and in spite of pain caused by the boil, played a brilliant game.

Meusel made two hits, one of them a triple, in four times at bat, and was responsible for three of the Yankees' runs. His greatest moment came in the second half of the ninth inning when he converted an apparently safe hit by Pinch Hitter Shanks into a force-out at second which flattened a threatening rally.

Battling Bob Shawkey pitched the entire game for the Yankees and had only two bad innings. One was the seventh, when a double by Harris was followed by a homer by Flagstead. The other was the ninth, when a pass to Flagstead and a single by McMillan put the tying runs on base with none out. Shawkey pitched himself out of trouble in the seventh, and Meusel's phenomenal play on Shanks saved him in the ninth.

Quinn Opposes Shawkey.

Jack Quinn, the veteran spitball dispenser, was Shawkey's opponent on the mound. Quinn was tapped for only nine hits, but the Yankees bunched their safeties with telling effect and got looked few chances to add to their score.

The Yankees broke away in front by scoring one run in the second inning. After Pipp had been retired Meusel beat out a lazy grounder to Fewster and continued on to second when the latter tossed the ball into the Red Sox dugout. Ward drew a pass and Scott singled to centre, Meusel scoring and Ward going to third on the hit. Hoffman grounded smartly to Mitchell, but the latter came up with the ball and started a double play which retired the side.

Neither side threatened in the third, but in the following frame the Yankees broke loose again and added two runs to their total. Ruth led off by banging the second time. Pipp drove a triple to the left field fence, however, and Meusel brought him home with a towering three-bagger to the right field bleachers wall.

Ward then bunted to Quinn, who made a wild throw past first, Meusel scoring on the error. Following Scott's fly to Flagstead in short right, Hoffman jammed a double over first, but McMillan made a splendid pick-up on Shawkey's twisting grounder and ended the rally with a fine throw to first.

Ruth's Single of No Avail.

With one out in the fifth, Dugan rolled an easy chance to Fewster, who let the ball trickle through him after wrapping both hands around it. Ruth followed with a single right to the left and Meusel were easy outs. In the following round, Ward led off with an infield hit and advanced to third on Scott's sacrifice and a passed ball. Hoffman struck out, however, and Shawkey lifted an easy fly to Pinelich.

Not until the seventh did the Red Sox break through. Harris, the first man up in the local's half, banged a double to right. Flagstead followed with a homer over the left field fence, completing McMillan's infield out. Fewster lined a single over Scott's head. Quinn laid down a sacrifice which put the tying run on second base, but Ward got in front of Mitchell's smash and whipped it to first for the third out.

Hoffman's triple to centre and an infield hit by Witt gave the Yanks another run in the ninth. In the second half of this round Shawkey passed Flagstead and McMillan jilted a single over second. After missing one attempt to sacrifice, Fewster was called to the bench for instructions from Manager Chance of the Red Sox, and on his return to the plate raised an easy infield fly which Mike McNally dropped.

Howard Shanks then batted for Quinn and dropped a Texas leaguer back of first. Meusel came in on a dead run to make a sensational one-handed pick-up, however, and whipped the ball to Scott in time to force McMillan at second. Mitchell then flied to Meusel, whose catch in deep right ended the game.

HOBGOBLIN WINS EASILY

Takes the Chesterbrook at a Mile for Three-Year-Olds—Five Favorites Are First.

With Flying Cloud, Chickvale and Rialto scratched, only three remained to run for the Hanover Handicap, the feature event of the card at the Aqueduct track yesterday, and of these the Quincy Stable's four-year-old colt, All Over, by Zeus-Lassie, proved the best. He clearly outran C. G. Thieriot's five-year-old Prince James, which he beat by six lengths with ease, while the latter was seven lengths in front of William Daniel's Costigan, a four-year-old son of Colin. The son of King James, with 109 pounds up, conceded 9 pounds to All Over and 22 to Costigan.

Despite the easy victory of All Over the colt sprinted over the mile and a furlong of fast track in the fine time of 1:50, just an even second slower than

WASHBURN REACHES CLAY COURT FINAL

Eliminates Binzen by Steady Playing—To Meet King for Met. Title Today.

KASHIO LOSES CLOSE MATCH

Japanese Star Captures Many Brilliant Rallies, but King's Speed and Service Win.

Watson M. Washburn and Dr. George H. King reached the final round of the metropolitan clay court championship yesterday at the New York Tennis Club, 238th Street, near Broadway. Washburn, winner of the title twice, defeated Elliott H. Binzen in the semi-finals yesterday at 6—3, 11—9. Dr. King advanced by putting out Seichiro Kashio, the Japanese Davis Cup player, at 6—2, 3—6, 6—2. The concluding match will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Play in the doubles has reached the semi-finals. The four surviving teams are Washburn and Fred C. Anderson, Gerald Emerson and Anton F. von Bernuth, Masamosuke Fukuda and Seichiro Kashio and Henry H. Bassford and J. Harry Steinkampf. They will meet in the order named tomorrow morning, and the final will be played in the afternoon. Washburn and Anderson advanced yesterday at the expense of Charles M. Wood Jr. and Morton Bernstein at 6—0, 8—10, 6—2. Emerson and von Bernuth put out Harry Slesinger and Philip O. Bodkin at 6—1, 10—8. Fukuda and Kashio eliminated Hugh Oakley and Leonard Knox at 6—1, 6—0, and Bassford and Steinkampf disposed of Walter Toussaint and Herbert H. Manchester at 6—4, 6—3.

Both Washburn and Binzen were in good stroke yesterday, especially the former. The Davis Cup player's uncanny ability to find the openings was his biggest asset. Playing at an easy pace at all times, Washburn was able, with his skillful position play, to overcome the greater speed and power of Binzen, who adopted a rushing attack at the start, and was the aggressor throughout. No matter how hard Binzen worked he found it almost impossible to put the other on the defensive. Most of the time he was running from one far corner of the court to the other, trying vainly to keep within proximity of the ball.

Binzen Takes Early Lead.

In the second set Binzen ran into a lead of 3—1. He carried it to 4—2, after which Washburn brought the score to 4-all. From this point on the play was on the closest basis. Washburn always gave the impression of having the situation in hand, and it was Binzen who was doing most of the work. This was due simply to the fact that Washburn was bringing all his tactical skill to bear and playing to the corners in such puzzling fashion that Binzen never knew where to expect the ball. The Davis Cup man's strokes carried little rise, and to keep within striking distance of the ball the utmost nimbleness of foot was required. Only Binzen's ability to get over an unusual amount of ground and to make gets of the hardest kind enabled him to keep the ball in play in one brilliant rally after another.

The large gallery that watched the play was applauding both his and Washburn's efforts throughout the contest. Twice Washburn came close to bringing the second set to an end before it had reached its drawn-out proportions by gaining a lead of 30—0 twice on the other's service. But on each occasion Binzen set himself to the task and played such irresistible tennis that Washburn was outmanoeuvred and aced for the precious points that enabled the other to pull up to deuce and finally to win the game. Washburn finally broke through in the twentieth game and the set ended at 11—9.

The match between Dr. King and Kashio was marked by the stiffest of opposition on both sides of the net. There was not as much in the way as is usually characterizes a match in which either of the two men is a participant. This was chiefly due to the fact that both were hitting so hard and getting their strokes off so quickly that it was dangerous for either to attempt to gain the net. The rallies, for the greater part, were decided entirely from the baseline, with the ball crossing the net fifteen to twenty times before some of the points were decided.

Binzen Erratic at Net.

Washburn played at the net a great part of the time, advancing as his drives to the alternate corners forced the other out of position, and cutting Binzen's returns to unreturnable corners of the court. Binzen's play at the net was brilliant at times and at other times he failed on the simplest of shots. On several occasions when he had a chance for a clear kill pr a drop volley that would have given him the point he hit the ball into the net or drove outside the confines.

In both sets Binzen started out in the lead. In the opening frame he captured three games in a row before Washburn got started. He took the first at 4—2 on service, broke through for the second at 7—5 and won the third at 4—2. Washburn was a bit slow in warming up and was not getting the other's service back well, nor getting the range of the net. Binzen, from the outset, followed everything forward and did his best work at the net in these three games. But these three were all that he got in the set. Washburn now found himself and began to locate the openings with his soft pat strokes, and as he mixed his pace and varied his length Binzen began his long period of running, that did not end until the match came to an end. The last two games in the set went to the Davis Cup player at love.

In the first set Dr. King had so much pace on the ball that Kashio was unable to handle his strokes with his usual control and piled up many errors. The American's fast-breaking service gave the other difficulty, and it was almost behind his first ball that Dr. King chose to come forward. It was an easy matter to dispose of Kashio's returns at the net in this first set, and Dr. King's volleying played a prominent part in capturing the frame at 6—2.

Makes Fewer Errors.

By the second set the Japanese had become accustomed to the other's service and speed and his errors became fewer and fewer, while his returns increased in pace. Dr. King now found himself aced repeatedly when he attempted to get to the barrier, both by rose overhead and passing shots down the line, so he confined his play almost entirely to the baseline, exchanging ground strokes with Kashio. The latter is at his best in an engagement of this sort, and he won rally after rally, almost entirely on the issue of steadiness. He won the set at 6—2.

The Japanese did not have the physical resources of the other, and in the third set he began to make the same repeated errors that he had in the first. Dr. King continued to stroke the ball with all the power at his command, and his speed at times was almost bewildering. Kashio did not have enough reserve left to meet this display of strength and yielded quickly at 6—2.

The summaries:

Special to The New York Times.

ARCOLA, N. J., June 22.—Mrs. F. C. Ogden of Yountakah won first net score prize today in the women's New Jersey Golf Association one-day tourney at the Arcola Country Club. Her score was 103—21—82.

Johnston Loses to Norton In Exhibition at Roehampton

ROEHAMPTON, England, June 22 (Associated Press).—In an exhibition lawn tennis match here today R. L. C. Norton of South Africa defeated William M. Johnston, the American star, 6—3, 6—4. The match was decided mutually at two sets instead of three in five, because both players were tired from their previous efforts. Earlier in the day Johnston defeated J. D. B. Wheatley of the British Davis Cup team in an exhibition match, 6—2, 6—4, 6—1. The American had something in hand throughout this match. Norton gave a fine display of placing down the side lines in his brief tilt with Johnston.

LANG WINS TITLE IN COLLEGE TENNIS

Columbia Star Defeats Marshall, a Teammate, for State Championship.

Jerry Lang of Columbia University won the first annual championship of the New York State Intercollegiate Tennis Association yesterday, when he defeated his teammate, Richard Marshall, in the final round of the tournament at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I. The victory was an overwhelming one, Marshall getting only two games in the three sets played. The score was 6—1, 6—0, 6—1.

Lang's two double faults in the opening game gave his teammate his first. Marshall's second and last game did not come until Lang had taken sixteen in a row, giving him the first set at 6—1, the second at love and a lead of 4—0 in the third. The winner's strokes were too severe and too well placed for the other to stand up against them.

Lang played to earn his points, never letting down in pace and shooting for the lines. Marshall, always on the defensive, was caught yards away from the ball again and again as the other filled the gaps with his speeding ground strokes. Whenever the opportunity was furnished, Lang made his way forward and received the other's ground strokes on the volley. His sharply angled chops and smashes went for aces almost invariably, and only occasionally did Marshall find the opening to the side or force him into error-making.

In the final round of the doubles the two Columbia men defeated Manuel Barredo and G. Lee of Cornell at 6—4, 6—4, 6—1. Barredo's severe hitting and the superior team-work of the Cornell pair enabled them to sweep through the first set without the loss of a game.

The Columbians met the attack at the net in the second set, and from then on the play was on close to even terms. The Morningside Heights team was the steadier of the two. Barredo made costly errors that often came right after he had scored on a pretty placement ace and offset whatever advantage his team had gained.

The summaries:

SINGLES—Final round—Jerry Lang, Columbia, defeated Richard Marshall, Columbia, 6—1, 6—0, 6—1.

DOUBLES—Final round—Lang and Marshall defeated Manuel Barredo and G. Lee, Cornell, 6—4, 6—4, 6—1.

ENGLISH TENNIS TEAM ARRIVES FOR TOURNEY

Oxford Cambridge Players Will Compete in Intercollegiate Play at Haverford.

The combined Oxford-Cambridge tennis team arrived from England on the Berengaria yesetrday for its second visit to this country. J. N. Lowry, Captain of the Cambridge team, headed the party of seven men, which included M. D. Horn and C. Ramaswami of Cambridge, and J. J. Lezard, S. F. Hepburn, A. S. Watt and A. N. Wilder of Oxford. Lowry, Horn and Hepburn were on the team that played here in 1921. Wilder is an American, Ramaswami is from India, and Lezard's home is in South Africa.

The British collegians were met at the pier by Edward S. Moss, Executive Secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, and Richard Bennett of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club, New Jersey. They left by motor car for the Orange Club, where they spent the afternoon in practice. This afternoon they will play a team match with their hosts and in the evening will be the guests of honor at a dinner dance to be given by the Board of Governors of the club. From the Orange Club the English tennis players will go to the Merion Cricket Club, Haverford, Pa., where they will compete in the intercollegiate championships. After that, they will appear in matches at a number of the tennis clubs in the East.

ENGLAND NAMES WOMEN FOR U. S. TENNIS PLAY

Miss McKane to Head Three Other Stars in Matches Against Americans.

Cable dispatches from the English Lawn Tennis Association to the U. S. L. T. A. announce that the personnel of the team of women players to be sent to this country this year to play the best American racquet stars of their sex will include Miss Kathleen McKane, the leading woman player in England, Mrs. Phyllis Satterthwaite, Mrs. Covell and a fourth member yet to be selected. Indications point to the possible choice of Miss Elizabeth Ryan, formerly of California, who has been playing on English and Continental courts with marked success for several years. If Miss Ryan is not a member of the team, the logical choice would appear to lie between Mrs. Geraldine Beamish and Mrs. Lambert Chambers.

According to present arrangements, the English team will sail on the Mauretania on July 28, arriving in New York, Aug. 3 or 4. In addition to the special team match between the best women players of the two nations, the English stars will enter the United States women's singles and doubles championships, to be staged in the new West Side Tennis Club stadium at Forest Hills, L. I., beginning the week of Aug. 13.

RICHARDS REACHES FINAL IN ENGLAND

Advances in London Title Tennis by Defeating Greig, 2-6, 6-0, 6-3.

HUNTER IS ELIMINATED

Loses to Jacob, Indian Davis Cup Player—Americans Later Win Match in Doubles.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—Vincent Richards, the young American lawn tennis player, today reached the semi-final round of the tournament for the championship of London at the Queen's Club, West Kensington, but the other American competitor, Frances T. Hunter, fell a victim to the skill of S. M. Jacob of India's Davis Cup team by 6—4, 1—6, 6—2.

This has prevented an all-American final tomorrow, but it has added greatly to the interest of the competition, which will be watched closely, for the line it will give on the prospects for the Wimbledon tourney, which opens tomorrow at the Queen's Club.

Richards had as his opponent D. M. Greig, and gave his supporters some anxious moments at the beginning, although eventually won by 2—6, 6—0, 6—3.

Greig was the first player of really high class to meet Richards in the tourney, and if such a thing could be suggested of one of the American's imperturbability, he seemed to be unduly aware of it. He captured the first game, but lost the next five right of the reel. Greig was playing superbly. He was hitting hard, but that was scarcely enough to account for Richard's failure.

Richards Loses First Set.

Greig lost only a single point in the third, fourth and fifth games and two in the sixth. Then, with his swift and accurate service, Richards won the next, but lost the eighth and the first set after some splendid volleying rallies which aroused the enthusiasm of the spectators.

This enthusiasm seemed to rouse the American, and in the second set he completely turned the tables. He put into his strokes all the power for which he is famous and wore Greig down. The Englishman seemed amazed at the vigor of the attack he had to meet and perceptibly eased off, with the result that the second set went to Richards, 6—2.

Richards maintained his supremacy in the deciding set. He won four of the first five games and then Greig pulled himself together. A dingdong struggle followed, each player winning his service game.

The American's lead, however, was never in danger and he captured the set, 6—3.

The victory of Jacob over Hunter was something of a surprise and was largely due to lack of steadiness on the part of the American in the third set.

Jacob took the first set with fine, accurate play, but the score, 6—4, shows that he had to fight hard for it.

Hunter more than retaliated in the second set. He let the Anglo-Indian take only one game and it was generally expected that he would win the third set as well, but with victory well within his reach he lost his precision. Jacob, steady as a rock, kept placing long, hard drives exactly where he wanted them, while Hunter found the net with disappointing frequency. The result was that Jacob won the set and match, 6—2, and must face Richards tomorrow.

Americans Win Doubles.

A very fine match was played later by Richards and Hunter against S. N. Doust and P. M. Davson, and the Americans won by 8—6, 7—5, 6—2. They had to fight hard for their victory. They forced the game from the start, and though the Englishmen, for a time, gave the Americans quite as much as they got, they were steadily worn down.

Davson is one of the veterans of English tennis and he could hardly stand the pace set by the vigorous young Richards. At the end of the eleventh game of the second set Richards sent a tremendous drive to Davson, who thought it was out and let it alone. The umpire declared it was in, but there was some doubt about it. The Americans, not wishing to take a point at the crisis of the match in such a way, wanted to call it a "let," but the umpire ruled that the point was fairly theirs and the match continued.

Mrs. Beamish advanced in the women's singles by defeating Mrs. Barron, 6—4, 6—1, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, formerly of California, eliminated Mrs. Satterthwaite by 6—4, 6—3. Miss Ryan, paired with P. M. Davson, won in the fourth round of the mixed doubles, defeating Mrs. O'Neill and Colonel Berger, 6—3, 6—1. In another mixed doubles match, Mrs. Covell and S. M. Jacob triumphed over Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston and M. C. Dizer by 6—2, 6—2.

Three of the four women to visit America have been chosen—Miss K. McKane, Mrs. Satterthwaite and Mrs. Covell, who is better known in tennis circles as Miss P. L. Howkins. H. A. Salwell, Secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association, will accompany them as captain and manager and they will sail July 28 on board the Mauretania.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 22.—Champion William T. Tilden 2d today won his way into the semi-final round of the tennis tournament for the Great Lakes championship. Tilden won three matches, eliminating Henderson, Carson and Gowans, all Buffalo entrants. In the doubles Tilden and his youthful protégé, Sandy Wiener of Philadelphia, went into the semi-final round and tomorrow will meet R. Lindley Murray, former national champion, and Jack Castle, Buffalo champion, for the place in the final bracket.

Manuel Alonso, Spanish Davis Cup player, who accompanied Tilden to Buffalo, is a semi-finalist in the singles, and tomorrow plays Murray in the lower half of the draw. Tilden plays Castle, Buffalo titleholder. Chuck Garland, former Davis Cup player, failed to take part in the singles, but with Alonso in the doubles won a place in the semi-final brackets. Tomorrow they will play Sam Hardy of New York and Harry Wick of Cleveland.

Sandy Wiener and Young Strachan, another Philadelphia boy, reached the semi-finals in the boys' championship. Tomorrow Wiener plays Wilcox Adlaf of Buffalo and Strachan meets Marynowski, a Buffalo high school player.

Zev Is Definitely Named As Latonia Derby Starter

LATONIA, Ky., June 22.—The Latonia Derby, to be run on Saturday, June 30, has taken on added importance with the announcement that Zev, winner of the Kentucky Derby, is coming here next week and will be a starter in the Latonia feature. The race is at a mile and a half, for a purse of $15,000 added money, and eighteen of the best thoroughbreds have been named as probable contenders. They are Zev, Bud Lerner, Martingale, Dunlin, Chickvale, Rialto, Little Colt, Triumph, Aspiration, Bright Tomorrow, The Clown, Chittagong, Prince K., Bo McMillan, In Memoriam, General Thatcher, Prince Til Til and Metric.

MISS WAGNER WINS OPEN DOUBLES TITLE

Pairs With Miss MacDonald and Captures University Heights Tourney.

Miss Marie Wagner of Yonkers and Miss Mayme MacDonald of Seattle, Wash., won the first annual open doubles tournament of the University Heights Tennis Club yesterday, defeating Miss Margaret Grove and Mrs. David C. Mills in the final round at 6—2, 6—2. The winning pair was clearly the superior and played well within themselves throughout the match.

Play in the mixed doubles reached the final round, one team gaining this bracket. Mrs. William H. Pritchard and George H. Whitlock, after unexpectedly defeating Miss Grove and J. Harry Steinkampf at 4—6, 6—2, 6—4, reached the semi-finals through the default of Miss Bessie Holden and Elisha James. In the other semi-final Mrs. Samuel Waring and William Fischer will meet Miss Mayme MacDonald and Albert J. Ostender, the winner to play Mrs. Pritchard and Whitlock in the final at 5:30 this afternoon, following the final in the singles. This match will go on at 4:30 and will bring together Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Edna Hauselt.

Miss Wagner's steadiness and court craft, combined with Miss MacDonald's hard stroking and court covering, were much too good for Miss Grove and Mrs. Mills. The latter pair found it almost impossible to get anything past its opponents and for the greater part of the time was fighting on the defensive, striving to handle the speed of the other's strokes and get the ball back over the net safely. It was a losing struggle, for neither Miss Wagner nor Miss MacDonald faltered at any time, maintaining their aggressive stroking to the end and seldom being guilty of error making that was not forced.

Miss Grove did good work at the net in spots, cutting off some of Miss Wagner's ground strokes with well-made volleys to unreturnable corners of the service court. Mrs. Mills throughout the match was running to her baseline to make returns of a difficult nature, but these efforts proved of little avail against the sustained speed and control of her opponents.

The summaries:

WOMEN'S DOUBLES.

Final Round—Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Mayme MacDonald defeated Miss Margaret Grove and Mrs. David C. Mills, 6—2, 6—2.

FRANCE GAINS LEAD IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Defeats Ireland in Doubles Tennis Match and Is in Front by 3 to 2.

DUBLIN, June 22 (Associated Press). France tonight led Ireland two matches to one in their second round of the Davis Cup tie, and the visiting lawn tennis experts need but one victory in tomorrow's singles to win the round. The successful team will meet Switzerland in the upper bracket semi-final of the European zone competition.

J. Brugnon and R. La Coste, of the French team, defeated the Hon Cecil Campbell and S. F. Scroope of Ireland, 6—2, 6—3, 14—12, in the doubles today.

Campbell was the weak man of the Irish pair. He seemed unable to strike his usual stride and failed to co-operate with the beautiful net work displayed by Scroope. The Frenchmen took the first two sets with little trouble, showing great accuracy and speed. Brugnon's service was fast and puzzling, and he played better tennis than La Coste.

The Irish pair made a desperate effort to save the match in the last set, but Campbell missed some easy returns, and played others into the hands of Brugnon, giving the Frenchman an opportunity to use his famous forehand. Brugnon won every one of his service games.

One of the surprises of the day was when Harvey Lasew's five-year-old hunter won out in several classes over older and better-known horses. In the amateur saddle class Amber Crest, ridden by its owner, Mortimer B. Fuller of Scranton, Pa., won the blue ribbon over fifteen other good horses.

There were several spills during the day, but no one was hurt. George B. Cortelyou is President of the Huntington Bay Club and Frederick D. Mackay is Chairman of this year's Horse Show Committee.

KIRKBY ADVANCES IN GOLF TOURNEY

Reaches Semi-Finals in Apawamis Play by Defeating Parker and Fearey.

COMSTOCK BEATS BOWLES

Downs Clinton in Afternoon Round—Cummings and Lloyd Also Come Through.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., June 22.—Oswald Kirkby of Kinckerbocker and Englewood, who won low medal honors yesterday in the annual invitation golf tournament at the Apawamis Club with a par card of 71, was forced to obtain another par in the first round here today and won his second match only after a struggle which carried him to the twentieth hole. In the morning Kirkby was pitted against Donald Parker of Garden City Golf and finally conquered his opponent on the home green. The former metropolitan and Jersey State champion reached the semi-final round by defeating M. L. Fearey of Garden City Golf on the twentieth green in the afternoon.

The others to gain places in the semi-finals were H. W. Comstock, the Williams College star who eliminated Chester Bowles, Yale captain-elect, in the morning round and B. D. Clinton of Manhattan in the afternoon match; Dexter Cummings of Yale, who advanced at the expense of H. J. Topping of Westchester-Biltmore, and E. E. Sturges of Scarsdale, and L. M. Lloyd of Greenwich, who put out F. R. Holland of Wee-Burn in the morning play, and Laddie McMahon of Yale this afternoon. Tomorrow's matches for places in the final bracket will be between Kirkby and Comstock and Cummings and Lloyd.

Kirkby's two matches were easily the outstanding features of the day's play. A fair sized gallery watched his efforts in the morning against Don Parker, and in the afternoon he and Fearey were followed by practically all the spectators who braved the scorching sun to follow any match. In the morning play Parker succeeded in keeping pace with the medalist until the third hole. He dropped this one and also the next, but won the fifth, leaving him one down. Kirkby regained his two-up advantage by taking the sixth and then the struggle started in earnest. On the seventh Parker smoked his drive into the rocks but made a perfect pitch shot on his second which landed him within thirty feet of the cup. However, Kirkby lay six feet from the hole on his second and partly stymied his opponent. Parker did the unexpected by caroming off his opponent's ball and sinking his putt for a birdie 3 and so stunned Kirby that he missed his short putt and lost the hole.

Parker Makes Birdie.

Parker squared the match on the eighth by sinking another thirty-footer for another birdie, while Kirkby took a par 3. Kirkby went a hole in the lead on the ninth by an excellent chip with a mashie niblick which netted him a dead tie for a birdie 4. Parker came back on the first hole of the homeward journey and again squared the match with a birdie 3. Par scores seemed useless against such golf as the two were exhibiting at this time. On the eleventh hole Parker went into the lead for the first time when Kirkby was over the green on his second. Kirkby again brought the match to even by taking the next, his par 3 giving him the hole. The thirteenth, they halved, and they were all square with four holes to play.

On the fourteenth Kirkby showed a brilliant exhibition of his long game by reaching the 520-yard green on his second, and then he barely missed an eagle when his third hung on the lip of the cup. However, he won the hole with a birdie 4 against Parker's par 5, and was 1 up. Kirkby obtained another birdie on the next, and when the sixteenth was halved he was dormie. However, Parker had not yet given up hope, and took the seventeenth when Kirkby hooked his iron and took a 6. Parker had a chance to halve the match on the home hole, but his third hung on the lip and his par 4 was equaled by Kirkby, who won by 1 up.

Parker	3	4	5	4	5	4	3	5	4	36 73

Kirkby's afternoon match against Fearey was another closely contested affair. Finding himself two down at the turn, Kirkby halved the next three holes and then took the lead by winning the next three with two birdies and a par. However, Fearey won both the sixteenth and seventeenth, putting him one up with one to play, and Kirkby barely squared the match on the home hole by a magnificent pitch from the rough which left him a six-foot-putt for a birdie. He missed, but Fearey also missed, and Kirkby's par 4 was sufficient to win the hole. They halved the nineteenth after Kirby made another splendid recovery after hooking his drive, and the match was forced to the twentieth.

Fearey's Chance Lost.

Fearey's second here ruined his chances, for his approach was over the green and into a bunker, while Kirkby lay on the green on his second with a fairly short putt. He took a par 4, but Fearey was short zoning out of the trap and needed five before he could find the cup.

Their cards:

Fearey	4	4	3	4	6	4	2	4	5	4	45	82

Kirkby's form during the tournament has been noteworthy. With his qualifying round of par yesterday and his two rounds today he has averaged 73 strokes for the course—a good score on any layout. Tomorrow he will face a hard match in the semi-final round when he meets Comstock. Many believe that the college golfer will be able to take the measure of the medalist, and in that case two intercollegiate stars may be seen in the final round tomorrow afternoon, as Cummings of Yale is favored to defeat Lloyd in the other semi-final.

The play-off for the three places that remained open in the championship flight this morning, in which there were six players who obtained 76s in the qualifying round yesterday, was shortly decided. Only one hole was required. MacKay, Sturges and Lloyd all obtained par 4s, and Adams, Halsell and Stevens were demoted to the second sixteen.

HAGEN CRITICISES TREATMENT ABROAD

Says Gallery Applauded When He Missed a Shot—Sarazen Also Returns.

Walter Hagen, former British open golf champion, who failed to retain his crown in the recent tournament at Troon, Scotland, and Gene Sarazen, national open champion, who also competed in the British classic, arrived from England yesterday on the Berengaria.

Hagen criticised the treatment accorded him during his efforts to retain his laurels. "I am sorry to say that I did not receive the treatment which would make me anxious to return. Whenever I missed a shot the gallery applauded and some of them cheered, which, in my opinion, was very unsportsmanlike."

Sarazen declares that he had no excuses to offer for his poor showing at Troon and stated that bad luck and the weather were against him. He added that the British gallery treated him splendidly.

DEMPSEY PUNISHES SPARRING PARTNERS

Wray, Giant Oklahoman, and Wolpin, Both Recruits, Fail to Last a Round.

BIG CROWD SEES CHAMPION

Hundreds of Visiting Shriners Witness the Workout—Titleholder Appears Slow.

Special to The New York Times.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 21.—Jack Dempsey's punch was on exhibition again today. With hundreds of visiting Shriners constituting the greater part of the largest crowd that ever has attended a training session by the world's heavyweight champion, Dempsey exhibited his punching prowess on Big Hen Wray, Sayre (Okla.) giant, and Bill Wolpin, Appleton (Wis.) 170-pounder. Wray measured his 7 feet 2 inches on the dampened ring canvas after a brief scrimmage in the first round, Wolpin twice went to the canvas under the impact of Dempsey's punches. It was a rough day for the sparring partners of the champion and an enjoyable day for the visiting nobles and just plain, ordinary folks who trooped to the camp to see Dempsey in action outdoors.

Dempsey went through eight rounds of work. He opened with a round of shadow boxing, and then took on George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, and Billy Wells, English welterweight, each for two rounds. Following this, Wray was led to the slaughter like a lamb. After an incomplete round with Wray Dempsey shadow boxed while waiting for Wolpin to enter the ring. A single round with the Wisconsin lad completed the titleholder's day.

Despite his exhibition of hitting strength Dempsey today did not impress critics with his form. The general impression was that he was not in the same class with the Dempsey of Toledo. He appeared to be about half as good as he should be at this stage of his training. His legs formed the primary defect discovered by the critics. They do not seem as strong as they were against Georges Carpentier two years ago in Jersey City. The lower extremities have become loose and flabby where they once were muscularly hard and flexible. Particularly is this true of Dempsey's thighs, where the loose flesh shakes jellylike with the impulsive step taken by the champion. Dempsey's hitting, too, is below par, in the estimation of these critics, and his defense is not what it should be.

Champion Appears Slow.

These defects must be overcome through a campaign of hard work and plenty of it in the training time at Dempsey's disposal before he enters the ring against Tom Gibbons at Shelby. Otherwise Dempsey will experience a much harder battle than he or any of his admirers anticipate.

Against Godfrey and Wells this afternoon Dempsey did not appear so fast or accurate with his punches as he had on several occasions in the past. At one stage of his two rounds with Godfrey the champion actually looked tired and sluggish. This was in the first round and may be attributed to Dempsey's slowness in getting warmed up. Whatever it was, it was noticeable to the critics and caused comment.

Near the end of the first round, however, Dempsey seemed to recover and he tore into Godfrey with a vicious attack which had the blood coming from Godfrey's nose and mouth when the round ended. In the second session Dempsey blocked many of Godfrey's punches and took others on his arms or shoulders, but Godfrey jabbed successfully several times and upset Dempsey's attack. At close quarters Dempsey pounded the body wickedly. With a right and then a left and right to the jaw, Dempsey staggered Godfrey.

Wells stepped about and around the champion with his accustomed speed in the first round of their session, which was the third round of sparring for Dempsey. The English welterweight annoyed the champion with a ceaseless attack with both fists. But Dempsey seemed content to assume the defensive and evaded many of Wells's blows by twisting away from the punches and drawing back out of range. In the second round Wells resumed his speedy work, but Dempsey discouraged him quickly with a right to the jaw which staggered Wells. Soon after Dempsey nailed Wells with a left to the chin, which sent him spinning away.

Dempsey's work against Wray and Wolpin was negligible from a conditioning standpoint. Dempsey didn't even receive a good workout in this part of the day's program. Wray is a novice and acted like one. He had an ambition to box with the champion in a training camp bout, even against the best wishes of his manager, Tex McCarthy. Wray had his ambition satisfied. When he woke up, it was with the ejaculation, "Man, he sure can hit."

Wray Soon Discouraged.

Wray was the only one who doubted this before the bout. The doubt was quickly removed. Wray took his "stance" against the champion with his left held out and his right pressed tightly against his chest. He sparred timidly for a moment just like a novice. Dempsey tried a left hook for the jaw and missed. Wray poked a weak left to the face. The champion feinted for the body and then reached with the left again for the jaw, but again missed and Wray blinked nervously. Dempsey then quietly sized up the seven feet two inches of fistic ambition in front of him and with a tigerish leap struck with a short left hook which landed flush. Wray stiffened and toppled and it was with difficulty he was revived. A red lump showed on Wray's face where Dempsey's fist had crashed home on the right jaw bone. The giant wobbled about with Dempsey trying hard to keep him erect. Dempsey brushed the jaw with a light left and later with a grazing right, but the light blows threatened to sink Wray again and then the "lights out" signal sounded and the bout was over before the completion of a full round.

Wolpin had a rough voyage for the short time he was in the ring with Dempsey. The champion floored him with a left hook to the jaw and all the fight left Wolpin. He slipped down trying to get away from a left, and when Dempsey nailed him with a right to the jaw, Wolpin went to his glove tips, down for the second time. Then a halt was called and the champion's workout was over.

The ring in which Dempsey sparred was of uncertain footing due to the heavy rains of the past two days and the absence of a drying sun. Several times Dempsey skidded on the wet canvas as he danced about the ring. But he always held his feet.

Johnny Kilbane, former world's featherweight champion, visited the camp today and acted as referee for the bouts. The Cleveland veteran is here writing for a newspaper syndicate.

MONTANA WOMEN SEEK TO PREVENT BIG BOUT

Appeal to Attorney General to Forestall Dempsey-Gibbons Match.

ANACONDA, Mont., June 22.—The Resolutions Committee of the Montana State Federation of Women's Clubs, in session here, today submitted a resolution calling upon the Attorney General to take action not only to prevent the heavyweight championship ring battle between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, July 4, but also to forestall a proposed bull fight at Sydney.

The resolution stated that an inquiry had revealed a failure of the Boxing Commission law to repeal Section 11, 293 of the Penal Code forbidding prizefights.

Various speakers at the convention attacked the match.

Internal Revenue Collectors To Take Tickets at Shelby

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 22.—Holders of tickets to the Dempsey-Gibbons bout at Shelby July 4 will deliver their pasteboards at the gates to deputies of C. L. Rasmusson, Collector of Internal Revenue in Montana, according to his announcement. Collector Rasmusson said he had notified the fight management that his men would take the tickets at the gates and he would have fifteen men in Shelby on July 4 to represent the Government in the matter of seat sales. The Collector has served notice here that all tickets sold at places other than the Shelby box office must bear the name, written or printed on the back, of the agency at which they are purchased. Tickets already sold without this rule having been observed will be valid, he said, the agency alone being responsible for any violation of the Internal Revenue Department's regulations.

PHYSICIANS TO TEST WILLARD ON MONDAY

Jersey Boxing Commission Names Three Doctors to Conduct Examination.

Tex Rickard yesterday was notified by Thomas C. Kilduff, Hudson County Inspector for the New Jersey Boxing Commission, that he had arranged for three physicians to examine Jess Willard on Monday afternoon at 2:30. Rickard said that he would immediately communicate with Willard and that he was sure the former heavyweight champion would agree to submit to the examination. Kilduff's letter to Rickard follows:

"In accordance with the ruling of State Athletic Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee, providing for a physical examination of Jess Willard by three physicians to determine his physical fitness for the contemplated boxing exhibition with Luis Angel Firpo in Jersey City, I am designating 2:30 P. M., Monday, June 25, 1923, as the time for the examination. Said examination shall take place in the office of Dr. Theodore L. Lemmerz, 143 Magnolia Avenue, Jersey City, Dr. Howard R. Dukes, 208 Kearny Avenue, Kearny, and Dr. F. M. Childs of 1,222 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken, with Dr. Lemmerz will examine him. You will kindly instruct Willard to present himself for examination."

Rickard declared there would be no hitch in the matter; that Willard would welcome the opportunity to convince the public at large that he is physical fit to engage Firpo. "Jess is in excellent condition," said Rickard. "I knew before I matched Willard to box Floyd Johnson in the Milk Fund show at the Yankee Stadium that he could get into fighting shape, but he has surprised me by the excellence of his condition. He is in better shape right now than he has been at any time since I have known him."

Willard went through his customary hour's work in the gymnasium of the Columbus Sporting Club in Yonkers yesterday afternoon. He will begin boxing today, when he will engage in a six-round sparring session with Cliff Kramer. Ray Archer, Willard's business representative, expects Tiny Herman to arrive here on Monday and he expects to have two other sparring partners ready to work with Willard next week.

Firpo is due to arrive in this city today. He has notified his trainer, Jimmy DeForest, that he will begin training in the gymnasium at Madison Square Garden tomorrow afternoon.

WILDE PLANS TO SAIL FOR ENGLAND JULY 3

Boxer's Business Partner Asserts That He Will Never Return to the Ring.

Although he has not yet fully recovered from the beating he received from Pancho Villa while losing the flyweight championship of the world at the Polo Grounds last Monday night, Jimmy Wilde yesterday announced that he had made arrangements to sail for England on the Aquitania a week from Tuesday, July 3, with his wife. David Hughes, his business partner, and Ben Wilson, his trainer, will sail on Tuesday on the Berengaria.

Hughes said that Wilde is still suffering from the effects of the beating, but that he is in no danger. He still bears the scars of battle, but is gradually improving and will be ready to sail a week from Tuesday. Hughes emphatically denied that Wilde is considering continuing in the boxing game. It had been rumored that the little Welshman might go into training in the hope of getting a return bout with Villa.

"There is nothing in the report," said Hughes. "Wilde is through with boxing. We are going back to England to devote all of our time to our business interests."

DAVE SHADE BEATS KELLY.

Gains Decision Over Bronx Boxer by Scoring in Early Rounds.

Dave Shade of California, who was recently designated as world's champion welterweight by the New York State Athletic Commission, won the judges' decision over Jimmy Kelly of the Bronx last night at the Steeplechase A. A. at Rockaway Beach. A large crowd witnessed the bout which went the full twelve rounds.

Although Shade failed to score a knockout or a knockdown for a partial count, the Californian nevertheless outpointed Kelly in easy fashion, scoring repeatedly with left jabs and hooks to the face and body. Kelly rallied in the last two rounds and landed several well directed blows, but Shade's advantage was too great to be overcome. Nick Latoruta knocked out Frankie Barrett in the fourth round of the six-round semi-final after Barrett had led in the early milling.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

GIBBONS DOES HARD TRAINING OUTDOORS

Covers Five Miles Over Muddy Roads, Pounds Bag and Punches Sparring Partner.

STRESSES DEFENSIVE WORK

Challenger of Dempsey Evades Fierce Blows in Workout of Ten Rounds at Shelby.

Special to The New York Times.

SHELBY, Mont., June 22.—The elements relented here today and Tommy Gibbons got in a full day of training outdoors. He covered five miles on the muddy roads in the morning, and in the afternoon pounded the heavy punching bag and an assorted group of sparring partners for a total of ten rounds. He started off with the big sandbag, and after he had almost ripped it to pieces in two rounds he turned his attention to Bud Gorman. Gorman proved a more formidable opponent and held his chief even through a slow first round, only to weaken in the next and to retire winded and discomfited.

Jimmy Delaney then essayed the difficult task of landing a solid blow or two on the wraving challenger, but tried every trick his wily teacher, Mike Gibbons, had ever taught him without result. His sparring partners just can't hit Gibbons, and as Delaney said after he left the ring this afternoon: "How're you to do anything against a man you can't hit?"

Gibbons boxes differently every day, and today was his day to stress his defense. He kept himself covered up all afternoon, started a few punches on his own account and was seemingly content to stay out of the other fellow's way. Once, after he had crashed a sharp left hook to Delaney's jaw, he apologized. Evidently he had instructed his assistants to tear into him with the best they had without fear of consequences.

Manley Fails to Land.

If these were Gibbons's orders, George Manley, the latest arrival in camp, obeyed them to the letter. No sooner was he through the ropes than he began lunging at Gibbons with his curious swinging blows. Any one of these efforts would have been good for a knockout had it landed, but not one found its mark. Manley hit everything in the ring but Gibbons. He would come rushing in, swinging both arms, only to discover when it was too late, that his quarry was somewhere else. A foolish look would come over his face, and he would grit his teeth and try again, but the result was always the same.

The boxing program was concluded with the usual David and Goliath act between Gibbons and Little Lakey Morrow, after which Gibbons ducked through the ropes, hurried through his shower, took Tommy junior by the hand and went home to play with the baby.

Mike Collins announced here this afternoon that Jack Thompson, a colored heavyweight from St. Joseph, Mo., would meet George Godfrey of the Dempsey camp in one of the preliminaries on the July 4 program.

The task of providing parking space for the special trains expected in for the fight was virtually completed today by J. F. Beckett, who has charge of the Shelby arrangements, the arrangements being made by the Great Northern. He said this evening that the three emergency platforms which have been built to facilitate the unloading and loading of the trains were ready for use.

Trains to Unload at Verden.

Besides the three platforms in Shelby, the trains from Canada will be unloaded at Verden, which is about two miles west of the arena, at the junction of the main line of the Great Northern and the Canadian branch. The platforms and the entire parking yards are to be lighted by powerful arc lights. These lights are to be strung around the outside and through the centre of the temporary yards, and in addition, six search lights will help to keep the area illuminated. The lights will be operated by a 500-kilowatt emergency power plant now being installed by the railroad company.

Officials of the Pullman Company are also in Shelby laying plans for a first aid station, which is to be built in the section of the yards nearest the arena. This station will co-operate with the field hospital which is to be maintained by the Great Northern. Dr. D. S. McKenzie will be in charge of the hospital and he will have a staff of doctors and nurses to assist him.

E. H. Wilde, general passenger agent of the Great Northern, who was in Shelby recently on a tour of inspection, has returned to St. Paul. He intends to come back here the first of next week to take personal charge of the passenger situation until after the bout.

BERMUDA CRICKETERS WIN TWO-DAY MATCH

Crescents Improve in Batting, but Are Defeated by an Innings and 33 Runs.

Although the cricketers of the Crescent Athletic Club improved appreciably in their batting in the second day's play of the match with the team of the Bermuda Athletic Association of Hamilton, Bermuda, they were defeated by an innings and 33 runs. The Crescents' first innings was completed with a total of 131 runs. As the Crescent team was 118 runs short of its opponent's total, it was compelled to follow on under the rules of cricket governing a two-day match. Its second effort fell considerably below its first and the team was put out again for 85 runs.

Yesterday's match completed the tour of the Bermudans, who will sail for home next Wednesday.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 22.—After an uneventful journey the seven starters in the annual race for the James Craig perpetual trophy finished the first leg of the event here late this afternoon. The yachts left New York from the Columbia Yacht Club at 7 o'clock this morning and the last of their number arrived here at the Atlantic City Yacht Club at 6:43 tonight. The distance is 107 miles, or approximately 95 knots. The Siwash III., owned by Commodore C. A. Schieren, Columbia Yacht Club, was the first to finish the first leg, arriving here at 2:31:30. This craft, which was formerly owned by the United States Government and served as a submarine chaser, was nearly two hours ahead of the Nueva, belonging to Thomas W. Brigham of the Shelter Island Yacht Club. Her finish time was 4:00:30.

The Siwash III. is a Class C cruiser, the class for boats with a waterline length of more than 90 feet, while the Nueva is listed in Class A, the division for yachts with a length of from 50 to 60 feet. The next three cruisers to finish were also rated in Class A and checked in as follows: Nick, owned by C. J. Hagadorn of the Columbia Yacht Club, 4:21:00; Spendthrift II., belonging to W. R. Halsey of the Orienta Yacht Club, 4:27:00, and the Venture, owned by Harry Porter, Orienta Yacht Club, 4:49:15.

The Fleetwood III., the property of J. P. Stoltz of the New York Motor Boat Club, the only entrant in Class B, the division for cruisers with a waterline length of from 60 to 90 feet, crossed the Atlantic City line at 5:00:03. The Kodak, owned by R. J. Haslinger of the New York Yacht Club, entered in Class A, was the last to finish at 6:43:06.

The boats will start back on the second leg of their ocean voyage at 7 o'clock Sunday morning. While here members of the yachting parties will be entertained by Commodore Allen B. Endicott of the Shore Club. There is a dinner for the visitors tonight and a dance is scheduled for tomorrow evening at the Lulu Temple Yacht Club.

LAST TWO YACHTS ARRIVE AT BERMUDA

Cablegram Reports Safety of Chaos and Isabel Q. at Finish of Race.

According to cable messages which were received in New York yesterday, the two yachts entered in the Bermuda race and over which some concern had been felt because they did not put in an appearance with the remainder of the fleet at the island, have arrived safely at Bermuda. The Isabel Q. owned by Francis Minot and entered in a special match race against the big schooner Ladena, reached Bermuda last Tuesday night. The Chaos, belonging to John S. Ball, an unofficial starter, arrived at Hamilton Thursday.

Relatives and friends of the yatchsmen on these two boats have been worried, fearing that some accident had been met with by the craft. This was especially true in the case of the Chaos, as the committee in charge of inspecting the yachts at New London on the day previous to the race decided that the little craft could not be passed. Her owner, however, after an appeal to Chairman C. A. Marsland had been fruitless, started with the fleet of twenty-two other yachts. She did not cross the line, however, but sailed to one side.

The Chaos will be sold at Bermuda, one of the cablegrams states, and the yachtsmen will return by steamer. She is a rather old boat, and the committee, after giving her a thorough inspection, believed that if storms weather were encountered on the downward voyage her crew would be in danger. All of the other yachts in the race, which was won by the yawl Memory, finished close together. The Memory crossed the line early Sunday morning.

LEONARD MUST BOX WHITE IN JERSEY

Boxing Commission Threatens to Suspend Champion Unless He Meets Chicagoan.

NEW YORK BODY TO ACT

Will Take Up Tangle Which Affects Tendler Bout at Meeting Next Tuesday.

New Jersey has assumed the initiative in the Leonard-Tendler-White boxing tangle. Instead of holding a joint conference with the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday the solons across the Hudson River, through Platt Adams, old-time Olympic champion athlete and now chief inspector of the New Jersey Boxing Commission, notified the New York State body that unless Benny Leonard fulfills his contract to box Charley White the world's lightweight champion will be suspended in the Skeeter State. Upon receiving the notification the New York commission announced that it would take up the matter at its next meeting, which will be held on Tuesday.

The official statement issued by the New York State Athletic Commission follows:

Mr. Platt Adams, Chief Inspector of the New Jersey Boxing Commission, notified the New York State Athletic Commission that the Jersey commission would suspend Benny Leonard if he did not fulfill the unexpired contract to box Charlie White. This matter will be taken up by the New York State Athletic Commission at its next meeting.

No intimation was given as to what attitude the New York commission would take in the matter, but it is believed that it will invite Tex Rickard, who holds the contract with Leonard and White; Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, and Ike Dorgan, White's Eastern representative, to attend the meeting on Tuesday and state their cases.

In the past the New York and New Jersey commissions have worked together—that is, they have concurred in their rulings. A boxer suspended in New Jersey has been suspended in New York, and vice versa. But, so far as is known, there is no ironclad agreement between the two commissions, and whether the local body will see fit to take such drastic action is problematical.

When told of the notification received by the State Athletic Commission, Rickard declined to make any statement. He said that he preferred to wait until after the local solons had taken official action. He said that he had not yet received any invitation to attend the meeting.

Gibson reiterated his former statement that he is not averse to a bout with White, but he declared that he did not consider the Chicagoan a drawing card, and that if Rickard insisted upon promoting such a bout it would have to be under a new arrangement.

"I will sign for such a bout, but it will have to be held under a different agreement," said Gibson. "White's defeats since signing to box Leonard have detracted from his drawing powers and I believe that it is only fair to Leonard that a new agreement be entered into. Regard White as a set-up for Leonard and I think the public does, too.

"Furthermore, I will not agree to permit Leonard to box White before the Tendler bout. I am convinced that the public regards Tendler as the leading contender for the title, and therefore, I am determined to go through with the match I have made for the Yankee Stadium on July 23."

Like Rickard, Gibson declined to comment on the action of the New Jersey Commission, declaring that he preferred to wait until the New York Commission had taken official action in the matter.

In local boxing circles attention was called to the fact that the notification from Platt Adams did not stipulate that Leonard would have to box White before meeting Tendler, and the opinion was expressed that should Leonard agree to box White after he has met Tendler the matter will be settled amicably.

While Gibson did not say so in so many words, he intimated when he mentioned a new agreement that Leonard would insist upon a big guarantee for the bout and would not consider working on a percentage basis alone. Evidently the original contract to box White called for Leonard to work on a percentage basis.

MORE THAN 25,000 SEE YALE TRIUMPH

Leader, the Coach Brought to New Haven From West, Cheered by Elis.

JOYOUS EVENT CELEBRATED

Many Yachting Parties Attend the Races—J. P. Morgan and Guests, Wearing Crimson, on Train.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—More than 25,000 persons, representing every walk of life in this cosmopolitan country, gathered here today to witness the spectacle for which Yale rowing adherents have waited for many years. A considerable portion of that 25,000 is tonight singing the praises of the sterling Yale eights—varsity, freshman and junior—which swept the river clean in the three races—a feat which has not been accomplished since the dim past. And in the singing and cheering that are being done by the Yale graduates and undergraduates, back from all sections of the world to witness Yale's rejuvenation in the sport in which she once excelled, the name of Ed Leader is heard again and again.

"To the victor belong the spoils"—and the spoils are all in possession of the Eli oarsmen taught a new stroke, taught by a new coach brought out of the Far West to lead the Blue out of the rowing slump in which it wandered aimlessly but a few years ago. Every one is paying tribute to this comparatively youthful rowing mentor who, from a local reputation less than a year ago, has sprung into a national figure in the annals of rowing by the showing his crews have made this year, and especially by the miracle they performed on the Thames today when they not only won but humiliated the Crimson in three races.

Yale men tonight are rechanting that old saying which described this ancient whaling port as a place where Yale wins rowing victories and where Harvard also rows. It has been years since they were able to use the expression without reservation.

Crowd Arrives Late.

This little Connecticut town was slow to awaken to the fact that today was race day, for the majority of those who arrived yesterday slept late after the prerace festivities of the night before. The advent of the automobile as a mode of transportation has detracted from the prerace celebrations that used to be such a feature. But before the morning races started they began coming. Those who had arrived on their private yachts the night before were ashore early to board the canopied observation trains, and among the parties which commanded the attention of those gathered on the shore were J. P. Morgan and his guests from the Corsair, the largest steam yacht at the races. They wore the Crimson colors. The Morgan party took its place on the train, but throughout the day the members were given little opportunity to cheer.

Shortly after the Morgans made their way shoreward came Henry L. Sears of Boston, Commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club, and his guests from aboard the schooner Constellation; H. L. Pratt and his party, and the Astor party from the motor yacht Nourmahal, belonging to Vincent Astor.

Fine Yachts on River.

New London has seldom seen a finer collection of water craft than which was gathered here for today's races. From the railroad bridge, which was the finishing point of the race, they extended in a double lane, marking the outer boundaries of the course, up to a point almost as far as the naval base, two miles away.

They numbered hundreds, including the leaders in their class, and their value was millions. Chief among those lying at anchorage just off the course, in addition to those mentioned, were the houseboat Whileaway, owned by Harry Payne Whitney, flaunting a huge Yale pennant; the motor yacht Dolphyn of C. K. G. Billings; the steam yacht St. Elmo belonging to W. M. H. Todd of New York; the new schooner Wildfire; the Cythera, Mrs. Harry Harkness's steam yacht; Commodore Harold Vanderbilt's Vagrant; the schooner Sonnica, owned by H. S. Shonnard, and the schooner-yacht Shawna, belonging to Dr. Seth Milliken of New York.

The incoming trains, particularly the specials running from Boston, brought thousands from New England way and specials and regulars from New York added their quota. By noon the town was filled with a jostling, jamming crowd—a typical New London crowd—a crowd that continued hundreds on hundreds of names that one comes across in the social register. The vast majority had some allegiance to one of the two crews. Hotel lobbies were crowded and the scene of countless reunions. At noontime the early comers were joined by those who came by automobile and who delayed their arrival purposely in order to avoid the rush. Dining room space was at a premium and there were many who were forced to appease their appetites in strange places and from the stock of the ever-accommodating venders of "fresh ham and fried chicken."

The two observation trains, run by the New Haven and the Central Vermont, were crowded to capacity for the varsity race, and only a few tickets were available, those in the hands of scalpers, when the two color-laden caravans were ready to pull out for the varsity race. It was a quiet crowd, this one that watched Leader's men vanquish the foe. Scarcely a cheer until the Harvard quarters were reached. Then the Harvard adherents found their voices, the Elis responding with the famous "Good Night, Harvard" chant and the release of large clusters of blue and crimson balloons which floated like huge bunches of grapes over the Yale quarters was all that there was to break the monotony of the long wait for the river to calm.

During the race itself there was but little cheering, not as much as in former years. It was a victory that was confidently expected by the Yale rooters, feared by the Harvard men. It was not until the very end that there was anything like the noise that one is accustomed to hear at the Thames classic. Then it broke out into a roar. The train moved on into the station, its load disembarked and wended its way uptown for dinner. A few hours later, except for a few stragglers, the town was as peaceful as ever with only an occasional cheer to remind one that another red letter day had just ended.

NAVY CREWS TAKE SPIN OF FIVE MILES

Oarsmen Are on the Hudson 15 Minutes After Arrival at Poughkeepsie.

GLENDON EIGHTS IMPRESS

Display Speed and Endurance in Drill on Rough Water—Other Shells on River.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 22.—The gold and blue oars of the Navy eight and substitute four-oared shells dipped into the Hudson at 5 o'clock this afternoon, fifteen minutes after the arrival of the Annapolis oarsmen at Highland, on the west shore. Up and down the river on a five-mile spin Coach Glendon sent his sweep-swingers, who are the last to reach here in training for the intercollegiate regatta on June 28. On the return trip downstream to the boathouse which the Navy is sharing with the varsity and freshman eights of Washington, Glendon set his varsity sprinting against a wind which kicked up choppy water. For a mile Glendon held his varsity to a swift pace, which spoke eloquently of the speed and endurance of the Middies.

A slight wind favored the Navy's pull up stream, but died away for a few minutes as the starting point opposite the Columbia quarters at Crumb Elbow was reached. There the cheers of the Morningside eights welcomed the Annapolis oarsmen, who responded with the four "N" yell and then turned about to sprint against a wind which had freshed in its sweep up the river. Leaning back on their oars to a greater degree than any other crew here and giving every ounce of effort to each stroke, the varsity and four-oared substitute shell went through rough water evenly and swiftly. There was a finish to every stroke and something more than mere polish. The Midshipmen showed an even, smooth co-ordination that kept the boat on an even keel in the paddles and in the fastest sprints.

Jim Ten Eyck brought his Syracuse crews down the course in the wake of the Navy eight, and the Orange cheers rang out in greeting as the Ten Eyck boats continued down the course. Washington was a late comer on the course for the evening drill, while Columbia and Cornell were delayed by the rough water.

The morning's program witnessed a fast trip down the course by the Columbia eights, and a good workout of the Washington crews, at whose quarters it was learned that the Westerners' time for their trial yesterday registered 14 minutes 11 seconds, the unofficial record having been several seconds slower. Pennsylvania continued to earn the approval of Coach Joe Wright for improvement in general form.

50 YACHTS IN RACE TODAY.

Will Take Part in Title Event of Long Island Association.

A fleet of fifty yachts is expected to cross the starting line in the fifth championship race of the Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound to be sailed as the fifty-first annual regatta of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club off Oyster Bay this afternoon.

The first class, that for schooners, will start at 2 o'clock, followed by the New York Yacht Club 40-footers five minutes after. These two divisions and the Larchmont O boats, the first division of the handicap class, the P and New York Yacht Club 30-foot classes, will all sail the 14½-mile course.

Course No. 2 will be sailed twice around by the classes having the larger yachts, while the Stars and the other smaller craft will make the course once.

COACH GIVES CREDIT TO YALE'S OARSMEN

Leader Expresses Pleasure Over Their Work — Muller Congratulates Victors.

GALES FERRY, Conn., June 22.—Credit for winning the races on the Thames today must go to the men in the boat, Coach Leader told the victorious Yale crews at their banquet held in their quarters tonight, shortly after the varsity had turned in the third Blue victory of the day over Harvard. He said that he was very well pleased with their work.

Chairman Allen of the Yale Rowing Committee, on behalf of the committee, expressed gratitude to Mr. Leader for the work he had done and the success of the crews this year. Mr. Allen said it was the most successful and harmonious season Yale has ever had. The crews broke up after the banquet and the oarsmen will leave for their homes tomorrow.

RED TOP, Conn., June 22.—Shortly after the victory of the Yale varsity crew today Captain Ladd of the Harvard eight said: "In our race with Yale the better crew won, and I congratulate Captain Felly and Coach Leader upon their victory."

Coach Muller of Harvard said: "The Harvard crew rowed well and I was pleased with its performance. It was beaten by a better crew and I want to congratulate Yale."

YALE DECISIVELY DEFEATS HARVARD

English ideas. He turned to Portland and Seattle instead of to Oxford and Cambridge for inspiration. He grafted new methods on to his American crews, and they responded to the operation by defeating Columbia, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Princeton and Harvard this season.

One of the men who helped to bring Leader to New Haven was Bernard B. Felly, captain of the crew. This morning Felly rowed in nothing more than the junior varsity—a Yale captain who had to watch his varsity crew from the banks. Leader owed him much, but debts of gratitude have nothing to do with picking the men who will row in the first boat.

Neither Johnny Freeman nor Sherman Ewing, strokes of the victorious Yale eights of 1921 and 1922, respectively, was in any of the Eli shells today, although they were heroes not so long ago. That is also due to Leader's methods.

The proof of the pudding lies in the rowing—to mix figures slightly—and Yale today offered rowing that was superb and polished. It was one of the finest of American eights, and this is not said merely because it won. Yale's crew today was one of the greatest crews ever developed in this country. Charles E. Courtney, if he had been alive and present, would have called it a splendid machine. Jim Rice and Jim Ten Eyck, successors to Cornell's dean of American rowing, might, if they had looked on through the haze, believed that it was one of their carefully developed, smoothly rowing crews that was leaving Harvard far behind.

A Smooth Machine.

There was a relentless quality in this crew that Harvard found more discouraging than anything else. Rowing with confidence and steadiness, the Elis looked as if they could have defeated any crew in the country. There was never a falter, never a change in the machine-like pace. When Harvard spurted desperately, Yale did not hurry. It looked almost leisurely in its quiet steadiness—like a crew that knew where it was going and did not worry.

The 25,000 spectators were out in best bib and tucker as early as 6:30 and found water conditions not as good as those of the air and sunshine. It was a cool day, so cool that those on the observation trains found it comfortable to wear light overcoats. Overhead the sun was bright, but not very warm, and a breeze that came out of the north ruffled the water and forced an hour's postponement of the race.

The crowd that waited patiently for smoother water was the biggest that ever saw a Yale-Harvard regatta. There were more people and more boats than ever before.

The yachts did not stretch merely for a mile up from the bridge as they usually do, but even at the submarine base, two miles away, there were a few scattered craft, the vanguard of the mighty fleet further below. Big schooners with lofty masts rode beside humbler and smaller boats. Gray navy vessels jockeyed in and out of the procession. On the outer fringes of the fleet little launches and motor boats and even humble rowboats swarmed around the course like flies around a molasses barrel. And every one of the boats was bedecked with flags, banners, streamers and bunting, gay in crimson or blue and all the other colors of the spectrum.

Being the largest, it was also the most vivid "show" that this oldest of all rowing regattas ever put on. Forty-five years ago the first Yale-Harvard race was rowed at New London, but the Thames this afternoon was a gay old stream, doing a little better at the age of 45 than it had done when it was a young flapper among rowing courses.

Start Is Delayed.

It was a few minutes short of seven o'clock, daylight saving time, when the two observation trains, one on each bank, swung into position at the starting line. Already the sun was sinking low in the West and throwing a bar of gold over what looked from the east bank like a placid stream. But along the opposite shore the upstream wind was blowing up small ripples that threatened to make trouble for the oarsmen.

Exactly at seven o'clock the referee's boat megaphoned an announcement to those on the trains that the race would be postponed a half hour. Referee Billy Melkleham of Columbia believed that the wind would die down with sunset and he decided to wait. But it was not until a quarter to eight that there were signs of activity.

The referee hove into sight again and made another inspection. At 7:49 there was a great shout when it was seen that the Harvard crew was putting its shell overboard at Red Top, near-by. Six minutes later Yale came into sight upstream, rounding Bartlett's Cove and going straight for the starting line.

It took ten minutes of jockeying to get the rival shells in place. Harvard yelled for Harvard and Yale for Yale. A delegation of Elis on the New London bank became anticipatory enough to sing their undertaker song as a gesture of friendly derision for the Crimson.

It was twilight then. The sun had left the water and sunk below the hills to the west. The breeze was still fresh and the delay apparently had been fruitless. It was cool and hazy, with a gray mist hanging over the water, that had lost its sparkle.

The crews started in the dusk. They were off at 8:05 exactly, Harvard flashing away first and inviting Yale to follow. For the first few hundred feet the Crimson prow was fifteen feet in front and plowed a steady furrow through the water. Harvard's cohorts took advantage of the chance to shout.

But Yale was not to be shaken off so easily. At a quarter of a mile the crews were practically even, at a half mile Harvard was a few feet ahead, allowing for a deceptive angle that deceived the observers on the banks.

Both crews had settled down to a normal beat by this time. Yale had fallen into the 32 stroke, which it used down to the last foot of the last yard. Harvard was trying a 34 beat, shorter with more body swing to it and with spacing less pronounced.

Nearing the mile mark Harvard kicked over the traces and sprinted. But Yale held on to its 10-foot lead and then made the Crimson regret its spurt by uncorking a sprint of its own. At the mile mark the Blue pulled away to a lead of half a length.

Harvard Makes Drive.

Here it was that Harvard began its counter-attack, its first and last drive; its great effort of the afternoon. All the brawn of a powerful crew was thrown behind the red-tipped oars. Broad backs bent lower. Great shoulders and arms and legs combined in an effort titanic. The boat could not help but move forward. It jumped on and on, and as the submarine base was reached the nose of the Harvard shell began finding a place almost beside the prow of the other boat.

At this stage the Crimson looked fully the equal of the Blue and people began to say that if Harvard could hold the Elis, she would win in the last mile through superior strength and stamina. The Harvard strategy was perfectly planned, and that was the only way Harvard could have won—by holding Yale at arm's length until brawn could get in its work down the stretch.

The strategy had only one flaw—it lacked the man power to put it through. Yale was too good. At the bas; this crew of youngsters—several of them are of 20 or under—showed the stoutness, the sturdiness and the quality which were in it. It drew steadily away, unhurried and serene, and when the gray eagle boats were reached there was open water for Harvard to battle against.

The rest is mainly the story of Yale success. The Elis, in that final two miles, reached the meridian of their skill and power. What had been a lead of slightly more than a length became three lengths at the two and a half mile mark, four lengths at three miles, five lengths at three and a half miles and seven lengths at the finish. Harvard was rowing against an irresistible enemy.

The Crimson finished with grit and spirit, and not an oarsman went down in the boat. They were tired, but not so weary that they could not sit up and go through the traditional ceremony of handing their shirts over to the Yale victors.

Yale Oarsmen Fresh.

Yale was fresh and exultant. In the bow seat Russell, a fine oarsman, waved his hands enthusiastically to those on the bridge above. It was a token of victory, for Russell was celebrating his third straight victory over a Harvard varsity. The rest of the crew, however, was new—fresh from the hands of the master workman, Ed Leader. It was a great achievement for this 33-year-old coach—coming out of the West like a Lochinvar and in one season putting Yale back on the rowing map.

As for Frank Muller, the new coach of Harvard and a former amateur sculler, rumors tonight say that this, his first, will be his last at Cambridge. Technically Harvard rowed better than expected, and much better than many Crimson crews have rowed in the recent past. The stroke, however, was not as well adapted as Yale's to the four-mile grind, and it took too much out of the Crimson oarsmen. They were too tired in the last mile. The spirit was there, but the flesh seemed to have weakened under the exertions of a stroke too wearing.

Muller failed, but so did Jim Rice and John Hoyle and Dr. Spaeth against the same Yale varsity. Muller has the consolation of knowing that in defeat he enjoys very select company.

Yale Freshmen Surprise.

The Harvard freshman eight, stroked by J. W. Adie, followed the Eli's down the river, the Crimson oarsmen receiving a rousing ovation from the Harvard supporters on the observation trains and yachts. Harvard felt confident of victory. They waited a long time at the half-mile mark before the Yale crew, which had come down in a launch, boarded its shell which had been towed from the Eli quarters at Gales Ferry.

It was shortly after 11 o'clock when Referee William Melkleham gave the youngsters the word "Go." The Elis shot into a lead which they never relinquished during the two-mile journey. After the two crews had settled down from their racing start, they approached the half-mile flags with the Crimson rowing a 38-stroke and the Blue a couple of notches slower. As they passed the half-mile the Blue was a full length in the lead. It was realized then that the Crimson was done for. His work was ragged. In sharp contrast was the clean-cut oarsmanship of the Elis.

By the time the one-mile mark was reached the Elis were a length and a half in front. Even when Yale dropped the stroke down to 32 strokes to the minute and Harvard continued at 36 and 37, there was no lessening in the gap between the two shells.

For the remainder of the distance Stroke Aide of the Crimson kept doing his work well, plugging away in a hopeless cause, for his fellow-oarsmen were not giving him a great deal of aid. They were going through the mechanics of rowing, that was all. And so the Elis continued to leap ahead without any noticeable effort on their part. Harvard put on a dying gasp at the end, but it availed nothing, and the Crimson limped across the finish line about six lengths behind Yale. At the finish Trimble, the Captain, Iselin and Leavitt dropped over, exhausted, but there was only one man in the Yale boat who as much as wavered—Sweet, No. 7, and he was up in a minute.

Another Bitter Pill.

A few minutes later and the Yale junior eight had administered another bitter pill to the Crimson. This was even more dashing to Harvard spirits than the outcome of the freshman race, for the Harvard juniors were regarded as sure things.

As was the case in the freshman race, the Eli juniors took the lead at the start, but, for a time at least, the Harvard crew made a race of it. The two crews reached the half mile mark almost on even terms. Then Yale forged into the lead. A short distance further, however, a sprint put Harvard upon almost even terms.

Going to the mile mark the Elis superior oarsmanship asserted itself, and soon they were two lengths ahead. This lead was increased to three lengths at the mile and a half, and to five and a half lengths at the end. Harvard tried desperately to make a game finish, but the men were "rowed out" and the shell wobbled badly at the end.

The chief trouble with the Cambridge men lay in the work of the bow four, the stern quartet rowing well over the entire route. The "" held to a 32 or 33 stroke most of the way, with the Crimson using a stroke a couple of notches higher.

THE JUBILEE'S SUCCESS.

To GROVER WHALEN and the members of the Mayor's committee much credit is due for the success of the city's jubilee exposition. Planned and executed at short notice, it required unusual imagination and energy to make it so interesting. How to visualize the workings of a great city is in itself a formidable task. Inasmuch as the purpose of the committee was twofold—to show the present operation of the city as well as its growth during the last quarter century—the problem was particularly difficult. It was met in such a way that any one curious about the activities of any particular branch of the City Administration could visit the exposition and see for himself, by special exhibits, by photographs, models, maps and diagrams, how it functioned. Even those who harbored a thwarted ambition to pull a fire alarm could go there and do so with impunity. Persons who had heard of the Department of Plans and Structures, and had a vague idea that it supervised the city's vegetation and new buildings, could learn at this exhibition that it had the duty of supervising the bridges, ferries and transportation, and even the municipal radio. Those who wished to know more about the activities of the renowned Mr. HINSHAW, when he was not busy saving the nation from the insidious wiles of foreign influence against which President WASHINGTON had conjured his fellow-citizens to be ever on guard, could there see two imposing charts, showing not only the functional organization of the duties of the Commissioner of Accounts, but also the amount of work performed by that gentleman during the last five years. The more curious might even see a picture of the great censor in person, and a cinema version of "American History by Americans" giving ocular proof of the British conspiracy to recapture the United States.

There was material to appeal to all tastes. A liberal display of drainage devices, and an entire section of Madison Avenue devoted to the latest and most decorative types of sewer pipes, artistically draped with the city's flags, lent an air of distinction to the exposition. For the more fastidious there was a booth devoted to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and an admirable exposition of the American Institute of Architects dealing with the projected development of Greater New York. The Museum of Natural History was also represented, as well as the Department of Parks, and large exhibits of the Police and Fire Departments.

To the ignorant city dweller one of the most interesting and instructive sections was that devoted to public health in all its phases. Not only the care of individual health and sanitation, but the improvement of living conditions, the water supply, the markets, and all the extensive machinery connected with feeding, protecting and improving the people of the city in their homes, were admirably shown. In this the Department of Health figured prominently, as well as the Department of Public Welfare, the Department of Public Markets, the Tenement House Department and other branches of the City Government.

It is a pity that many sections of the exposition could not be preserved in permanent form. So indirect and seldom is the contact of the average citizen with the City Government that he has no idea of its ramifications. No studying, no going about from department to department, can give him an understanding of the city's functions comparable to what may be obtained by a brief visit to such an exposition. In no better way can he appreciate the fact that the government of a great city like New York is a highly intricate business problem, to be handled by capable experts rather than to be kicked about for the benefit of politicians.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE RAILROADS.

For his address at Kansas City last night Mr. HARDING fittingly chose transportation as his theme. The ideas which he expressed are sound, even if somewhat trite and vague. What the country looked for was some indication of his attitude toward concrete and immediately pressing railroad problems. Would he consider the possibility of Government operation of the roads? Did he believe in repealing or radically changing the Esch-Cummins Transportation act? Was he in favor of abolishing the Railroad Labor Board? To all these questions the President gave replies which are satisfactory, though very much what was expected. He is against Government operation except as the last desperate resort. He would have the Transportation act, including the Railroad Labor Board, given a further and fairer trial.

The President gave considerable attention in his speech to the proposed consolidation of railroads into a number of groups, in which the strong lines should be combined with the weaker. The Interstate Commerce Commission has long been at work on this plan in conjunction with the railway executives, but, as the President admits, the progress thus far made has not been great. He seems to contemplate asking Congress to make the consolidations mandatory instead of, as they are now, merely permissive. That there are enormous difficulties in the way of such legislation he tacitly concedes, but still is full of hope that the wisdom of Congress and the sagacity of some new tribunal to be set up will be equal to the task. Similarly in regard to the powers of the Railroad Labor Board, Mr. HARDING believes that a way can be found to make its decisions binding on both parties to a controversy, although such decisions may not be strictly enforceable under the Constitution. The President states that no man can be compelled to work against his will. He also lays it down that the courts will not permit confiscation of railway property. As between these two opposing rights, it is hard to see where a line of compulsion can be drawn. Mr. HARDING evidently places his trust largely in public opinion and moral authority.

The entire tenor of his remarks at Kansas City is reassuring. If he advocated no positive solutions, he at least refrained from happy-thought remedies, and set his face against most of the current half-baked notions as to what should be done with the railroads. By implication, Mr. HARDING would favor lower freight rates for agricultural products. Yet he gives it as his opinion that the higher wages paid by the railroads will "yield no reduction in the principal item of operating cost." What he deems essential is the cutting down of fixed charges, which he apparently believes can be brought about by railroad consolidation.

On the whole, the President's railroad speech will be all the better received for the fact that he did not profess to have a skeleton key to fit all doors. His announced policy is that of a patient experimenter. We must keep on trying until we discover the best way out of our perplexities. That has been the American fashion hitherto, and it is plain that Mr. HARDING means to cling to it so long as he is at the head of the Government.

SAGES AT FRENCH LICK.

Among the latest arrivals at that Summer capital of Democratic thought, French Lick Springs, it is a pleasure to find Mr. JOSEPH F. GUFFEY, Democratic National Committeeman from Pennsylvania. He is so excessively healthy that he resorts to the baths. Governor SMITH happens to be there. The two statesmen talk, but never to each other of politics. Such is the delicate but necessary reserve of the French Lick code. Mr. GUFFEY, solus, permits himself to satisfy the burning curiosity of the public. Things new and momentous he recounts with a delightful gravity. Governor SMITH'S approval of the repeal of the State Prohibition Enforcement act has endeared him to Democratic men and women in Pennsylvania. If the rural regions of that State are dry, the cities, the anthracite and most of the bituminous coal country are wet.

Mr. PINCHOT was elected Governor last Fall, pledged to enforce the law, strangle bootlegging, drive out the saloons. Where were the Pennsylvania Wets then? What were they doing when the Legislature passed a prohibition enforcement bill? They did prevent passage of an appropriation for prohibition enforcement. These little feints and divisions in the Pennsylvania Legislature are much like those so amusingly displayed in the New York Legislature. It seems, however, that if Pennsylvania had had a "liberal Democrat" as candidate, Mr. PINCHOT would never have been sent to Harrisburg. Next year Pennsylvania will have no favorite son in the Democratic National Convention. What an opportunity for Governor SMITH, if he will consent to "the use of his name" in the Keystone primaries!

It is true, says the candid Mr. GUFFEY, that there are counties in which the protagonist of the theory that "history is bunk" might carry the primaries of both parties; but "Mr. GUFFEY firmly believes that prohibition enforcement will be an "issue in the national campaign next "year," and that "Governor SMITH, "better than any other candidate, "would be in a position to put the "Republicans in a hole over prohibition and the stand they have taken "in relation to the Volstead law." Mr. GUFFEY declares, after the manner of the heroes of melodrama, that "the time is at hand" when the Republicans will have to admit that Governor SMITH'S view is right.

All this is excellent fooling; or, if you choose, the patter with which the professionals hide their conjurers' tricks. No doubt use will be made, if necessary, of Governor SMITH in Pennsylvania and some other States for the purpose of blocking other candidates or masking actual political intentions; but, preposterous as the Volstead act is in some of its applications, who expects that the Democrats will take a common sense view of it in 1924? The Republicans are going to howl for the strictest enforcement of the most sacred of laws; and the Democrats can't afford to be behind them in lip-service. Mr. GUFFEY comes back to reality when he says that former Senator "TOM" TAGGART, that wily old player of the game, "will occupy a position of unusual "strength in the next Democratic "National Convention." He will, and so will certain other Democratic brethren—old moles and quiet, throwing up little earth. Some early and eager candidates are likely to find this out to their cost.

A NEW PLAN FOR FARMERS.

The plan proposed by Mr. BERNARD BARUCH for relieving American wheat growers from the depression which just now surrounds their market is interesting and ingenious. This is not the first season when the course of the wheat market has shown the disadvantage under which the American farmer labors through lack of co-operation in his marketing of grain. Acting individually as he does in the disposal of his crop, the inevitable tendency is for the great mass of the season's product to come on the market in the first few months after harvest. Under such circumstances, and with the export market itself limited through the competition of the newly harvested foreign crops, the result has always been the forcing down of prices while the farmer was selling the bulk of his crop, often followed by an even more excessive advance in the months when the farmers' holdings of wheat had been reduced to nominal proportions.

Mr. BARUCH'S suggestion is that the machinery of the large dealers in grain should be utilized through the co-operation of a substantial part of the producing farmers; that they should employ such an experienced dealer as their agent and place their own product under his control. He would then sell it or hold it for later sale, according as circumstances of the market rendered it wise. In the end, Mr. BARUCH foresees the possibility of the selling concern coming wholly under the management of the participating farmers.

The idea of co-operative marketing is not new; it has been forced forward again by the circumstances of the present year's wheat market. Last June the lowest price reached by wheat for delivery in July was $1.08¾, in June of 1921 the lowest price was $1.18, and from these prices the market value ranged during the month to figures which have not been touched this year. The price of wheat may in fact be said to be ruling at the prewar level. It is lower than the prevailing price at this time of year in 1913, 1912, 1910 and 1909. This is the state of the farmer's market at a time when the merchandise which he has to purchase is sometimes 25 to 50 per cent. above the prewar average. The statement given out at the recent conference of Western Governors by Dr. TAYLOR, a high expert on grain production, shows the nature of the problem. He emphasized the fact that the trouble with the wheat market does not originate in Europe, for Europe is in fact taking from America quite as much wheat as her people took before the war, but that the planted American acreage of the past four years has been 65,000,000 acres, as compared with 45,000,000 on the average during the five years before the war. Clearly, the situation would not be wholly solved even by the satisfactory working out of the plan proposed by Mr. BARUCH.

That plan does not contemplate regulation of planted acreage, but rather the scientific distribution of the wheat subject to practical judgment of the market. The objections to it lie upon the surface. There would always be many farmers whose individual necessities would compel them to sell promptly, in order to clear off the obligations incurred while the crop was being raised. There would always be the possibility with a single agency of this kind that the men in control of marketing would themselves misjudge the course of prices. Occasions have been numerous when large grain-dealing houses have themselves misjudged the situation, and by holding back accumulated wheat have missed their market, giving to Canada, Argentina or Russia the opportunity to fill the demands from consuming States. In the end they have at times been forced to sell out at a proportionately disadvantageous price. When the matter is one of individual speculation, such a dealer protects himself by "hedging." Whether and to what extent that expedient would be plausible under the arrangement now proposed, it would be difficult to say.

Nevertheless, it will be generally agreed that the plan of co-operative marketing is a desirable objective point in all efforts to relieve the farmer's present situation; also that, up to the present time, the chief obstacle has seemed to be the difficulty of obtaining such practical and experienced management as should insure the best results from the experiment. We shall hear more of this subject in the discussions of the coming season.

RUMOR-MONGERS.

Secretary MELLON was quoted yesterday as believing that the recent failure of two old banking houses in New York was largely due to their foreign commitments. He is strongly of the opinion that the domestic financial situation contains little that is disquieting. This is borne out by the reports in today's issue of Dun's Review covering bank clearings, the week's failures, commodity prices and general trade.

Despite these well-known facts, the last two weeks have seen Wall Street filled with all kinds of vague rumors respecting various houses, some named, some only hinted at. Such a crop of suspicions, often due to malice or interested motives, was doubtless inevitable, after the recent disclosures affecting certain brokerage firms and the Consolidated Exchange. But sensible people who think more of investments than they do of speculation will not allow themselves to be confused by the punishment of lawless operators in the markets and the reform of evil methods. These things are reassuring rather than unsettling. And as for unscrupulous persons who go peddling about their financial surmises or inventions, the general public will soon come to have the same contempt for them that Wall Street has.

CURIOSITIES OF PROHIBITION.

Kansas and Nebraska speak to the great heart of the world, and the great heart of the world intermits with surprise and joy. We quote from our trusted and well-beloved contemporary The Lincoln State Journal:

> Senator CAPPER characterizes it as "New York's Whisky Rebellion." It isn't as bad as that, though much the same spirit is behind it. The wet part of New York has just about the same feeling about prohibition of whisky and makes much the same arguments against it as SHAYS and his followers manifested about taxes on whisky.

It can't be expected that thoughtful progressive States like Kansas and Nebraska should break their heads about ancient history in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. That DANIEL SHAYS, the favorite son of the Massachusetts Hoosinton, who must have died by design in Sparta, N. Y., should be represented as a leader of the Whisky Rebellion is worthy of our great Commissioner of Historical Accounts. DANIEL was a shutter-up of courts, averse, like so many other citizens of other countries, to the collection of debts. He viewed with alarm the Governor's salary, the extortion of the lawyers, and all that. His wicked but amusing rebellion occurred some seven years, if we can count straight, before the little Pennsylvania disturbance to which most students of Keystone history may prefer the Hot-Water Rebellion of 1798. But why should we deny the poets of Kansas and Nebraska their license?

A fancy happy as the happiest of theirs comes from the deep bosom of the Onondaga Reservation. We call them savage, O, be just, their outraged feelings scan! The Indian "not taxed" seems to be gone with SAMOSET and HOBOMACK and MASSASOIT and SITTING BULL and GERONIMO. If we understand his wrongs in this State, he has to pay taxes as soon as he acquires property of the value of $100. "Indian marriages," we learn from that Judas tree of books, the Manual for the Use of the Legislature of the State of New York, may be solemnized by peacemakers within their jurisdiction with the same force as if by a Justice of the Peace. It does seem as if the peacemakers ought to have more authority for good than the regulation of marriages, which is mainly the function of a mere Justice of the Peace. And "it is forbidden to sell liquor to an Indian."

Yet a dispatch from the Salt lakes tells this inspiriting news:

> Holding the Government is without jurisdiction to enforce the Volstead act on Indian reservations in this State, OLIVER D. SUMNER, United States Attorney, today denied the right of Federal prohibition enforcement agents to enter the Onondaga Reservation property.

If this be so—and what good men will doubt it?—there is one sacred and saving place where Mr. VOLSTEAD, his "minions" and "reyrmidons," are powerless. They drive rum from the face of our territorial waters. They cast the multitudinous seas aridity. But the uninvaded reservation is sealed and fortified. As Professor Artemus Ward put it: "JUDAS "ISCARIOT can't show himself in Utiky "with impoonity."

EDUCATING THE ALUMNI.

President MEIKLEJOHN, not satisfied with trying to educate his students, was endeavoring to educate his alumni. In his valedictory of Wednesday he argued, with good reason, that this was a necessity if the alumni influence in college affairs was to be intelligent, and not a mere expression of ancient sentiment.

Yet here, as elsewhere, the stubborn nature of matter makes it difficult to translate aspiration into accomplishment. The Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors transcribes from the Amherst Graduates' Quarterly some account of what may be called the continuation courses for alumni. The plan involved the organization of groups for study and reading, under the direction of members of the college Faculty, in the larger cities where Amherst men were numerous, with occasional group conferences to talk things over. "It marks," said Dr. MEIKLEJOHN, "the end of the day "when men could talk of colleges as "places of mere boyish association, as "places of mere sentimental connection, as places where they were in "their childhood. * * * It means "* * * that men must be living in "great associations of ideas and "thoughts and problems and attempts "to understand."

Doubtless that is one of the things that American college life, and particularly alumni life, has badly needed. If it works, it will be an excellent thing. It is perhaps too early to say how it is going to work. As in so many other colleges, one man or group of men must be the power and another the brakes. The programs laid out for Amherst alumni study are calculated to put a heavy burden on a man who has other work to do and can improve himself only in spare moments.

Dr. MEIKLEJOHN spoke of Trustees as men who could not give the proper attention to college affairs because they were too busy with other things. Apparently no such burden lies on alumni. They have all the time in the world for syllabi and programs of reading. This appears in this very report on Amherst alumni studies, where it is remarked that "many of "the alumni were interested in having the department" (economics, in this case) "give them something to think about." One envies the typical Amherst alumnus, living in cloistered seclusion with nothing to kill time but the quarterly clipping of coupons, turning back to the old college in final desperation and begging it to give him something to think about; while the college is suffering under the control of Trustees, unlettered men who have risen from the plow or the shovel and are consequently too busy to pay attention to the problems of education.

If things are not quite so bad as they seem, they are bad enough. There is no doubt that most alumni do look back to athletics, fraternities and social life when they think of college; it comes into memory lately or not at all as a place where men might learn, and learn to think. That it may go on helping them to think, even after graduation, is an important function which colleges are only beginning to try to fulfill. More power to them. The alumni need to be educated; so do the Trustees; so, perhaps, do the professors, too, even young professors.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Familiarity Soon Is Acquired.

It is to President HARDING that has come, first of all men in his position, the privilege of having his speeches "broadcast." This gives him the power to make himself and his opinions, his desires and his purposes, directly and instantly known to a greater number of people than was possible for any of his predecessors. Just what the value of this is to him it would be hard to say, but at any rate he can address, orally, something like a million people, instead of, at most, a few thousands, and between the effect which he thus can produce and that attainable by sending out printed copies of his speeches the difference, though not easily measurable, must be considerable.

A curious fact is that though this form of communication is a matter of only a year or two, and before that it was hardly imaginable except as part of a fairy story or of scientific imaginings by somebody like H. G. WELLS or JULES VERNE, already it has ceased to astonish anybody, has no miraculous quality for anybody, and is treated by everybody as a matter of course—something that comes in the regular day's work for the electricians and their customers.

Of course, other public men are utilizing the new method of approaching those who are or whom they hope to make their admirers and supporters, but they are not Presidents of the United States, much as some of them would like to be, and broadcastings from them are not heard with such eagerness—or should one say with such patience?—as his. Whatever any of them, however, may say to all and sundry "listening in" probably raises the general average of merit for broadcast material, and helps to decrease the truth of the charge that what the ethereal waves bring in would be of little or no interest except such as is given to it by the method of its arrival. That charm will not last long, and when it has disappeared altogether either the broadcasters will be obliged to improve and elevate the general quality of what they send out or the present large and profitable trade in sending and receiving apparatus will languish.

Expensive and Yet Profitable.

Probably Mr. LASKER is not much disturbed by the adverse criticism which has been and for some time probably will be directed against him because of the way he has managed the trial trip of the Leviathan. To find fault with what he did is easy enough, for the taking of 600 people, more or less, of various but quite irrelevant eminences and influences on a week's ocean voyaging over Summer seas at large public expense does have a close and undeniable resemblance to what is known as a "junket." But there is another side to the case, and it is the other side which Mr. LASKER, trained in the devices of the advertising specialist, naturally sees.

Presumably he has been careful to have collected and pasted in a book all that has been printed about the Leviathan since the news of his purposed test of the ship came out. The book will be a big one, and it will reveal the obtaining of "publicity" in quality as well as quantity sure to fill with jealous envy every advertiser in the country except possibly Mr. FORD and Mr. ERLANGER. They still hold unapproached records for getting free advertising—on first pages, usually—but Mr. LASKER has done well as their rival and has succeeded in making known to practically everybody in the United States the size of the Leviathan, the number of millions that have been spent in making her the most magnificently and luxuriously equipped ship afloat, and the fact that early in July she will be engaged in taking passengers to Europe and back in the regular course of business.

That travelers will be attracted from other lines by this is hardly questionable, and, as that is what Mr. LASKER wants to do, he can afford to smile at his critics. They, too, advertise the glories of the Leviathan, and make it an event as well as a joy to sail on her.

Three Days and Then Happiness.

"Didn't we tell you so!" Mr. and Mrs. New Yorker exclaimed triumphantly yesterday to the country cousins who had complained all through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday about the terrors of Summer in the big city. What they had told the visitors was that our hot waves are always of brief duration, and that for most of the time our Summer weather is just what Summer weather should be.

Certainly no improvement on yesterday could be demanded. It was cool without being too cool, the breeze had briskness without violence, the sky was of an unmitigated blue, and the sun was content to shine with a vigor that cheered and did not burn. And, anyway, the three days of heat might have been worse, even while they lasted, for the humidity was low all through them. As it was, many suffered, and a few died. That is lamentable, but the victims were all from among those whose exposure and exertions during the daylight hours were excessive and whose nights in the crowded tenements brought no rest or relief.

It is remarkable that the cool wave came without producing any thunderstorms. Rain would have been welcome, especially in the suburbs, where the gardens are beginning to need it badly, but at least we were spared repetition of the ancient delusion that "thunderstorms cool the air."

Two Things That Go Together.

It is natural enough that, while in one part of Long Island the Ku Klux Klan was initiating new members with insolent openness, rum-runners should have had the audacity to drive decent people away from the beaches where the landing of criminal cargoes was about to take place.

The two activities went well together, for underlying and prompting both was the same disregard for law and the same determination to substitute for it the carrying out of private judgments by whatever amount of violence was necessary for doing so.

In both cases interference, unless made in overwhelming force, would have been resented and resisted. The rum-runners would not have hesitated to kill anybody who disobeyed their orders, and it is far from certain that the Klansmen would not have gone as far in maintaining their determination to defy public sentiment. Professing to have for aim the service of morality, the men of hood and gown have done nothing at all toward stopping an abominable traffic which has brought their part of Long Island into nation-wide disgrace, so boldly and on such a large scale has it been carried on there. But of course their professions of piety and patriotism are empty. The only disloyalty they punish is disloyalty to the klan.

Americanisms in England.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If it does not appear an impertinence, I would like to confirm what Mr. Harcourt says about the English edition of "Babbitt." I have it at home in London, in the original wording, and I would not have to otherwise. To Englishmen, American expressions and idioms are a source of pure delight. We love the vivid, incisive and picturesque Americanisms that condense in terse and telling phrases a wide world of meaning.

But we sometimes need a glossary of terms. My friends compete in working extracts into their everyday conversation.

ST. JOHN'S EVE IN NORWAY.

Tonight I must creep through the sleeping house
With far less noise than a frisking mouse:
I must open a window with barely a sound,
And drop like a cat to the garden ground.
Oh, then I'll feel the long grass at my knees,
And see the wise stars through the orchard trees
On my way to the rye field, silken and still,
Between our brook and One Tree Hill.
Nothing abroad can give me alarm,
But something might happen to spoil the charm.
The charm I must whisper the while I lie
With bright wool threads seven heads of rye.
I searched so long for these rainbow strands!
But each, when I knot it with eager hands,
Binds with a purpose the growing grain—
Binds till I come to loose it again.
Which will grow tallest? My trembling prayer
Is twined with a strand like his golden hair.
If this overtop its fellows, it will
Be a sign that Time my dream may fulfill.
And so tonight I will try my fate.
Then for seven long days and nights I'll wait:
The charm and the growing heat will tell
If the one I love best loves me, as well!

IDEAL COLLEGE PRESIDENT.

Views on His Relation to Faculty, Students and Trustees.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The newspapers are spreading before the public the details of certain events which are disturbing the otherwise uneventful life of a highly honored college and which revolve about its President. Because they cannot fail to disturb many friends of the higher education and affect more or less public opinion, I may be pardoned for calling attention to some underlying truths which are to be kept in mind and will not be changed by any individual occurrences.

For more than fifty years I have been in four different colleges in the West and in the East a Trustee. A graduate of Yale in the days of President WOOLSEY, I have kept in pretty close touch with my Alma Mater and first and last have had rather intimate knowledge of a good many college Presidents and of their special task. That I am one of the old-timers will not perhaps interfere with my having reached some opinions which have show of reason and validity today.

In the eyes of the nation the college President, after nearly three hundred years of American college life, has a very definite position and a unique and highly valued influence. He represents the college as no one else does, its spirit, its atmosphere, its valued history, its work and its purpose. He is a Man with a capital M, a scholar and, of course, a gentleman. He does not speak rashly, or get angry, or feel called upon to rush into personal controversy; he is concerned with the welfare both of his town and of the nation, for whose service he holds himself ready, as he has often rendered it; above all, he carries the interest of his college in all its varied successes upon his heart. He bears burdens and makes willing and constant personal sacrifice for his charge which only his intimates can know, but of which others have constant evidence. The public is prepared to yield him in full measure the honor which the gratitude of his alumni and the parents of his students seek occasion to voice. I might easily add a long list of noble men of whom all this and more is true. There are hundreds in our history and exceptions are forgotten.

On the other hand, to the college the President stands in a unique position. His business in the development of the years has come to be an official and visible link between the inner life of the college and the world. Whether he teaches or not, his prime task is to provide the means of teaching. He brings to the Trustees for appointment the names generally suggested by his Faculty and approved by him, of the men who compose the working body. Once appointed, he is ultimately responsible for seeing that these men have adequate equipment for their work, in laboratories, books, recitation rooms, undisturbed hours and all that will enable them to do their best work. He keeps their needs and the needs of the college before the Trustees. Obviously, he must be above all no egoist. He is a helper of others, and his reward is their success, and their honor. If he fails in this it is only a question of time until his failure becomes complete. Jealousy and disruptive rivalry are inevitable; the form in which disruption comes is unimportant. That this is, in fact, rare is testimony to the unselfish devotion which is characteristic of the college Presidents.

The gentlemen and occasional ladies who are Trustees have found their position dignified and worthy because, they are assured of the constant co-operation of the President and of the faithful and equally devoted service of the Faculty. Their responsibility, long since settled by law and usage, goes on little disturbed, and their part in promoting the success of the college has recognition and reward in the results. Any upheaval of the relation to justify individual theories, however well intended, has its adequate answer in the strong and ever-increasing stream of young life flowing into our colleges and the enthusiastic loyalty of the hosts of their alumni. The teaching profession has lost nothing of its fruitfulness and dignity, and our higher institutions of learning not only share in the evolution of the world about them, but furnish in large degree the men and women upon whom progress in all directions depends.

HENRY A. STIMSON.

O. Henry's Pen Name.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue you printed a letter from C. Alphonso Smith, O. Henry's biographer, in which he says:

"There is really no mystery about the origin of the popular pen name. It is the name of a famous French pharmacist and appears many times in the United States Dispensary, which O. Henry used when a drug clerk in Greensboro, N. C., in Austin, Texas, and in Columbus, Ohio."

As against this statement of Dr. Smith there are on record three statements of O. Henry himself, the most complete one in an interview, first printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES of April 4, 1906, and reprinted with other O. Henry matter on Aug. 6, 1922, the other two in letters to his friend, Miss Mabel Wagnalls, and published by her in "Letters to Lithopolis."

In the interview O. Henry said:

"It was during those New Orleans days that I adopted my pen name. I said to a friend: 'I am going to send out some stuff. I don't know if it amounts to much, so I want to get a literary alias. Help me pick out a good one.' He suggested that we get a newspaper and pick a name from the first list of notables that we found in it. In the society columns we found the account of a fashionable ball. 'Here we have our notables,' said he. We looked down the list and my eye lighted on the name Henry. 'That'll do for a last name,' said I. 'Now for a first name. I want something short. None of your three-syllable names for me. Why don't you use a plain initial, then?' asked my friend. 'Good,' said I. 'O' is about the easiest letter written, and O it is.'"

In his first letter to Miss Wagnalls he wrote:

"Way down in Louisiana is where my Henry name came from. Can't you dig up an ancestor among the old Southern aristocracy so we can be cousins?"

In a later letter:

"If you remember, once you wrote that you did not know whether I were a man, woman or wraith. Well, I am a wraith. There never was an O. Henry. The name is a born ex gaurss; but still it is mine, for I made it."

This would seem to settle the question unless Dr. Smith has more convincing facts in his possession. If he has any, he ought to produce them. GEORGE MacADAM.

Painting the Town Yellow.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We have all heard of painting the town red, but painting a town orange is a terrible innovation.

Where, oh where, is our Municipal Art Committee? On a vacation, doubtless; otherwise they surely would not permit our streets to be made hideous by these unsightly elevated trains suggesting a Hallowe'en nightmare.

But they say the bright orange color is expected to attract passengers. If we were moths at night, but surely we have reached a stage in our development where we do not really prefer to ride in cars decorated like the animal wagons in a country circus. And can it be possible that the company will be permitted to dot our city with orange stations?

Can no means be found to prevent such an outrage?

HIGHBRIDGE FRIENDS WIN A WEEK'S DELAY

Mayor Postpones Final Action to Give Time for Study of Remodeling Plan.

WOULD SAVE CITY $600,000

Engineer Says Proposed Removal to Riverside Drive Would Be Impossible.

Architects and engineers interested in the remodelling rather than the demolishment of High Bridge won a victory yesterday when they appeared before the Board of Estimate with their plan which is designed to save $600,000 for the city. Although Mayor Hylan had asserted at the beginning of the hearing that he would permit no further delay, he later granted the request of the engineering experts to put the matter over for another week. In the interim the Commissioners and engineers of the Department of Plans and Structures and the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity will study the proposal.

"We certainly feel we have won a great victory" said William B. Rogerstone of 61 Broadway, representing the Parks and Playgrounds Association and several architectural and engineering associations, at the conclusion of the hearing. "If a vote could be taken it would be seen that practically everybody in New York opposes the removal of High Bridge from its present position. We are very much encouraged by the granting of another week and we feel confident that the plans of our committee of architects and engineers will be found acceptable."

Mr. Rogerstone explained to the board that the committee headed by Edwin R. Jarrat, and including Ralph Modjeski, Don Barber, Lincoln Bush and Jardine D. Morgan, had developed a plan for the remodelling of the bridge at a cost of $716,000, whereas the cost of removing it and digging a tunnel to convey Croton water to Manhattan would be approximately $1,300,000.

"This," said Borough President Edward Riegelmann of Brooklyn, "is a dollars and cents proposition. The board has decided to save the bridge and make it an addition to Riverside Drive and preserve it in all its beauty and historic splendor."

"This thing has been going on now long enough. Interfered the Mayor, "we will wait a week. If we don't hear from the United States Government that we can take immediate action, I am going to vote to take action today."

Merritt H. Smith, Chief Engineer of the Department of Water Supply, answering a question of Mayor Hylan, explained that High Bridge has again been utilized for carrying water to Manhattan during the last three years.

William J. Dithey, an architect at 126 Liberty Street, member of the American Institute of Architects and other similar bodies, said the general sentiment all over the city and in architectural and engineering societies was for the retention of High Bridge. Reconstruction of the bridge, as proposed by the board of estimate committee, has met with the approval of the War Department, he stated.

"The War Department has told me this will settle the whole problem and they are surprised that the city hasn't before this adopted such a plan," he said.

Borough President Riegelmann asked the experts and their representatives if it were possible, from an engineering standpoint to remove the bridge to Riverside Drive, as recommended by the Committee of the Whole of the board.

"In my opinion, it cannot be moved," declared Fred Lavis, a consulting engineer at 26 Broad Street.

"Professor Modjeski further contended, "nothing is impossible, but it would be far too expensive a task."

Mayor Hylan then directed the men to submit their plans to Commissioners Whalen and Hayes and return at the next meeting of the board on Friday. At that meeting an even stronger plea against removing the bridge is expected to be made.

URUGUAY TO RAISE LOAN.

Increases Amount From 15,000,000 to 35,000,000 Gold Pesos.

MONTEVIDEO, June 22.—The National Council of Administration has decided to increase the amount of Uruguay's proposed foreign loan from 15,000,000 to 35,000,000 gold pesos. Tenders from American and European bankers are to be considered.

Under the revised plans, which were made following recommendations by President Serrato, bonds to the amount of 20,000,000 gold pesos would be floated as soon as the arrangement with the bankers is completed.

The proceeds would be used to carry out important public works and to increase the capital of the Bank of the Republic, the State Insurance Bank and State power plants so as to enable them to make greater contributions which would be employed in paying the interest on the loan and gradually reducing the budget deficits of the last two years.

The remaining 15,000,000 gold pesos would be handed over to the Bank of the Republic, the State Insurance Bank and the national power plants in the form of bonds, thus enabling these institutions to increase their capital at their own convenience.

OPPOSES WOOD'S POLICY.

President of Philippine Senate Does Not Favor Big Rubber Lease.

MANILA, June 21 (Associated Press).—President Quezon of the Philippine Senate, speaking today at Cagayan Sulu, Department of Mindanao, opposed the exploitation of the rubber industry in the Philippines.

"Governor General Wood," he said, "has recommended to the Legislature the approval of a law granting large leases on lands for the exploitation of rubber. But we do not care for the recommendations of the Governor General if they are in material conflict. We maintain that great areas of land should not be granted either to foreigners or Filipinos, because the public lands were created by God, not to profit, to hold, but to provide everybody a share.

Our policy in this regard is to preserve our natural resources for posterity."

Ex-Premier Is Reported to Be Getting Along "Very Well Indeed."

LONDON, June 22 (Associated Press).—Contrary to reports which have been circulated that former Prime Minister Bonar Law's condition was growing increasingly serious, it was stated at his home this evening that the ex-Premier's health was giving no additional cause for worriment.

"He is getting along very well indeed," an inquirer at the residence was informed.

FRATERNAL PARADE ENDS JUBILEE TODAY

One Hundred Thousand, Including 10,000 Women, Will March Down 5th Av.

HYLAN TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Will Present Flags to Six Who Have Done Most for City in 25 Years.

New York City's silver jubilee in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the consolidation of its present five boroughs will end with a parade of fraternal organizations in Fifth Avenue this afternoon and a meeting at the exposition in Grand Central Palace.

The parade will be the largest of the jubilee and one of the largest ever held here. Approximately 100,000 marchers, including 10,000 women, will be in line. There will be forty floats. One of these will represent Cleopatra's barge and another will depict "Civic Fame," the statue atop the Municipal Building, handing a key of the city to a figure of "Brotherhood," representing the fraternal organizations participating.

The parade will start at noon at Ninety-sixth Street and will march down Fifth Avenue. The Mayor will review the marchers from a stand at Fifty-ninth Street. Sixty-one organizations will participate.

The Salvation Army will have the honor of heading the line, and the last division, appropriately enough—for the parade is expected to last until after dark—will be composed of the Order of Owls.

Mayor Hylan, William H. Woodin, Chairman of the Finance and Advisory Committee, and Grover A. Whalen, Director of the exposition and Grand Marshal of the parade, will be the speakers at tonight's meeting. It will be a fraternal night, and many of the participants in the parade are expected to be present.

At 8:15 in the evening Mayor Hylan will present the silk flags offered by City Chamberlain Phillip Berolzheimer to the six persons adjudged to have done the most for the people of the city during the last twenty-five years. The awards were announced yesterday as follows:

Mrs. E. H. Harriman, as President of the American Orchestral Society, and donor of the Palisades Interstate Park.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, for service to the Americanization movement and after the World War to the children, thereby reducing the death rate.

Nathan Straus, for his milk stations for the poor.

John P. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections and Grand Sachem of the Tammany Society.

Frank Tomkins.

The presentations will be made during a concert at Prospect Park, Brooklyn.

Civic organizations of the city have charge of the exercises at the exposition yesterday. Charles F. Bauer, Chairman of the City Parliament, and Commissioner Councils, presided. Mayor Hylan, Mr. Whalen, James H. Emerick, Chairman of the Ridgewood Community Council, and Joseph H. Fink, President of the Audubon Community Council, spoke in the evening.

Nearly twenty thousand persons attended the exposition last night. The crowd was so large that twenty policemen on reserve at the East Fifty-first Street Station were sent to the Park Avenue men already on duty there in handling it.

City Clerk Michael J. Cruise notified by telephone the heads of every city department to the amendment to the resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen declaring today a public holiday, which authorized department heads to grant leave of absence to all city employes desiring to participate in the parade. Mr. Cruise said the legality of the action of the board in declaring a holiday had been questioned. Although he would not say who had done the questioning, the belief spread that Controller Craig, who has opposed the celebration, might take steps to hold up the pay of any city employe who took the day off.

FIRE DESTROYS YACHT.

Owner and Captain and Wives Escape Near New London.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—The power yacht Tawasi, owned by W. G. Cowles of Hartford, was destroyed by fire off the mouth of the Connecticut River late yesterday. A short circuit in the engine room caused the blaze. Mr. and Mrs. Cowles and Captain and Mrs. W. R. Wickham of Mattituck, N. Y., who were on the vessel, abandoned it after vain attempts to extinguish the flames, and put off in the tender, which was picked up by a yacht owned by Warner Brothers of Bridgeport. They saved only the clothes they wore. Captain Wickham was slightly burned on the hands and arms. The vessel is said to have been valued at $28,000.

Dr. John C. Ayer of New York, owner of the yacht Shadow, en route from Glen Cove, L. I., to New London, for the Yale-Harvard regatta, saw the Tawasi afire when some distance away and speeding to the spot searched for half an hour but found no trace of the burning craft.

YOUNG CORT GETS DIVORCE.

Declares His Chorus Girl Bride Would Not Quit "Career."

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 22.—Mrs. Maude Fealy Cort, wife of John Edward Cort of Darien, son of the New York theatrical man, refused to give up her "career" on the stage as a chorus girl, her husband informed Judge Wolfe in Superior Court here today, in asking for a divorce on grounds of desertion. The decree was granted after the Judge had heard the testimony of young Cort and his father.

Cort said his wife left him five days after the marriage, which occurred in Cincinnati, in January, 1920. Cort brought his bride to his father's home, but soon after arrival, he said, she refused to agree to give up the stage, and left him to rejoin the chorus of the show she had been with. He said he had written to her on several occasions, but she answered none of his letters.

Cort's father said there was no other reason for the alleged desertion by his daughter-in-law than the fact that she did not want to leave the stage.

Con'e, former chief prohibition agent of New Jersey, was found guilty by a jury in the Federal Court in Newark yesterday of offering a $100 bribe to two prohibition agents for the purpose of obtaining protection for a "ring" of saloon keepers. Con'e was charged with offering the bribe to Agents Wilbert V. Dey and Milton Swackhamer at South Amboy on April 28 for which seven saloon keepers of Middlesex County were to receive protection by the payment of $700.

SAYS PEOPLE BLUSH IN SHAME AT HYLAN

Wallstein, in Word Battle, Tells Mayor He Goes Beyond Bounds of Respectability.

CRAIG ENJOYS ENCOUNTER

Classon Avenue Sewer Levy Again the Cause of Clash at Estimate Board Meeting.

Mayor Hylan was told to his face yesterday that he was "making the people of New York City blush for shame." Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel for the Citizens Union, made the remark during a wordy hearing before the Board of Estimate on the subject of the Classon Avenue (Brooklyn) sewer assessment, which was the cause of the clash between the Mayor and Controller Craig last Monday, when each called the other a liar and Craig offered to fight the Mayor.

Wallstein had been arguing against two-thirds of the assessment being put on the entire city, thereby sustaining the contention of the Controller that it was unfair to the other boroughs to pay for a local Brooklyn improvement. When he had finished the Mayor turned to the crowd of Brooklynites that filled the chamber and remarked:

"Take a good look at Wallstein. He is the man responsible for the Mayor committee and spending $500,000 of the taxpayers money. He isn't such a bad looking fellow, but how he does like the money."

Wallstein turned abruptly to again face the Mayor, and with flushed countenance replied:

"That's cheap stuff, Mr. Mayor, and rolls off my back like water off a duck's. It's dirt cheap and rolls off my back like water off a duck's. It's dirt cheap and comports with much that you get off now and then and that probably appeals to your kind of intelligence. I try to have respect for your office, but you go beyond the bounds of respectability."

Woman Comes to Mayor's Aid.

"But you got $17,000 out of it yourself, I understand."

"Yes," retorted Wallstein, "but I never raised my own salary and then gave phoney excuses for doing it."

Many persons in the audience laughed at the sally and the Mayor's face grew redder.

"We'll show you up," said the Mayor, raising his voice.

"Mr. Mayor, you are showing yourself up every day," was Wallstein's rejoinder. "You are giving daily exhibitions of yourself that make the people of New York City blush for shame."

A woman in the audience came to the Mayor's assistance.

"Never mind, Mr. Mayor," she cried, "they never got anything on you."

"What we think of the Citizens Union we showed in our vote for you," a man in the chamber yelled, and the Mayor smiled his appreciation. Several cheers went up.

"Cheer, cheer, the gang's all here," shouted Wallstein. "Every one who will get his finger in the city treasury because of your vote on this matter, Mr. Mayor, is cheering you."

"What we think of Mr. Wallstein stand here and make such attacks on you, Mr. Mayor, we think they should be thrown out," said Herbert L. Carpenter, President of the Associated Civic Associations of Brooklyn.

"So say we all of us," yelled some one in the rear of the chamber.

An employe in Mr. Wallstein's office turned to Mr. Carpenter and shouted:

"What are you talking about? You got $60,000 out of your job."

"I am the largest contributor and never got a cent," retorted Carpenter.

Amusement for Craig.

At the beginning of the meeting the board was ready to act on the question of approving the assessment when the Mayor caught a glimpse of former State Senator George F. Thompson, who is counsel to Mr. Carpenter's association, and invited him to make any remarks he chose. Thompson criticised the Controller for characterizing the two-thirds assessment on the city as "legalized larceny," and said that if politics was to be injected into the question he would recall a luncheon he had with the Controller at the Hotel Biltmore just previous to the last election, when the Controller, according to Thompson, agreed to support the plan of assessing two-thirds, or the cost of the sewer on the city and one-third on the property owners benefitted.

He was interrupted by John D. Rosenbrock, who said he had made the arrangements for the luncheon at the Controller's request. Rosenbrock declared that Craig said there were reports during the campaign that he was going to reverse his previous vote and oppose the two-thirds, one-third assessment plan, and he wanted more information on the subject because he was to speak in the Classon Avenue district. Turning to the Controller, who was chuckling quietly throughout the proceedings, Rosenbrock said:

"You thought that Charlie Lockwood, your opponent, spread that report about you, but Charlie Lockwood doesn't play politics that way. I spread the report for I wanted to get you on record and that was the way to do it."

Craig's only reply was another quiet laugh.

The sewer matter was laid over for a week.

The board directed the Corporation Counsel to give an opinion on the city's right to take over the plant of the Jamaica Water Supply Company, when Borough President Connolly of Queens complained that, owing to trouble with its mains, the company was unable to furnish water during the hot spell to a large section of Jamaica. The board also authorized a plan for temporary relief connections.

JERSEY DOCTORS AVOID DRY QUESTION

Disapprove Restriction on Right to Prescribe Whisky, but Fear Misconstruction by Public.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 22.—Criticism of the Volstead act, as it applies to physicians, was eliminated from discussions of the 107th annual meeting of the Medical Society of New Jersey, it was learned today, because the society refused to be put in the position of broadcasting wet propaganda.

"Although practically all physicians believe that they should be permitted to prescribe whiskey the same as they prescribe any other drug," an official of the Society explained, "the big majority of physicians believe in prohibition. Had we gone on record with our views regarding the restrictions imposed, we think unjustly and unwisely, on the medical profession, people who only read the headlines would have jumped to the false conclusion that we had attacked prohibition in principle."

The "spirit of intolerance and of narrowness" which he declared had manifested itself in the profession, both internationally and locally, was sharply criticised in an address this morning by Dr. B. S. Pollak, Medical Director of the Hudson County Tuberculosis hospital and sanitarium.

"It was with sincere regret," he said, "that the speaker, at the International Congress on Tuberculosis, held in London in the Summer of 1921, was obliged to witness the exclusion of the German delegates, and, greater still was his chagrin when again in Brussels, in the Summer of 1922, in spite of his and other protestations, Germany was once more denied the opportunity."

Dr. Pollak criticised "the practice of a few charging excessive fees for their services, thus making the benefit of their knowledge and learning limited to a few, to the disadvantage of the many." He also deprecated the growing tendency to specialism "at the expense and sometimes to the ridicule of general medicine."

Upon recommendation of the Nominating Committee, the following officers were chosen:

President, Willis P. Eagleton, Newark; First Vice President, Alexander McAllister, Camden; Second Vice President, Archibald Mercer, Newark; Third Vice President, Lucius F. Donahue, Bayonne; Recording Secretary, John Bennett Morrison, Newark; Corresponding Secretary, W. J. Carrington, Atlantic City; Treasurer, Charles J. Marsh, Paterson.

The convention voted to return to Atlantic City for next year's meeting. A new record in attendance was established at this meeting, when a total of 606 delegates and guests registered.

GOULD JEWELS TAX SUIT.

Decision Reserved on Plea to Exempt Gems of George J.'s First Wife

Surrogate Foley reserved decision yesterday on an application by the estate of Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, first wife of the late George J. Gould, to exempt from taxation in New York State personal property consisting chiefly of jewels, valued at $686,072, and constituting the bulk of her estate taxed here, on the ground that the property has already been taxed in New Jersey, where she made her home, and also by the Federal Government.

The application was based on an affidavit by Caroline Cortis, companion to Mrs. Gould, who states that she had entire charge of Mrs. Gould's diamonds and other jewelry, and that it ceases to be safe deposit box at Tiffany's and also to the safe in her home at Georgian Court, Lakewood. "The jewelry found in New York was not permanently located in New York City," the affidavit says.

Charles A. Curtin, attorney for the State Tax Commission, argued that personal property found in New York owned by a person who was a non-resident at the time of death is taxable.

MOTOR CARS KILL 5, MAIM 2 MORE IN DAY

2 BOYS DIE UNDER TRUCKS

Injuries Received in Crash on Jericho Turnpike Are Fatal to Two Persons.

A woman and two boys were killed in automobile accidents yesterday; two other persons died of injuries received in automobile accidents the day before, and two boys were hurt so badly that they probably will die.

Mrs. Emeline Moran, a widow, 45 years old, of 600 West 148th Street, was killed by a car owned and operated by Robert Freeman, 41 years old, an exporter of 726 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, when she was crossing Broadway at 145th Street shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Moran was crossing the street with Mrs. Edward E. Steffins of 700 West 179th Street.

Witnesses told the police that the women stepped from behind a car which was turning the corner, into the path of Freeman's car. Freeman said he did not see them until he was almost on top of them. The women separated, he added, and in trying to avoid striking Mrs. Steffins, his car struck Mrs. Moran.

In the crowd of automobilists that gathered immediately after the accident was Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the Chelsea M. E. Church, Fort Washington Avenue and 178th Street, and who was on his way to his home at 701 West 177th Street. The clergyman, aided by several others, placed Mrs. Moran in his car and raced to the Lutheran Hospital, Convent Avenue and 144th Street. Dr. Lloyd of the hospital staff pronounced the woman dead.

Freeman was arrested by Policeman Miller of the West 152d Street Station on a technical charge of homicide.

Thomas Mancuso, 3 years old, was killed by a motor truck in front of his home, 215 East 102d Street, in the afternoon. Leon Penny, 23 years old, the chauffeur, of 1,772 St. Nicholas Avenue, who is employed by the W. B. Baking Corporation, 542 East 145th Street, said the boy ran in front of his car. He was locked up at the East 104th Street Station on a homicide charge.

Edward Fila, 6 years old, was run over by the wheels of a motor truck in the evening in front of his home, 422 East Seventieth Street, and was killed. Richard Fried, 20 years old, of 530 East Seventy-first Street, who was operating the truck, carried the boy to Flower Hospital, where Dr. Goldstein said death had been instantaneous. Policeman Ergenzinger of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station arrested Fried on a homicide charge.

Mrs. Bessie Scholmitsky, 45 years old, of 530 East Eleventh Street, Manhattan, died in the Nassau County Hospital early yesterday from injuries she received several hours before when an automobile in which she was riding with her son, Raymond, and Mrs. Sarah Weinstein, of the same address, overturned on the Jericho Turnpike, near Westbury, L. I. Mrs. Weinstein and Raymond Scholmitsky also were removed to the hospital by Henry Hicks, owner of a nearby nursery. Mrs. Weinstein's back was found to be broken, and she is not likely to recover. Scholmitsky's injuries were not serious. He said that another automible sideswiped his car, overturning it.

Max Fauer, 72 years old, of 8,802 Sutphin Boulevard, Jamaica, Queens, who was knocked down by a motor truck near his home on Thursday, died in St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, yesterday. Francis Baldwin of 18,909 Jamaica Avenue, Hollis, chauffeur of the motor truck was not arrested. Witnesses told the police he was not responsible for the accident.

Charles Mahoney, 14 years old, of 633 Third Avenue suffered a fracture of the skull when he was knocked down by an automobile in Thirty-seventh Street near Third Avenue. The boy was playing ball with several companions when he was said to have walked in front of the car owned and driven by Max W. Davis of 1,680 Prospect Place, Brooklyn. Davis took the boy in his car to Bellevue Hospital.

Phillip Deutsch, 13 years old, of 41 Convent Avenue, received injuries which may prove fatal, when he was struck by a driverless automobile on the sidewalk in West 130th Street, near Convent Avenue. The car was the property of Mrs. Rose Lenson of 420 West 130th Street. Her husband, Jacob, a coffee merchant had left it standing on the hill in front of his home a few minutes before the accident. The police were unable to learn what started it. After striking the boy it ran into a fence and was damaged badly. Dr. Thompson removed the boy to Knickerbocker Hospital, and later when Lenson went to the West 152d Street Station, he was arrested on a technical charge of felonious assault.

MEXICANS SEEK PART OF BIG HEARST RANCH

Chihuahua Authorities Trying to Avoid Seizing Land by Offering to Buy It.

EL PASO, Texas, June 22.—State authorities in Chihuahua City, Mexico, are facing an embarrassing situation growing out of their agrarian policy, if reports drifting to the border from the capital are true.

The problem has its basis in the demands of citizens for expropriation of part of the rich ranch of William R. Hearst, American publisher, which lies 200 miles southwest of El Paso.

If rumors are true, Chihuahua officials have no desire to incur the enmity of Mr. Hearst; his newspapers, which recently have been publishing pro-Mexican dispatches, are indirectly advocating recognition for the southern republic. For this reason they have asked Mr. Hearst whether he will sell part of his ranch to satisfy the demands of nearby residents for farms, and, if so, what price he will accept, it is said. In the meantime, the clamor for Hearst land is increasing.

NEW HOSPITAL FOR INSANE.

Governor to Break Ground for $1,500,000 Institution on July 4.

Ground will be broken by Governor Smith on July 4 for the $1,500,000 hospital at Kings Park, L. I., for the care of mental cases that developed in the army during the war. It is planned to concentrate at the hospital all disabled war veterans now scattered through the State hospitals for the insane.

An appropriation was passed by the last Legislature and plans for the buildings are being drawn by Sullivan W. Jones, State Architect. Associated with Mr. Jones on the committee in charge of the July 4 program are Colonel C. W. Wickersham, Mrs. Willard D. Straight and Dr. Floyd C. Hayland of the State Hospital Commission. American Legion officials are expected to witness the ground-breaking.

None of the new buildings will exceed two stories, and construction and equipment will be the result of intensive study of the most modern institutions caring for the mentally diseased.

RAYNOR FIRM SOLD CLIENTS' COLLATERAL

STOCK EXCHANGE WAS USED

"Big Board" Houses, Referee Is Told, Acted for Consolidated Firm Now Bankrupt.

MATCHED ORDERS SHOWN

Clerk Explains How "Buy" Slips Were Offset by "Sell" Orders for Same Amount of Stock.

Customers' securities were pledged as collateral for bank loans by the bankrupt brokerage firm of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell and were then sold a few months before the firm's failure in June, 1922, according to testimony before Harold P. Coffin, referee in bankruptcy, at his office at 217 Broadway, yesterday.

Stanis J. Deery, who described himself as a "broker for brokers," testified that he had lent the firm about $215,000. Of this amount he said used $180,000 to take up a loan of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell at the Seaboard National Bank. He sold the released securities the same day, he said, and paid the balance to Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell. Deery said these transactions had been financed by Raymond, Shaw & Co., a New York Stock Exchange house. He denied that he had known that he was selling securities of customers of Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, and said he hadn't considered it any of his business.

Specific instances of "matching" a customer's order to buy or sell was shown by the production of a number of order slips, most of them from out of town customers. Joseph Rowm, an order clerk, testified that this had been done by order of DeWitt C. Raynor, head of the firm, whose attention to business was said to have been so close that he was at his office every business day from 8:30 o'clock in the morning until after midnight and never went out to lunch. Efforts to locate Raynor have been unsuccessful and he has been cited for contempt of court for failure to obey a subpoena.

Deery and MacMasters' Fund.

Deery, who was said by William S. Silkworth, President of the Consolidated Exchange, to have been the "father" of the $102,000 fund raised among Consolidated brokerage firms in an unsuccessful attempt to avert the failure of R. H. MacMasters & Co., denied that he had taken the initiative in raising this fund. He declared that Silkworth had been responsible for calling the meeting at which the fund was suggested.

Regarding his loans to the Raynor firm, Deery said that "they would send over securities they wanted loans on and I would lend them the money." A difference between Deery and the referee developed concerning the nature of the transactions. Henry W. Becker, accountant for the trustee, interrupted Deery's testimony to testify that the firm's books showed that Deery apparently took up loans for the firm, took over the securities and paid the difference between the market value of the securities and the loan.

Deery's account showed a debit of $2,200 when the receiver took over the books, Becker said.

"I have a release for that," Deery said.

Deery explained that he lost $45,000 by the failure of Kohler, Bremer & Co., and retired from business. "That broke me," he said. "I borrowed money from a number of sources to wind up my business. I went to Raynor and he said they would release me."

Deery said he did not know whether there was any consideration for the release. He declared that he had not been able since to rehabilitate himself financially. He said he was subsequently employed by L. L. Winkelman & Co. at $125 a week for four weeks shortly before that firm failed.

Goes Through Stock Exchange House.

The witness said that Raynor had asked him for a loan to pay the loans in the Seaboard National Bank after Raynor had made arrangements elsewhere, which fell through. At that time, he said, the banks were calling loans of Consolidated brokers generally, and Raynor asked him to be quick about it when he told him he would first have to see if he could get the money. He said he would pay the loan, sell the securities and remit the balance to the Raynor firm, getting as his profit a commission of $5 for each 100 shares of securities sold and interest. In some cases, he said, it was necessary to sell through a Stock Exchange house, in which case the usual commission was added.

"You're in the same business that McHale & Co. are in, isn't that it?" Mr. Coffin asked, referring to the firm to which a $100,000 check was paid by E. M. Fuller & Co., another bankrupt firm.

"Why, I don't know as to that," said Deery.

"You were running a sort of a broker's hock shop, weren't you?" Mr. Coffin continued.

"If you put it that way," replied the witness.

"That's fair, isn't it?"

"No, it is not fair."

"That's a common term in the Street, isn't it?"

"No," replied Deery. "I may have heard it, but it is not common. Usually they're called loan brokers or money lenders."

Calling Consolidated Loans.

Deery was asked if he had a suspicion why Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell were selling out stocks in such a volume as to amount to $215,000 in a little more than two weeks.

"I believe that every bank in the city was calling loans on Consolidated houses," he replied.

"You took the collateral and sold it out, didn't you?"

"Yes," replied Deery.

"In other words, you were simply used as a medium by this firm to sell out their customers' collateral," Mr. Coffin continued.

"I had no way of knowing at any time whether it was customers' collateral or stocks that they owned themselves," Deery replied.

"When a broker begins to sell stocks through a money lender it is the beginning of the end, isn't it?" Mr. Coffin asked.

"Not necessarily," replied Deery.

"It is usually an indication when a business man finds such a course necessary," Mr. Coffin continued.

"Not in the brokerage business," said Deery. "It is not unusual."

Deery then testified that on March 3, 1922, he took up a loan which Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell had obtained from Miller & Co., a Stock Exchange firm.

"Do you gather that Raynor & Co. had dealings with Miller & Co.?" Mr. Coffin asked.

"Yes. I believe Miller & Co. handled their Stock Exchange business."

None of Deery's Business.

"Did you get the impression that Raynor was liquidating?"

"That might have been my idea," Deery replied.

"In other words, it was none of your business?"

"That's right."

Deery admitted that a short time before this he had taken up loans for R. H. MacMasters & Co., now bankrupt. He said he had also taken up loans for the other brokers, but could not recall their names.

"Were you the clearing house for taking up loans for Consolidated houses?" Mr. Coffin asked.

"I don't know what you mean," said Deery. "There was no clearing house."

Deery said that in obtaining the money to take up the Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell loan in the Seaboard National Bank he had told Mr. Raymond of Raymond, Shaw & Co., what he wanted it for. Some of the stocks received from the bank, after taking up the loan, were sold by Raymond, Shaw & Co., who deducted a commission of $15 a hundred shares.

"It was just a matter of business with Raymond, Shaw & Co., wasn't it?" Mr. Coffin asked.

"Yes, and with me, too," the witness replied.

In other words, you're not the keeper of the Consolidated morals?" Mr. Coffin continued.

"Not at all," Deery replied.

"And, as was once observed, we're in it all the time for our own pocket," Mr. Coffin added.

"That's about the size of it," Deery assented.

The "matching" of customer's orders was admitted by Joseph Rowm, former order clerk for Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell, who identified a number of "matched" order slips, many of which had the buying and selling directions in his own handwriting. Rowm said that six or seven Stock Exchange firms were executing Raynor, Nicholas & Truesdell orders at the time and that Rayner usually handled the orders to these firms himself.

Explains "Matched" Orders.

A typical transaction, as explained by Rowm, took place upon receipt of an order from a customer, in this case from Rochester, N. Y., to buy 200 shares of Endicott-Johnson. An order slip was made out on white paper. At the same time a slip was made out to sell 200 shares of the same stock at the market price, and the orders to buy and to sell 200 shares of Endicott-Johnson were sent out simultaneously. Rowm said that these particular orders were directed by Raynor and pointed out a cross on each, which he said was Raynor's check mark.

Mr. Coffin asked if the only object of this practice was not to furnish the customer the name of a broker. Rowm replied that he didn't know anything about it, and in the preference ignorance of the rule of the Consolidated Stock Exchange prohibiting such "matching" of orders. He admitted that the usual brokerage fees were charged in these transactions and that there was in addition a quarter of 1 per cent. charge when the stock had to be purchased through a specialist.

Frank Quillan, a member of the New York Curb Market Association, testified that he had tried to locate the members of the bankrupt firm of McQuade Brothers, Curb brokers, who formerly dealt with the Raynor firm, but only had been able to learn that they were "traveling." The hearing was adjourned until July 23.

RABINER PLEADS GUILTY.

Broker Gets Five Months' Respite to Make Restitution.

Jules C. Rabiner, head of the brokerage firm of J. C. Rabiner & Co., member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, which failed in September, 1922, for $700,000, pleaded guilty before Judge McIntyre in General Sessions to hypothecating securities of a customer, and was released in $10,000 bail until Nov. 14 to enable him to make restitution.

Thomas Millan of 1,122 University Avenue, the Bronx, charged that forty-five shares of stock, worth $3,600, which he had given to Rabiner for conversion into cash and purchase of another stock, was pocketed by the broker. When Rabiner was arraigned for trial yesterday he told Judge McIntyre he was 38 years old and lived at 536 West 150th Street. Jonah Goldstein, his lawyer, in entering the plea of guilty, told the Court that Rabiner wanted to make restitution, but that he felt he would not be able to do so until November.

Assistant District Attorney Unger joined the lawyer in the request for the extension, saying that Rabiner had agreed to aid District Attorney Banton in his investigation of the failures of several other Consolidated Stock Exchange firms. Rabiner's offense calls for a maximum sentence of five years in Sing Sing and a fine of $1,000.

HEARD MUNICH OVATION WAS PLANNED FOR FORD

Auer, Bavarian Socialist, Thus Testifies in a Libel Suit Brought by Hitler.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 22.—"Henry Ford was to have been received like a King if he ever came to Munich," it was testified by the Bavarian Socialist, Herr Auer, leader of a revolution in Bavaria and subsequently nearly assassinated by anti-Semitic Nationalists in the libel suit of Adolf Hitler, leader of the Bavarian Fascisti, against Stephen Grossmann, the radical editor of the Berlin pink weekly, Das Tagebuch.

The paper had printed a charge that Hitler's National Socialist organization had received money support from Ford, as well as from Bavarian and other Germans captains of industry with anti-Semitic inclinations.

Auer testified that he had received credible reports from many sources that "Henry Ford played a big role in the National Socialist Party." Having no confidence in the Bavarian Government, he had reported his information to "an organ of the Reich's Government." Being told that Ford played a big part in the Bavarian Fascisti movement, he had "investigated Ford and found that he was not only one of the greatest industrialists of America, but one of the directive personages in the French iron syndicate." Auer concluded:

"This double position of Ford in American and French industry and the attitude of the National Socialist Party toward the Ruhr occupation was thought provoking to me."

One of Hitler's principal lieutenants, Christian Weber, testified in rebuttal of Auer. He said:

The National Socialist Party naturally gets money from abroad, mostly from party members in Czechoslovakia and friends in America. The party has not yet received a single penny from Ford, likewise no money from German big industry. The festival reception for Ford, if he had come to Munich would have been meant for Ford the anti-Semite. No relations exist, however, between Ford and the party."

FALLON AND M'GEE ACCUSED BY CLIENT

Woman Alleges Lawyers Refuse to Return Legal Papers and Valuable Property.

JEWELS HELD, SHE SAYS

Also Letters She Received From Col. Samuel James, Racing Man, Who Is Suing Her.

William J. Fallon and Eugene F. McGee, lawyers, were accused before Supreme Court Justice Lydon yesterday by Mrs. Mildred Adams, a former client, of 304 West Eighty-ninth Street, of refusing to turn over to her present attorney, Isidor Gainsburg, legal papers and valuable property in order to enable him to continue litigation in which she is engaged. She alleged that she had been unable to find out the progress of the litigation from her former attorneys and asked for a writ directing the return of the papers.

When the case was called before Justice Lydon a young woman from the office of Fallon & McGee appeared and asked an adjournment because Mr. Fallon was engaged in the trial of the suit against John M. Larsen, the airplane builder. Mr. Gainsburg, who was ready to argue the application, protested against an adjournment, saying that he had written a number of letters to the former attorneys of Mrs. Adams and had received no answer. He stated that she is suing the brokerage firm of J. S. Bache & Co. for American Telephone and Telegraph stock worth $10,988 and that she is being sued by Colonel Samuel L. James, a racing man, for certain jewelry, furniture, an automobile and a valuable dog.

Mr. Gainsburg told Justice Lydon that when the James action was filed Mrs. Adams retained Fallon & McGee as her attorneys, and turned over to the lawyers property which included ten Liberty bonds for $100 each, a diamond and sapphire scarf pin, emerald and diamond scarf pin, bonds of the Alaska Fur and Seal Company, having a face value of $150,000, marriage certificates, statements of accounts from J. S. Bache & Co., and a number of letters written to her by Colonel Adams.

Mr. Gainsburg stated that he understood that the stock had been delivered by J. S. Bache & Co. in the replevin suit of Colonel James, to Sheriff Nagle, and that Mrs. Adams had paid the lawyers $700 as premium on a surety bond given to protect the Sheriff in holding the property. He stated that he has been informed that the surety company is threatening to cancel the bond on the ground that security for it has not been delivered.

Justice Lydon directed that all papers in the case be filed today and reserved decision. The records show that Frank J. Murphy, member of J. S. Bache & Co., appeared in the Tombs Court on May 18, last, in response to a summons by Mrs. Adams charging that he had refused to turn over certain stock to her, but was discharged because Mrs. Adams and her counsel, Eugene F. McGee did not appear. Mr. Murphy testified that he withheld the stock because conflicting claims for it had culminated in a civil action.

KLAN FAILS TO FILE ITS MEMBERSHIP LIST

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 22.—Tomorrow is the last day on which membership corporations and unincorporated associations having a membership of twenty or more which require an oath as a prerequisite to membership can file membership lists with the Secretary of State under the recent amendment to the Benevolent Orders law.

Up to the time the Secretary's office closed tonight the Ku Klux Klan had not filed its list. It was stated that thus far the only corporations affected which had filed the list of members, constitution, by-laws, &c., were the National Fraternity of Alpha Chi Rho, of which Otto P. Sieter of New York is President, the Gamma Eta Gamma Fraternity of Oneonta and the National Sugar Brokers' Association, which has its principal office at 82 Wall Street, New York.

The intent of the amendment to the Benevolent Orders law, which is known as the Walker law, was to bring publicity to the Ku Klux Klan. The Klan, however, has declared that it will not obey the law. The Secretary of State's office is only a filing office and any prosecution is up to the Attorney General's office.

It has been asserted that the Klan is relying on that part of the Benevolent Orders law which specifies the organizations that are not required to file their membership, which includes "any subordinate lodge, tribe or other body of any benevolent or fraternal order or society incorporated under and pursuant to the laws of this State."

The Klan, it is said, probably will file only its Grand Lodge officers, claiming that the section does not require it to file the memberships of subordinate lodges. The Klan and the Order of Kamelia recently filed incorporation papers with the Secretary of State.

No opinion has been asked of Attorney General Sherman as yet, but it is understood that one will be forthcoming when the law is questioned.

The Walker amendment was signed May 22, and the thirty days in which these organizations have to file their lists will expire at noon tomorrow, when the Secretary of State's office will close.

ORDERS KLAN SECRETS KEPT

ATLANTA, Ga., June 22.—A temporary injunction restraining William Joseph Simmons, Emperor of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and others from "giving away" the secrets and ritual of the Klan to the newly organized Knights of Kamelia was signed late yesterday by Judge John C. Humphries, it became known today.

The order was issued in reponse to a petition filed by representatives of the Klan faction headed by H. W. Evans, Imperial Wizard.

The Court's order set the hearing for Saturday.

Defendants named in the petition are William Joseph Simmons, Emperor; the Rev. Caleb Ridley, former Imperial Kludd, or chaplain; J. O. Wood, editor of The Searchlight; Henry J. Norton, W. H. Lothrop Jr., William G. Thompson, E. J. Jones, Thomas H. Kirby, C. W. Besom, N. M. Moore and the Knights of the Kamelia.

Petty of the New York Law School presided. The exercises included a musical program. Judge Alfred J. Talley of the Court of General Sessions addressed the graduating class. Professors Petty and George C. Smith awarded the diplomas and degrees. Forty-eight of the class live in New York City.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 22.—Thousands of passengers are leaving Southampton this week-end to enter the United States on July 1, the first day on which emigration from the British Isles becomes possible again under the quota system. So great is the rush that many passengers, unable to get other accommodations, left Southampton today on the Antonia for Canada, to go overland to the United States.

To avoid arriving at New York before July 1 both the Aquitania and the Ohio are taking an extra day at Southampton, and the liners already at sea, it is stated, will slow down before reaching the other side.

Three thousand emigrants left the Clyde today, and 1,206 others will sail tomorrow.

HEAR CITY JUSTICE'S WIFE

Testifies Alleged Slayer Was Calm During Phone Talk on Night of Slaying.

Counsel for Mrs. Anna Buzzi, on trial in the Bronx Supreme Court on a charge of murdering Frederick Schneider, began yesterday to establish an alibi for the woman. An effort was made to show the impossibility of the prosecutor's contention that Mrs. Buzzi was the woman who walked away from Schneider's automobile after the shooting, and apparently boarded a trolley car bound in the direction of Mrs. Buzzi's apartment.

The murder is supposed to have been committed about 5:20 P. M., Feb. 26 last, on Sound View Road, near Clason Point. Mrs. Buzzi has an apartment on the Grand Concourse. The defense put in testimony tending to prove she could not have got from the scene of the murder to her apartment between 5:20 and the time she will be shown to have been in the apartment.

James F. Donnelly, chief counsel for the defendant, called to the stand William J. Snell and Henry S. Laughlin, inspectors on the trolley line Mrs. Buzzi would have used had she made the trip. Snell testified that the regular running time from the place where Schneider was killed to 167th Street and Westchester Avenue, the transfer point, was eight minutes. Laughlin said that it would take eighteen minutes under normal conditions to ride from 167th Street and Westchester Avenue to Sheridan Avenue, on the east side of the Grand Concourse, where a passenger would alight to go to Mrs. Buzzi's apartment.

To the twenty-six minutes total running time for the two rides, the inspectors testified, from two to four minutes would have to be added for the trip on Feb. 26 because of the bad weather which made the rails slippery.

The closest Mr. Donnelly came to placing Mrs. Buzzi in her apartment at any definite time was through testimony of Mrs. Rose C. McGeehan, wife of City Court Justice John E. McGeehan, who said she telephoned to Mrs. Buzzi "between 6 and 6:10." According to Mrs. McGeehan, she and Mrs. Buzzi talked for eight or nine minutes, and Mrs. Buzzi did not seem agitated or in a hurry to end the talk.

Raymond W. Conway, a surety bond agent, of 60 John Street, testified he attend a dinner on the night of the shooting, at which Mrs. Buzzi was to have been a guest. The telephone rang and Dolly Sutton, who answered, said Mrs. Buzzi could not come, because Schneider had met with an accident.

Mrs. Sophie Dickie, one of Mrs. Buzzi's sisters, was cross-examined by Assistant District Attorney Conn about her testimony the day before, when she said that William Ture, husband of another sister, had told her the night before the murder:

"It's a good look at him. There won't be any Fred Schneider after 5 o'clock tomorrow."

Mrs. Dickie said she had not told her husband or Mrs. Buzzi about Ture's threat, and after her sister had been arrested, because the incident slipped her mind until she saw a newspaper picture of the pistol found in the automobile with Schneider's body.

The trial was adjourned until Monday when Mrs. Buzzi probably will take the stand.

SEIZE ALLEGED HEADS OF BOND 'FENCE' GANG

Four Oklahoma Prisoners Are Suspected of Complicity in Mail Thefts Here.

TULSA, Okla., June 22.—Closing in on an alleged powerful gang which, it is charged, has acted as a "fence" for bonds stolen in all parts of the country, federal officers today arrested "Ed" King of the Bank of Shidler, at Shidler, Okla., and "Dell" Williams of Pawhuska. King is alleged by the officers to be the leader of the band.

Walter Chitwood, a young Indian attorney of this city, and "Con" Sullivan, alleged by the Federal authorities to be a wealthy gambler of Tulsa and Fort Worth, Ark., are also in the Federal prison at Muskogee, following the recovery late yesterday of $16,000 in Argentine Government bonds, which the authorities say are part of a large sum in securities stolen about two months ago in a daylight robbery in New York.

The arrests were made late yesterday by a private detective. Chitwood was said to have made a confession to Federal officers involving the operation of a gang here which has been disposing of stolen securities obtained in hold-ups and bank robberies from New York to San Francisco. Those stolen the bonds were in registered mail sacks.

The authorities believe several hundred thousand dollars' worth of stolen bonds are in the possession of members of the band in this vicinity. Less than an hour after Chitwood and Sullivan had been arrested they were on the way to Muskogee under guard.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., June 22.—Walter M. Chitwood, a Tulsa attorney and "Con." Sullivan, alleged Tulsa and Fort Smith gambler, were held in jail here late today under bond of $7,500 each following their pleas of not guilty to the charges of possession of matter stolen from the United States mails.

They were arraigned before United States Commissioner Mountcastle following their arrest in Tulsa, when Chitwood tried to dispose of a $1,000 Argentine Government bond, alleged to have been part of loot obtained in a holdup in New York.

Federal officials here said that the robbery occurred in 1921.

Woman Acquitted of Kidnapping.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 22.—Mrs. Harriet A. Grinnell of Alexandria Bay was acquitted tonight of the charge of concealing Verner Alexanderson after he was kidnapped from Schenectady April 30. The prosecutor will try to hold Mrs. Grinnell until October as a witness against Mrs. Harry Fairbanks, indicted for kidnapping.

CREIGHTONS FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

Newark Jury Acquits Husband and Wife of Causing Death of Young Avery.

SHE FACES OTHER CHARGES

Conference Today Will Decide If Trials Will Be Held—Man Is Released.

Mrs. Mary A. Creighton and her husband, John, were acquitted yesterday by a jury in Newark in fifty-three minutes of the charge that they had administered arsenic which was alleged to have caused the death on April 20 of Charles Raymond Avery, Mrs. Creighton's brother, 18 years old.

Mrs. Creighton swooned in her husband's arms when the verdict was announced. Creighton was freed, but Mrs. Creighton was returned to the House of Detention.

The woman faces two more indictments, one for the alleged poisoning of her mother-in-law, Mrs. John F. Creighton, who died Dec. 1, 1920, and another for alleged attempt to obtain money under false pretenses from a Newark department store. Her counsel will seek her release on bail this morning before Judge Edwin Caffery, who presided at the murder trial.

Whether Mrs. Creighton would be called to face these charges became a question last night. J. Victor D'Aloia, assistant prosecutor, said nothing would be determined until after a conference he expected to hold today with Prosecutor Bigelow.

After his release Creighton went to the home of Walter Deany, a friend, in Kearny, N. J., who has been taking care of the Creightons' 4-year-old daughter, Ruth. John, the baby born to Mrs. Creighton in jail, remained with his mother.

The defense did not call any witnesses in the murder trial. After both sides had presented closing arguments, the fate of the couple was placed in the jury's hands at 3:47 in the afternoon. The strain of waiting told upon Mrs. Creighton, who for the first time during the four-day trial displayed nervousness. She was controlling herself with an effort when the doors of the jury room opened at 4:40 and the twelve men filed back to the box in the crowded courtroom.

Mrs. Creighton's coolness seemed to return as the climax approached, and she arose without effort, with her husband, when William Crouthers, clerk of the court, began his inquiry of Carl U. Herrdegen, foreman, if a verdict had been reached. She was looking straight at Herrdegen when he announced:

"We, the jury, find the defendants not guilty."

The young woman smiled quietly, then suddenly collapsed. Her husband caught her as she fell.

Following the death of young Avery, word reached the prosecutor that his sister, with whom he lived, had been interested mainly in the $1,000 life insurance he had made out to her and in a fund of $1,000 held in trust for him. Investigation revealed the presence of arsenic in alleged fatal quantity in the organs of the dead youth. The Creightons were arrested on suspicion of having administered the arsenic by slow doses in chocolate pudding.

WAIVERS REFUSED BY CONSOLIDATED

Decides Like Stock Exchange That Members Cannot Be Ordered to Forego Rights.

Deputy Attorney General John J. Dwyer announced yesterday that he understood that the Consolidated Stock Exchange had joined the New York Stock Exchange in refusing to comply with the Attorney General's request that the exchanges compel their members to waive immunity whenever the Attorney General calls them to testify or produce their books for examination.

According to Mr. Dwyer, William S. Silkworth, who is to retire as President of the Consolidated next week, took the floor at a meeting of the Board of Governors on Thursday and tried to persuade them that it would be the best thing the Exchange could do for its own good repute to adopt the resolutions suggested by the Attorney General, even though the Stock Exchange had refused to adopt them.

Mr. Dwyer's information was that Silkworth had failed to convince the Governors, who felt for one thing that they could not force their members to waive their constitutional rights, and also that the Martin law, under which the Attorney General is proceeding, was not the right way to solve the bucket-shop problem. Mr. Dwyer said that he had heard that the immunity question had been referred to the Law Committee, which he said meant in effect that it had been killed.

QUIT FOR 30 CENTS A DAY.

Cement Workers Demand $7.50—Independent Union Scale $7.20.

A dispute over an increase of 30 cents a day is the cause of the strike of cement workers. Union officials say there are 5,000 men on strike, but employers put the number at 2,000. The men are members of Cement and Concrete Workers' Unions 6, 18 and 20. An independent local, with an estimated membership of 800, is not affected.

Warehouses and terminals are among the largest jobs likely to feel the effect of the strike, it is said. Some of the large companies involved are the Turner Construction Company, American Concrete Steel Company, Aetna Concrete Company, Barney-Ahlers Construction Corporation, Hegeman-Harris Company, Inc., National Engineering Company and the Ronald Taylor Company.

The strikers demand $7.50 a day, while the independent workers are contented with $7.20.

The building industry also faces a possible strike of three locals of the Inside Iron and Bronze Workers' Union, whose members demand a minimum weekly wage of $55 for helpers and $65 for journeymen workers, with a forty-four-hour week instead of a forty-five-hour week. Their demands have been refused by the employers.

CONSOLIDATED FIRM EXPELLED BY BOARD

Action Against P. G. Stamm & Co. Follows Investigation by Audit Committee.

SILKWORTH WILL GET OUT

President Repeats That His Resignation Will Be Presented and Accepted Thursday.

After the announcement of William S. Silkworth, printed yesterday, that he would resign as President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange next Thursday, the Committee of Five, recently appointed to investigate the affairs of the Exchange, issued the following statement:

"The special committee appointed by the Board of Governors on May 16, 1923, to examine into the management and affairs of the Consolidated Stock Exchange is still functioning. It is very evident, from the nature of its duties, that this committee cannot make a final report until its conclusions have been reached. When such has taken place a complete report will be rendered to the Board of Governors.

"The committee, however, desires to state that no resignation of any official of the Exchange has been presented to the Board of Governors. At a meeting of the board Thursday afternoon, no resignation of any official was even informally mentioned or discussed."

In reply Mr. Silkworth said:

"What I said Thursday afternoon stands. My resignation will be presented and accepted by the Board of Governors of the Exchange on Thursday, June 28. I have been a target for a great deal of personal abuse and for some time have been of the opinion that this was injuring the Exchange. It was my intention to resign sometime ago, but I agreed with my lawyers, and did not wish to retire under fire.

"The Exchange has made remarkable progress during the last year. The disclosures in the various bankruptcy hearings actually happened more than a year ago. Since that time we have put our place in order and our houses are doing a clean, legitimate business."

Stamm Failed to Appear.

At their meeting on Thursday the Consolidated Governors expelled P. G. Stamm, of P. G. Stamm & Co. from membership in the Exchange, and yesterday issued this statement in regard to their action.

"P. G. Stamm was expelled from membership on the Consolidated Stock Exchange at a meeting of the Board of Governors yesterday afternoon for violation of Section 1 of Article 3 of the by-laws. This section provides that 'Any member who shall fail or refuse to appear before the Board of Governors, or who shall fail or refuse to answer any and all questions relating to his business and his financial standing, may, in the discretion of the said board . . . be expelled by a two-thirds vote of the whole Board of Governors,' &c.

"The expulsion followed an investigation by the Bureau of Auditing and Accounting of the Exchange, which disclosed that a large part of the firm's transactions were being executed elsewhere than on the floor of the Exchange. Stamm was summoned before the Committee on Ways and Means to explain these transactions, but failed to appear, and wrote a letter offering to withdraw from membership. The offer was declined and Stamm was summoned before the Board of Governors on Thursday, June 21. He failed to appear and the board accordingly voted to expel him."

P. G. Stamm & Co. issued the following statement in reply:

"On June 22, 1920, we offered our resignation to the Board of Governors of the Consolidated Stock Exchange and again on June 12 and June 21 of this year. Our reason for desiring to resign was because of unfavorable publicity the Exchange has been receiving recently. We plan to continue doing business in bonds and investment securities."

Reports were current yesterday that several large firms holding membership in both the Curb and the Consolidated would retire. At the same time, it was said yesterday that New York Stock Exchange firms are increasing their memberships in the Curb Market. Many accounts have been switched recently from the Curb and Consolidated firms to Stock Exchange houses. E. P. Epps & Co., 20 Broad Street, members of the Curb for about twenty years, are one of the firms mentioned to liquidating its accounts preparatory to retirement from business. E. P. Epps, head of the organization, died about five years ago, and the chief partners of the present firm are E. C. Devereux and D. B. Beronio.

STORM IN WALL STREET OVER, SAY BANKERS

Two Stock Exchange Firms Reported as Weak Found to Be Solvent.

With the failures of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne and Zimmermann & Forshay now in the past, Wall Street bankers yesterday went on record as saying that the aspect of things had changed and that the worst of the storm was now over.

Rumors to the effect that more failures were imminent were described as hearsay. In an effort to check up on some of the stories which had gained widespread circulation in Wall Street, a number of banks and the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. were visited yesterday.

The first rumor to be nailed was that pertaining to an alleged conference of bankers after the failure of Zimmermann & Forshay. Such a conference, it was stated, was never held, nor had there appeared any reason for such a conference. Another conference report which had attracted considerable attention was that Seymour L. Cromwell, President of the Stock Exchange, and a group of bankers had held a closed conference Thursday night. This was emphatically denied. Mr. Cromwell visited the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday morning, but the visit was described as informal and lasted a little more than one minute.

Buying by banks of stocks and bonds on Thursday was regarded as entirely of a "bargain" character, but none of the banks was willing to comment on its purchases.

No banker would go so far as to say there would be no more failures, but it was said that an investigation into the affairs of at least two firms concerning which there had been rumors of difficulties resulted in proof that these firms were sound. Brokerage houses, it was said, are in a healthier condition than they have been for some weeks. The reduction of loans since March has been upward of $300,000,000 and those now outstanding are amply secured. Bankers declared that in case of needed support they would not hesitate to step into the breach, as they did on Thursday.

Won at Polls by Two Votes Only to Find He Loses by One

PASSAIC, N. J., June 22.—John R. Johnson, declared elected City Commissioner recently by two votes, found today he had been defeated by one vote. City Commissioner Frederick Sieper was elected to succeed himself, when announcement was made by the Board of Elections that three voided votes for Johnson had been erroneously counted.

The result may be changed again, as Supreme Court Justice Minturn is to pass on the validity of ninety-four doubtful ballots.

BROKER ENJOINED AS A BUCKETEER

State Acts to Close Out J. M. Glassman, Expelled Recently by Consolidated.

IMMUNITY NOT GRANTED

Books Were Not Examined by Attorney General and Banton Is Free to Act.

For the second time in two days the Attorney General's office yesterday got an injunction restraining a brokerage firm from continuing to bucket orders or to use other fraudulent methods. The firm enjoined yesterday was James M. Glassman & Co. of 80 State Street, Boston, which has a New York office at 11 Stone Street. A temporary injunction against Glassman & Co. was issued by Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel, pending examination of Glassman and the books and papers of his company. He was directed to appear with his books before a Supreme Court Justice at 10:30 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

Justice Wasservogel issued the injunction at the request of Deputy Attorney General Abraham Rosenthal, who charged that Glassman & Co. had used fictitious statements as "a subterfuge to cover pretended purchases or sale of securities." Mr. Rosenthal attached to his petition an affidavit signed by William J. McLaughlin of W. F. McLaughlin & Co., certified public accountants of 52 Broadway, who recited the results of an investigation he had made of Glassman & Co. at the instance of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Glassman was a member of the Consolidated when the investigation was made, but he was expelled last Monday on the charge of "obvious fraud and false pretenses."

Debts $160,000; Assets $15,000.

McLaughlin reported that he found the books of Glassman & Co. "in a chaotic condition." His investigation, he said, had convinced him that Glassman & Co. were insolvent and that their liabilities, as of June 20, were more than $160,000, whereas the assets he was able to locate were less than $15,000.

A statement issued by Deputy Attorney General John J. Dwyer, in charge of the New York office of the Attorney General, said that in the Glassman case, as in the case of the injunctions against Wilfred W. Wesse and Joseph H. Dube, which were issued on Thursday, the Attorney General had granted no immunity to those who had interfered with any criminal prosecution that District Attorney Banton may wish to make.

"We have not examined any of these brokers or their books," Mr. Dwyer said, "and therefore have not given any immunity under the Martin law. In the Wesse and Dube case we got our information from a customer and from an investigation made by the Better Business Bureau, and in the Glassman case the Consolidated Stock Exchange turned over to us the information obtained in their investigation.

"In cases like these the District Attorney can use the information to give us as a basis for asking indictments, without bothering about the books and the immunity question or waiting until the brokers go into bankruptcy so that he can get the books without giving immunity.

"We turned over all our information in the Wesse and Dube case to District Attorney Banton this morning and he can take any action warranted by the evidence."

Mr. Dwyer said that the injunction granted against Wesse and Dube, trading as J. H. Dube & Co., did not apply to H. Dube & Co., Inc., now occupying the same offices as those formerly occupied by Wesse and Dube as J. H. Dube & Co. at 50 Broad Street.

FAILED FIRMS HOLD ALIENS' SECURITIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Colonel Thomas W. Miller, the Alien Property Custodian, issued a statement today concerning the recent failures of two New York banking and brokerage firms and their relations with the office of the Alien Property Custodian. The statement discloses the fact that the Alien Property Custodian has five trusts with Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne and two active trusts in the firm of Zimmermann & Forshay, but says there is no reason for believing that either the Alien Property Custodian, acting as trustee for the enemy owners of the property originally seized or the brokerage firms, will suffer any loss.

"The reason the Alien Property Custodian has business relations with Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne and Zimmermann & Forshay," said Colonel Miller, "is due to the fact that prior to the war alien enemies whose property was subsequently seized by the United States Government had accounts with the firms mentioned. Under the provisions of the law, the Alien Property Custodian demanded the various stocks and bonds in the possession of these brokerage firms which belonged to alien enemies. The stocks and bonds were held by the brokerage firms as security for debit balances owed by the alien enemies. The Alien Property Custodian does not have actual, physical possession of the stocks and bonds deposited as security against loans. When the debit balances are paid, the brokerage firms in the ordinary course of business would have turned over the stocks and bonds to the Alien Property Custodian.

"There is no reason to believe that either the Alien Property Custodian, who is acting as trustee for the enemy owners of the property originally seized, or the brokerage firms who have been forced to the wall, will suffer any loss through these trusts. The Alien Property Custodian has five trusts with Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne. The total value of the securities of these trusts is approximately $70,000, at the present low market quotations. The debit balance against this was $66,240.

"There are two active trusts in the firm of Zimmermann & Forshay. The total valuation of the securities held by this firm is approximately $152,794 based on present market values, while the debit balance is $118,419, leaving a margin of nearly $40,000 on the right side of the ledger.

"These trusts have been in the hands of the same firms since the property was seized; dividends have been collected, I am informed, to take care of the interest charges, and there has never been a request, at least since I have been Custodian, that these trusts be liquidated."

SEES A GAIN FOR AMERICA

It Would Help Our Prestige and Be of Aid Also to Our Commercial Interests.

ANSWERS GERMANS' PLEA

Says Versailles Treaty and Berlin Itself Justify Paris in Occupying the Ruhr.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—Speaking before the Delaware Bar Association at a luncheon in the Hotel du Pont today, William D. Guthrie, New York attorney, made an earnest appeal for cancellation of part of the French war debt to the United States and for easier term payments for the balance.

Mr. Guthrie informed his audience, which included several jurists, that he believes occupation of the Ruhr district is justified as the only measure available for compelling Germany to live up to her obligations.

The occasion for Mr. Guthrie's theme was a recent appeal by a German association of attorneys asking the profession throughout the world to protest against French and Belgian occupation of the Ruhr as a violation of the Treaty of Versailles.

Mr. Guthrie denied Germany's contention that such a measure of enforcement would be legal only when brought about by joint action of the allied and associated powers. He went into a lengthy legal analysis of the treaty to establish his point.

"The Reparation Commission," Mr. Guthrie said, "has found and duly certified that Germany has made default under the Treaty of Versailles

REA STRESSES NEED OF MERGING ROADS

Tells Commerce Commission Consolidation Should Be Freed From Anti-Trust Restrictions.

WOULD DROP WEAKER ONES

Pennsylvania and New Jersey Trade Bodies Oppose Combining P. & R. With B. & O.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—Railroad consolidations should be encouraged to eliminate unnecessary corporations, Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, stated as a witness today in City Hall at the hearing conducted by the Interstate Commerce Commission on its tentative plan for uniting the railroads of the United States to twenty-one systems.

Mr. Rea said if there was any doubt as to the present provisions of the Transportation act regarding the power of the existing roads to unite free from the restrictions of anti-trust laws, Federal or State, a new consolidation act should be passed which would permit consolidation under terms approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

A note of warning was sounded by Mr. Rea in his statement, which supplemented his remarks made at a hearing last month in Washington, when he asked, "How can a strong road, without any guarantee from the Government, get the consent of its bond and stockholders to consolidate with weak roads or to give up, voluntarily and at its own risk, part of its present property, traffic or earnings to a weak road to make it strong?"

Would the public be willing to pay the necessary freight and passenger rates to sustain a weak road, he asked, "if the weak road should be abandoned in whole or in part, or its capitalization reduced because of poor service, why not do so before consolidation," he added.

Mr. Rea said he would aim to reduce the 1,000 or more separate railroad operating and lesser corporations that form an essential part of the Continental transportation system into 186 Class I railroad companies and fourteen important switching and terminal companies and then reduce the 186 to a relatively small number of systems, since twenty-two recognized systems now earned 85 per cent. of the transportation revenue of the country.

Answering a question asked by Professor William Z. Ripley of Harvard University, Mr. Rea said he was in favor of paying some price for the shares held by a minority interest as was paid for a controlling stock interest in any corporation. Professor Ripley is the author of a plan for consolidating the railroads and appeared as a special examiner for the Commerce Commission with Thomas F. Healy.

Commercial and industrial organizations of this city and Pennsylvania and New Jersey opposed the plan to consolidate the Philadelphia & Reading Railway with the Baltimore & Ohio, on the ground that Philadelphia would suffer, the Baltimore & Ohio's main interest being in developing Baltimore and it has not heretofore been any too friendly to Philadelphia.

SMITH DEFIES THE HEAT.

Governor Plays Golf Under Blazing Sun in Indiana.

Special to The New York Times.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., June 22.—With the mercury hovering about the 95-degree mark on the shaded porches of the hotel, Governor Smith spent this afternoon in the blazing sun on the golf course, but he played only nine holes.

With the Governor was Democratic National Committeeman Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, who arrived here yesterday on a professedly non-political mission, but since his arrival he has told Governor Smith that the Democrats of the Keystone State would prefer a Democrat with liberal views on prohibition and prohibition enforcement to lead them in the Presidential fight next year.

During the day the Governor received word from Oklahoma indicating that things looked well for him in that State if he should decide to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for President. The word was brought by a friend of Mr. Guffey, who came here to confer with him.

Charles M. Winchester, head of the J. E. Lyons Printing Company and a member of Governor Smith's party, left for Albany early this morning.

Governor Smith and those who came with him are near the end of their holiday. The Governor is tanned and looks in the pink of condition. He has been very faithful in his observance of all the exacting rules of the health course he has pursued here and professes to have benefited greatly from the waters.

Tomorrow he will put in his last afternoon at golf before his departure for the East at 6 o'clock Sunday morning. He expects to reach Albany early Monday afternoon.

The incorporators are Cleveland H. Dodge, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Edwin F. Gay, Jeremiah W. Jenks, Morgan J. O'Brien, Oscar S. Straus and Roger H. Williams, New York; Charles F. Kent, Henry Wade Rogers, New Haven, Conn.; Alton B. Parker, George Foster Peabody, Lloyd W. Smith, Madison, N. J.; Samuel Thorne Jr., and Frank A. Vanderlip.

INDICT 6 OFFICIALS IN L. R. STEEL CRASH

Grand Jury Charges Violation of Corporation Laws and Larceny in Stock Sales.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 22.—Grand Jury indictments against six former officers and Directors of the defunct L. R. Steel Corporation were reported, and five of the indicted officials were arraigned before Justice Hinkley in Supreme Court today after a week of investigation conducted before the jury by District Attorney Guy B. Moore and Deputy Attorney General Hugh Reilly.

All five of the defendants pleaded not guilty and were admitted to bail. Two of the indictments were secret.

Those indicted and arraigned today were:

Walter M. Wilkins, former general counsel for the steel companies and head of the L. R. Steel Corporation when it was thrown into bankruptcy on April 30, shortly after the sudden death of Leonard R. Steel on a train near Toledo, charged with receiving commissions in violation of a section of the State corporation laws relative to stock sales.

Paul F. Chase, former head of the L. R. Steel Service Corporation, indicted on four counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stock.

Arthur J. Todd, former superintendent of branches of the L. R. Steel Service Corporation, indicted on three counts of grand larceny in connection with the sale of Steel stocks.

James R. Nicholson, former Treasurer of L. R. Steel, Inc., and Director of several of the companies, charged with receiving commissions in violation of the corporation laws.

Francis J. Rohr, former President of the Steel Realty Development Company, appeared in court and pleaded not guilty to accepting commissions in violation of the laws.

Chase and Todd were held in $7,500 bail each. Wilkins, Nicholson and Rohr were admitted to $1,000 bail.

DEMOTTE DEFENDS STATUES

Declares He Found Missing Parts in an Old Lot of Roman Stones.

Copyright, 1923, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 22.—George Joseph Demotte, the antique dealer, explained this afternoon to Assistant Prosecutor Amaline that the missing legs of the Parthenay Kings, which, it has been charged, were fabricated in his workshops, were found by him among an old lot of stones purchased by a Nantes dealer at Parthenay. By good fortune, he says, he found in the same lot of stones the missing figures and heads from the Annunciation bas relief.

These are the missing parts which had been hunted for by various interested archaeologists as far back as 1904 and which so far as earnest investigation could establish had never been seen in the memory of living man.

The Nantes dealer, who furnished Mr. Demotte with the valuable missing bodies and the limbs has since died. The Paris and New York antiquary told the prosecutor. Likewise the antiquary who had sold him the Lansquenet bas-relief is no longer among the living. Mr. Demotte also informed the interrogator that the purchase of the heads of the Kings and the heads and bodies of the Shepherds did not appear on his books as purchases being marked only as a "lot of Roman stones."

Mr. Demotte did, however, offer a witness in the form of a dealer who he stated had bought the Lansquenet from and later sold it back to him.

The antiquary declared that all statues in question are genuine in all parts and that these parts simply had been joined in his workshops.

Tomorrow morning the dealer again will be heard by M. Amaline, and in the afternoon will be called before Examining Magistrate Becquard, who is directing the investigation into the alleged faking.

CITY MAY GET BIG ESTATE.

Billings Estate, on Upper Riverside, Available as Park.

In a communication to the Board of Estimate yesterday Julius Miller, President of the Borough of Manhattan, urged the reconsideration of an offer whereby the Billings estate on upper Washington Heights could be acquired by the city for park purposes.

Previously when the matter was presented to the board it was unable to consider the offer because of the city's financial condition. In his letter the Borough President wrote:

"In 1917 the Billings estate, on upper Washington Heights, was offered to the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, to give a proper setting to the entrance to the Interstate parks in New Jersey and New York, by way of the Dyckman Street ferry. Believing that a park on this side of the river should be under the jurisdiction of the city, request was made that the offer be made to the city.

"The owner of the property was approached and did offer the property to the city on condition that the land west of Riverside Drive between Fort Washington Park and the Billings estate be acquired by the city.

"Should the board desire to consider the addition of this land to its park system, I would suggest that a resolution be adopted authorizing negotiations with the owners of the property, with the object of acquiring the land by deed of cession."

SAVE 4 FROM SEWER FUMES.

Newark Firemen Don Gas Masks to Rescue City Workers.

Four men are in the City Hospital at Newark in a serious condition from gas fumes which they inhaled yesterday in a city sewer they were about to repair. Three of them were overcome when they descended into the sewer to rescue their companion. A fireman also was slightly affected.

Firemen equipped with gas masks saved the men from death. Pulmotors were used by ambulance surgeons as the men were being taken to the hospital, where they were identified as Tony Policastro, Amilio Stano, Gaetano Epolito and Giuseppe Volpe. The fireman overcome was Raymond McElroy of Engine Company 27.

Volpe was first to enter the sewer. When he failed to give the usual safety signal three comrades hurried to his aid. They also failed to signal and the foreman of the gang, alarmed, summoned police and firemen.

SEEK TO MANDAMUS MELLON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The George A. Fuller Company, contractors, filed suit today in the District Supreme Court against Secretary Mellon to compel him to receive and consider a claim for relief under the Act of Congress passed for the relief of contractors who found themselves losing money on Government war work because of high costs of labor and material.

The firm rebuilt the Court House in Washington, which housed the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia under a contract dated April 13, 1917. The loss amounted to $86,408.86. The Court was informed by Secretary Mellon has refused to consider the application for relief. The Court was asked to issue a writ of mandamus.

COMMISSION GRANTS NICKEL PLATE UNION

THREE MEMBERS DISSENT

Minority Holds Decision Reduces the General Consolidation Plan to "Helpless Futility."

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The project of the Van Sweringen group, now in control of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad, to consolidate that property with the Lake Erie & Western, the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati & Louisville Railroad and the Chicago & State Line Railroad was approved today in its entirety by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission's order took the form of approving the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Company's application to issue 327,200 shares of 6 per cent. preferred stock and 462,479 shares of common stock, a part of which is to be exchanged for issued capital stock of the companies to be taken into the merger.

The order also incorporated a certificate declaring that public convenience and necessity required the operation of the group of lines as a single unit.

Commissioners Hall, Eastman and Esch dissented from the majority opinion, on the ground that the general plan of consolidation of railroads would be interfered with if a single group was permitted to proceed with a merger. Commissioner Eastman declared the majority had accepted "a construction of the law which reduces the plan of consolidation to a state of helpless futility."

The majority in granting the Nickel Plate Corporation's request said:

"The arguments against granting the application before us have been carefully weighed. Extensive discussion of them seems unnecessary. We are satisfied the proposed issue is in the public interest. The tentative consolidation plan of the commission and the showing made in this proceeding support the conclusion that consolidation of the properties and corporations here involved as serves the public interest that impediment would be misfortune.

"Applicable State laws afford means to effect the consolidation. Such laws are in force. They are, in fact, the laws to which respect must be had to effectuate consolidation, which the Interstate Commerce act is designed to facilitate. * * *

"The provisions of the Interstate Commerce act do not provide compulsory consolidation. That has been considered by Congress and rejected.

"In view of that rejection it does not seem we should conclude that the Congress intended to prevent voluntary consolidations under available State laws in order that, to force consolidation under such general plans as we may ultimately adopt. The provisions of the Interstate Commerce act regarding consolidation have ample purpose without construing them as denying the right of State corporations to consolidate where State laws permit. * * *

"In view of the obvious intent of the Congress to facilitate worthy consolidations, and of the comprehensive power given to us, it would be unfortunate to construe the law as preventing a consolidation which serves the public interest in an exceptional degree, as here.

"This finding will gravely impair, if it does not destroy, Mr. Eastman's dissenting opinion said, of our power to administer successfully what the authors of the Transportation act of 1920 deemed to be one of its most constructive and important provisions. In my opinion it is an ill considered and unsound finding. Even if I were in doubt in regard to the meaning and intent of the law, I should still feel that the commission ought not to undermine its own jurisdiction in this matter prior to an expression of opinion in the courts."

BUILDING OWNERS ELECT.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 22.—America's skyscrapers will be more beautiful in the future than at present if the present tendencies in architectural design prevail, said John Mead Howells of New York in a paper read at the annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers at the Ambassador today. Mr. Howells, with Raymond M. Hood, won the first prize in the contest held by The Chicago Tribune for its new building.

The association re-elected Earl Shultz of Chicago to the Presidency. Leo Thompson Smith of New York was re-elected First Vice President and Paul Robertson of Indianapolis was again chosen Second Vice President. Other officers named were: Third Vice President, W. I. Lewis of Cleveland; Secretary, H. C. Daniels of Los Angeles; Treasurer, William M. MacLachlan of Detroit. The new Directors chosen are Waldo Avery, Detroit; E. M. Horine, Atlanta; J. C. O'Callahan, Philadelphia; E. K. Vanwinkle, New York, and Dean Vincent, Portland.

At the closing session Clarence T. Coley, manager of the Equitable Building of New York, declared that the zoning movement, with its demand that buildings be constructed in accordance with the set-back method, will result in higher construction costs and higher rentals.

Mrs. Freda A. Tilden of Seattle won the prize offered by the association for the best paper on any phase of building management.

WOMAN DIPLOMAT RESIGNS.

Miss Stancioff Quits as Protest Over Death of Stambulisky.

LONDON, June 23 (Associated Press).—In consequence of the Bulgarian revolution and the death of her old chief, former Premier Stambulisky, Miss Nadeja Stancioff today resigned her position as First Secretary of the Bulgarian Legation in Washington, whither she was soon to proceed.

Miss Stancioff enjoyed the unique position of being Europe's only woman diplomat. She speaks eight foreign languages, and Stambulisky, whom interpreter she was at all international conferences, used to say she could trust secrets in them all. She probably will engage in journalism in the United States or Great Britain.

Miss Stancioff's father, Dr. Dimitri Stancioff, is continuing as chief Bulgarian delegate at the Lausanne conference and Minister to Great Britain.

ASKS SING SING PLAN FOR JERSEY PRISON

Investigating Committee Recommends the Abolition of "Dungeon" Cells.

TRENTON, N. J., June 22.—Reinstatement of the suspended keepers, abolition of "dungeon" cells, and the adoption of a system of prison government similar to that in use at Sing Sing Prison, were among the principal recommendations contained in the report of the Joint Investigating Board which has been probing conditions at the New Jersey State Prisons here. The report was made public today.

The report recommends stricter enforcement of prison rules and regulations in regard to hearings by prison authorities of complaints made by prisoners, including the giving to prisoners a copy of the charges made against them, except in extraordinary circumstances. The report also recommends a hearing by the principal keeper or a deputy designated by him before any punishment shall be given a prisoner, and that no regular diet be taken away from prisoners in solitary confinement, unless such action may prove detrimental to the mental or physical condition of the prisoner.

Transfer of prisoners subject to "mental sensitiveness" to the State Hospital also is recommended. Another recommendation is that work at the prison farm at Leesburg, N. J., and on the property opposite the State Prison at Trenton be completed.

Because of the overcrowded condition of the State Prison it is recommended that additional property be acquired. The acquisition of the Rahway Reformatory for prison purposes and the acquisition of another reformatory for a new line of prison activities are suggested.

"We find," continues the report, "that many complaints connected with the management of the prison are those which arose during or out of the so-called riots of August, 1920. There are certain abuses which have grown out of practices which existed in the old prison regime.

"We have suggested certain reforms which could be accomplished during a certain period of time which would obviate the abuses entirely. We deplore certain of the facts which occurred during the stress of the disturbances in August, 1923. We feel that after the so-called riot had started, it may have required considerable force to quell it, but we believe that, in individual instances, the force used during the riot was at its height might have been modified by the prison authorities themselves, even before the time when it was possible for the Board of Prison Managers to meet and take action.

"In general, the management of the prison, considering the space available and the necessary enforced idleness of a portion of the prison population is of substantial, good quality, and of an order equal to the best institutions of good grade. By this we mean that there is no complaint with respect to the conditions, the food or the usual medical or hospital service.

"In general, the management in material details is superior as the management of the New Jersey State Prison, and designing to accomplish the general good, should have been brought to criticism by reason of the accusations and utterances of making up of charges such as were shown during the investigation by the testimony of prisoners, physicians, experts and others.

"Since the last investigation there have been a number of improvements at the prison and the general morale of the institution has risen to a higher level, but we believe there is yet much to be accomplished."

Although the report declared it was not necessary for the head keeper of the State prison to be a trained penologist, it recommends the appointment of such an expert to assist the head keeper. This penologist would be responsible for the discipline of the prison and would supervise the work of the prisoners. The committee recommends such an expert be obtained as soon as possible.

The report characterizes Chief Deputy Keeper James E. Kersey, who was removed pending charges, as a "prison officer of the first type," but recommends that he be restored to duty with full pay in view of his long service, and that he be given an early opportunity to retire on a pension. Similar recommendation is made in the case of Joseph McChesney, centre keeper, who also was ousted pending hearing of charges against him.

POLAR PLANE WAS DAMAGED

NOME, Alaska, June 22 (Associated Press).—Advices today from Wainright confirmed the report that Roald Amundsen, Norwegian explorer-aviator, had damaged his airplane in a trial flight there, making impossible his proposed flight this Summer over the North Pole.

Amundsen will proceed to Seattle on the schooner C. R. Holmes, probably not stopping at Nome enroute, as the vessel is expected to make the voyage from Wainright direct.

RELIEF FROM HEAT COMES AS MORE DIE

MERCURY DOWN 20 DEGREES

Moderate Temperature Expected Over the Week-End—Interior of Country Still Hot.

Brisk northerly breezes yesterday dispelled the heat wave from which the city, in common with the greater part of the country, had been suffering for several days, but not before four more deaths directly attributable to the heat brought the total to fifteen in the metropolitan section.

The cooling winds acted as a restorative to the withered city and sent the mercury down twenty degrees. There was a drop of eleven degrees between midnight and 8 o'clock yesterday morning. During the afternoon the mercury hovered around 73, with a low mark of 71 at 4 o'clock. The weather will be fair over the week-end, according to the Weather Bureau, with moderate temperature probably continuing.

The break in the heat wave did not extend to many sections of the country. The interior continued to be gripped by hot weather. Three States—New Mexico, Arizona and Wisconsin—have been having unseasonably cold weather, some sections reporting frosts. On the other hand, Eagle, Alaska, reported a temperature of 84.

Four additional deaths from heat in this city occurred early yesterday morning. Joseph Turgin, 40, of 88 Eighth Avenue, a laborer, collapsed on Hester Street and was found dead by Dr. Shester of Gouverneur Hospital, who said that the heat was the cause.

John Burns, 50, of 550 Grand Street, Brooklyn, was prostrated at his home and died before a physician from St. Catharine's Hospital could reach him.

Mrs. Mary Cataldo of 149 Stagg Street, Brooklyn, also died form the heat in her home.

Peter W. O'Reilly, retired wholesale liquor merchant, died yesterday at his home, 173 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, as a result of heat prostration. He was in his eighty-third year.

More prostrations were reported. John Fitzgerald, 50, address unknown, was overcome in front of 206 Seventh Avenue and was taken to Bellevue. Thomas Donohue, 24, of 304 West 144th Street, was prostrated at 120th Street and Lenox Avenue and was attended by Dr. Hooper of Harlem Hospital.

Today, according to the experts of the Naval Hydrographic Office, is the first day of Summer. Contrary to popular belief, the Summer solstice—the point at which the sun ends its northward march—does not always come on June 21. This year the sun's furthest North was reached at 2 A. M. today.

The beach resorts have been the greatest gainers from the heat wave. Before the break came yesterday there had been a rush to all of the big resorts, and the hotels were swamped with reservations for the week-end. All the beaches near the city record crowds for the week have been reported.

New German Liner Sails.

BREMERHAVEN, June 22. — Thousands of cheering persons witnessed the departure for New York last evening of the North German Lloyd's new liner, Muenchen, on her maiden trip. The liner, of 15,325 tons gross, was built at Swinemunde and was brought here early this month after a successful trial voyage. Before the Muenchen sailed a largely attended reception was held on board, at which speakers referred to the vessel as a model type of Germany's modern shipbuilding.

CALL PHONE STRIKE IN NEW ENGLAND

Operators Vote, 6,466 to 1,133, to Walk Out in Five States—Chiefs Set It for Tuesday.

BOSTON, June 22.—A strike of telephone operators in New England was unexpectedly called today for 7 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

Members of the locals connected with the Telephone Operators' Department of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers declared themselves in favor of a strike by a vote of 6,466 to 1,133 in a referendum last Tuesday. There are approximately 12,000 operators in New England, many of whom are not members of this union.

The strike is to enforce demands for a wage increase and a seven-hour day.

The State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration has offered its services as mediator, but no definite reply has yet been received by Chairman Edward Fisher from the union or the company.

George H. Dresser, general manager of the company, in a statement asserted that "in Greater Boston less than 600 out of a total of approximately 6,000 operators voted," adding that "in a number of offices the great majority of the operators have signed papers expressing their determination to remain at their posts if a strike is called."

"Reports from other parts of our territory," he said, "show that in a great majority of exchanges only a small minority of operators actually voted. We are advised that no vote was taken in any exchange in the extreme western part of Massachusetts, in Springfield less than half the total force voted. In Worcester only about twenty-five per cent. of the total force voted.

"So far as we can ascertain no vote was taken in New Hampshire except at Manchester, and none in Vermont."

He expressed the opinion that in Rhode Island large numbers of the employes would remain "loyal to the service."

The union statement said that the wage scale committee interpreted "this attack on the integrity of the Boston vote as further evidence of the campaign to destroy the operators' morale," and that the company was attempting "to intimidate the operators into submission."

The old Telephone Operators Local 1-A, with a claimed following of 5,000, whose charter was recently cancelled, held a mass meeting tonight and the 5,000 operators voted to disregard the strike order.

Upon learning of the action taken by Local 1-A, George H. Dresser, General Manager of the company, said, "We intend to maintain service for the public and we believe we can do it."

The International Brotherhood of Telephone Operators, an organization not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, tonight issued a statement in which it was asserted that its membership was not involved in the "controversy between the New England Telephone Company and Miss O'Connor." The international brotherhood has nineteen locals here.

ASSAILS NEW YORK STAND.

Ex-Gov. Goodrich of Indiana Scores Opposition to St. Lawrence Project.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 22.—"The doctrine of State's rights, which New York fought against in 1861 to 1865, is now being invoked by the Empire State to save water power as well as beer," said J. P. Goodrich, former Governor of Indiana, at this morning's session of the Ohio Bankers' Association.

The speaker took for his subject the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence River waterways and scored the opposition of New York State and all other opposition to the waterways project as "rooted in provincialism and blood self-interest."

Dr. Marion Leroy Burton, President of the University of Michigan, addressed the afternoon meeting on the subject, "That Mind of Yours."

One thousand delegates and their wives will depart at midnight for a five-day cruise through the Georgian Bay country.

ACCUSES OIL MEN OF PRICE CUT RAIDS

MOVES TIMED WITH RUMORS

Thousands of Producers Suffer, Says Senator, as Wealthy Operators Get Profits From Decline.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—That the son of a wealthy oil man and some of his associates are back of the drive to depress crude oil prices, and that the raids on the market have been the result of advance information supplied to stock jobbers, is the opinion of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Senator Curtis said today that he had received so many complaints from small oil producers and refiners in Kansas and in Oklahoma about what seemed to those producers and refiners to be a fictitious condition in the oil industry that he had made a study of the situation.

"From the information he has received," says a statement issued from Senator Curtis's office, "and from what he has seen in the metropolitan press, such as The Wall Street Journal, he has concluded that the depression in the price of crude oil during the last three months was primarily for the purpose of stock jobbing, and that certain stock jobbers have systematically been placed in possession of advance information regarding reductions to be made in the price of crude or refined.

"He states that the public press have made open charges that the present condition was started and has been fostered by the son of a very wealthy oil man and his associates for the purpose of raiding the stock market.

"Time after time the country has been flooded with 'rumors' of cuts in crude oil prices. Each time the 'rumor' was found to be exact as to the date and amount of the cut and each time the 'rumor' was accompanied by 'raiding' of the stock market.

"Instead of one cut in crude oil prices to meet changed conditions in the industry there were many cuts, so timed as to aid in stock market operations, and it is alleged that advance information was received by several brokerage firms. Short selling of the oil stock encouraged short selling of other securities, and as prices of stocks continued to decline uneasiness among actual holders brought more and more liquidation.

"The result has been disastrous to thousands of people without justification other than the desire of a few men to wring illegitimate profit through what is described as one of the most wholesale stock jobbing campaigns in the history of the country.

"While Government control of the petroleum industry may not be desirable, it is certainly true that the cause of those who advocate Government control has been greatly advanced by the fact that a small group of men has been able to foretell and to bring about a series of cuts in petroleum prices in such a way as to unstabilize the industry and at the same time to reduce the entire securities market to a state of demoralization. If the petroleum industry is to be subjected to the whims of stock market operators, some means must be found to put a stop to such practices."

Pleated Hand Bags Liked.

Hand-bag manufacturers are experiencing a quiet period at the moment. Buying of seasonable merchandise has eased off somewhat, and it is still considered early for the active preparation of Fall lines. One of the larger manufacturers here said yesterday, however, that he was receiving a fairly active call for silk moire bags in pin tuck pleated effects in colors to match the popular pleated skirts and dresses. The bags have self-covered or fancy frames and are made in the favored pouch style. They sell for $24 per dozen wholesale. This manufacturer said that, as far as the Fall lines were concerned, he believed the big numbers would be bags of chiffon, duvetyn and the pleated silks, with a fair call for those of leather.

Quiet Continues in Woolens.

With little stirring during the last week in the men's wear end of the wool goods trade, the opinion is being expressed that little change may be expected until some time next month. The opening of the Spring lines, it is now believed, will take place toward the latter part of July and this will bring the buyers into the market. Whether they will do any large amount of early buying remains an open question and depends on what price levels are established for the lightweight season. In the main, the tendency of the buyers as shown so far is that they will go very light in their advance commitments, although the larger users of fabrics naturally have to cover a considerable portion of their requirements in advance. Little in the way of additional Fall business has materialized recently.

Say Earrings Are Not "Out."

The assertion of a certain local distributer of popular-priced jewelry, recently published in THE TIMES, to the effect that the demand for earrings in that class of merchandise was slowing up considerably has been seriously questioned. It is admitted by the questioners that there is some slackness of trade at present, but it is said that this is not unusual at this time of the year. Despite this between-seasons slowing up, it is asserted, earrings have never before sold so freely. Not only that but, according to an executive of a well-known concern, style tendencies in Paris as well as other principal cities of Europe all indicate a wider use of earrings this Fall than ever before.

Domestic Sizes Show No Change.

The demand for anthracite domestic sizes is strong enough to maintain independent prices at the $11 to $12 level that has prevailed for the last two or three weeks, Saward's Journal will say today. They show no signs of going lighter, nor can it be said that there are definite indications of an early reaction to a lower basis. In some quarters the opinion is expressed that the next change will be downward, but it is conceded that much will depend on the labor outlook as it unfolds itself from now on. Bituminous tonnage continues to move in fair volume on orders previously placed, but the amount of new business is perhaps even more limited than early in the month.

Gray Goods Were Quiet.

No secret was made yesterday of the fact that business was playing second fiddle to the annual dry goods golf tournament up in Westchester County, and the result was that not a great deal of trading was done. The tournament, however, was not wholly responsible for it, more important factor in the lack of activity being the inability of buyers and sellers to get each other's viewpoint as to price. The former were bidding 9¾ cents for 38½-inch 64-60s, for instance, while the latter were asking an eighth more. This was the situation all the way through so far as printcloths were concerned. In the sheetings, some business for quick delivery was transacted at 11¼ cents for 36-inch 8.15s and 12½ cents for 36-inch 56-60s. Spot business was done in 72-80 pajama checks at 11¼ cents.

Paper Trade Catching Up.

Some falling off in the demand for various grades of paper is reported by leading sellers here, due to the usual Summer reaction and also to the recent slowing up of business generally. Prices are firmly maintained at present, according to the American Paper & Pulp Association, and the current stabilized conditions are declared traceable in no small part to the efforts of the paper manufacturers in preventing a runaway market, as far as prices were concerned, earlier in the season. In one way, the slackening of forward buying is declared to be of benefit in that the mills now have an opportunity to catch up on their orders. The mills had such an exceptional demand for many grades of paper only very recently that their production was taken up for quite a long period ahead.

Staple Ribbons Selling.

Staple ribbons are the ones most in demand at the present time, but manufacturers report the general buying as of a quiet nature. Retailers are doing most of the purchasing, the goods going into immediate sale. The cutting-up trades have not yet started on their buying for the next season, although they have done some sampling. The call now is mainly for lightweight merchandise in black and high colored velvets, satins, moires and grosgrains. The buying of the narrow goods is in larger volume, but the outlook for the wider merchandise is not deemed unsatisfactory. Current interest in fancy numbers is restricted and not expected to develop until the Fall garment season gets actively under way. On the whole, manufacturers say, the conditions are such as to warrant belief that the next season will be considerably better than was the case last year.

Look for Better Fall Buying.

One thing that the increased consumer buying of silk hosiery, which grew out of the coming of more seasonable weather, is expected to do is bring about more active trading in merchandise for Fall delivery. It is admitted that for many weeks consumer buying of the finer grades of silk hose was by no means as active as it could have been, and it was not denied that the psychological effect of this on the retail buyer was in good part responsible for his unwillingness to place orders for goods to be shipped some months hence. This factor in the situation has now being eliminated to a considerable extent, and the manufacturers are expecting advance business, which had been pretty fair so far as out-of-town buyers were concerned, to improve materially and generally.

Picking Up Sales Merchandise.

To some extent, the number and activities of buyers in the market during the current week, wholesalers say, have been a disappointment. Those that were here, it is said, were not greatly interested in Fall lines but were paying up lots of merchandise that could be used for sales toward the end of this month and just before and after the July 4 holiday. This activity is the result, it is claimed, of the necessity of the retailer to force volume by staging sales in order to make up for the earlier slowness. While the disposition is to believe the Fall will be a good season, it is felt that it will be well into next month before the buying gets strong. Beginning with the second or third week in July, buyers are expected to come in force, this continuing through August.

Women's Shoe Demand Limited.

Not much change is reported here in the women's shoe end of the footwear industry. Buyers of this merchandise for immediate delivery are placing orders proportionate to the consumer demand, which has picked up quite a little in the last several days, but the aggregate business they are writing on the books of the manufacturers is not large. Even the call for women's white shoes at wholesale is not fully up to the mark predicted here recently, but enough is being done in this direction to warrant a normal season for them unless another abrupt change in the weather puts a check on consumer activities. The approach of the vacation season is expected to do much for white shoes. As for Fall, buyers are making haste slowly in everything but staples, and they are not rushing them any too hard.

FRENCH COSTUMES SHOWN.

Embroidery for Decoration Favored by Paris Couturiers.

The slim silhouette is still in favor with the Paris designers, as was shown by the latest importations of Amsterdam, Inc., of 408 Seventh Avenue, which were placed on view yesterday. However, the straight frocks were varied by side trimmings, occasional flounciings, and circular effects that gave many new touches, and brought freshness to the otherwise tried chemise frock.

First attention is now given to embroideries. They are used on gowns and coats for every occasion, both inside and out. No costume is complete without them. All countries have been secured for ideas for them, and with them many brilliant effects have been attained. Embroideries have even replaced furs, which are now used on the smarter costumes in bandings as accompaniments to embroidery that in almost every case tops them. Pleatings do not appear to enjoy the popularity they had during the past season and although they are occasionally shown, they are usually employed as trimming rather than in a more necessary capacity.

Street suits, except the most severely tailored ones, are very dressy. Velvet is the most popular fabric for these costumes and lends itself to embroideries that decorate them. Lanvin has let off embroidery in her youthful models. One interesting girl's coat was of black velvet, cut full at the bottom, where it was trimmed with several narrow bands of squirrel. A new note was struck in the Buster Brown collar, which was tied with silver tinsel ribbons. Another interesting model from Lanvin was a suit of olive green. The coat was cut very short, and green and gray embroidery reached well up under the arms.

Some new effects in sleeves were obtained with fur. The heavier pelts were used to make wide cuffs that opened unexpectedly as the manikin moved, and the thinner pelts lent themselves to use in the lighter weight coats and dresses, where they were rendered so pliable that they can be adjusted at the will of the wearer.

The sports clothes are made of all sorts of vivid materials. One smart sports dress was made of an old Polish shawl of red and green with touches of red leather appearing in the inverted box pleats at the side, and the leather also made the pockets and the wide belt. Many sports coats of individual plaids were shown. Another semi-sports costume was of tan—a long coat and dress. The coat was hung from the shoulders, and the whole costume was embroidered with cross stitch with pipings of red to match the embroidery silk.

The evening wraps were very elaborate in metal cloths and rich embroideries on velvets. The circular effect was often introduced in these most effectively. One particularly interesting one was of periwinkle blue metal brocade with straight lines almost to the knees, where a full circular flounce was added. Kolinsky edged it and made the collar.

Among the French designers whose creations were shown were Jenny, Patou, Worth, Chenal, Doucet, Molyneux, Premet, Drecoll and Bernard.

WOOL PRICES UNCERTAIN.

Trade Resentful Over Predictions of Government Experts.

BOSTON, June 22.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The wool market has passed through another dull week, with prices ruling irregular and a shade easier on the whole. The trade is disturbed and resentful over Government wool experts' unofficial prediction of lower prices here and at London. Further exports are being made.

"In the West, the market has slowed up but some consignments as well as sales at the lower levels are reported.

"The foreign markets are generally steady, Sydney being practically firm on the basis of Brisbane sales.

"The goods market is steady. President Wood of the American Woolen Company is very optimistic over the outlook and predicts higher prices for light weight goods.

DRY GOODS SALES DROP.

But Wholesale Distribution Is Above That of Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was considerably in excess of the volume for the same period last year.

"Read sales did not reach the total of a week ago and were somewhat less than in 1922 during the corresponding week.

"There were about the same number of customers in market as a year ago, during the same week.

"Collections were not equal to the corresponding week last year."

SOVIET BOYCOTT[illegible] SWISS.

Moscow Retaliates for the Slaying of Vorovsky at Lausanne.

MOSCOW, June 22.—As a result of the assassination of Vaslav Vorovsky, Soviet representative at the Lausanne peace conference, Russia has boycotted Switzerland.

A decree of the Council of Commissars, published today, instructs Russian plenipotentiaries and consuls abroad to refuse visas to Swiss subjects, except workmen desiring to enter Russia.

All business deals with the Swiss are to be canceled and the initiation of new commercial negotiations is forbidden.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

Advances Still Continue in a Number of the Foodstuffs.

Although Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices again showed an excess of declines over advances this week, it was not so marked as last week's. Only sixty-three changes were indicated in the current list, of which thirty-nine were downward. Last week's list showed forty-six declines in sixty-six changes, while the division in the corresponding list for last year was forty-one advances and twenty-seven declines. For the first time in many weeks, and despite the general downward trend, the current list showed an excess of advances over declines in the foodstuffs.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for this week and the corresponding week a year ago:

*Nominal.

Of the fourteen changes in the foodstuffs this week nine were advances. In the local market for provisions was seen a drop of 25 cents a barrel in winter soft straight flour. Middle Western yard was also lower here, but Kansas was higher. Hams and Spring chickens did not change. At Chicago pork, beef, hogs and sheep all were lower, as were short ribs. No change was reported in mess pork.

The changes in the dairy products, which for the most part were fractional, were mostly upward. The better grades of butter were also slightly higher, and there was also a small rise in the best cheese. Near-by fancy eggs did not change for two weeks in succession, but there was a break of 6 cent a dozen in the price of fresh-gathered firsts.

The fresh and dried fruits again showed no change either way, and the only revision of importance in the tables was a rise of 50 cents a barrel in potatoes. Both of the staple grades of Brazilian coffee dropped again, but this week there were no changes in the teas. A rise in cloves and a drop in nutmegs were all that the spices had to show. The best rank and file cheese declined, but in fine granulated a drop of 25 cents a hundred pounds was reported.

In the grain list only one advance was seen, it being in corn. Wheat, oats, rye, malting barley, hay and straw were all quoted lower. Still the change was seen in the listed leathers, but in the hides a rise in Chicago city calfskins was all there was to offset declines in brands, cows, country steers and No. 1 bucks, kips and extremes.

The chief persistence seen in the metals were all declines, and they included Bessemer, gray forge and No. 2 pig iron, as well as forging billets, iron bars, copper, lead and tin. White, oak, poplar, spruce and Douglas fir timbers suggested that advances in the lumber list, but there was a drop in long leaf yellow pine timbers.

Raw silks were easier, and a sharp break took place in the basis grades of Japanese silks. Prices for both Brazilian and Eastern crude rubber were lower. Belting duck hose also declined.

No marked changes were seen in the textiles this week. The classic which was quoted higher at the end of last week than at the beginning, but there was no material change in cotton goods prices. The ups and downs of cotton have operators in a very unsettled frame of mind, and they are proceeding cautiously as a result. In the silk and woolen trades nothing of particular importance transpired during the week.

Price of Lead Reduced.

The American Smelting and Refining Company yesterday reduced the price of lead from 7.25 to 7 cents a pound. The reduction was made, it is understood, to offset foreign competition.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Another Day of Recovery on the Stock Exchange—Bond Prices Firm.

Recovery from the overdone break of Wednesday in the stock market did not stop with Thursday's canceling of the previous day's decline. The majority of active shares rose a point or more yesterday, railway and industrial shares moving up simultaneously; advances ranging from 3 to 5 points were not exceptional. Wall Street continued to ascribe the recovery to what it calls "banking support"; meaning purchase of stocks by the larger investment houses. Such buying has doubtless been an important factor in the turn of the market since Wednesday's exaggerated downward movement, but repurchases by recent professional sellers for the decline have probably been the larger influence.

The market has lately got into a condition exactly reversing that of March and February, when professional speculators for the rise had kept on bidding up prices after the real public had ceased buying. The "bear operators" of the present week had pursued a similar policy in forcing prices lower. Usually the quick retreat of such speculators in an unresponsive market means that a prolonged upward or downward movement has pretty much run its course. But that, in the present case, depends no doubt on developments in the news.

Prices on the commodity markets moved in line with prices on the Stock Exchange. Cotton rose 4-10 of a cent, selling 1¼ cents per pound above the week's low price of Wednesday. Even wheat rose more than 1 cent per bushel; all other cereals advanced, and prices were moderately higher in most other staple markets. It is not yet by any means certain that this indicates a definite change from the slow but general downward trend which began early in April, but readjustment of the speculative position seems to have been considerable.

The really impressive financial news of the day was the Reichsbank's announcement of the increase in Germany's paper currency during the second week of June. When the note circulation increased 977 billion marks in the final week of May, the figure was considered portentous, and as indicating some special month-end influences. Yesterday's statement reported a weekly increase of more than one and a half trillion marks, bringing the total outstanding currency to nearly eleven trillions, as against one and a quarter trillions at the end of 1922 and 153 billions only a year ago. The German paper currency now enjoys the distinction of being nearly three times as large as Austria's. Only Russia is left as a natural subject for comparison. No spectacle quite like this, all the circumstances considered, has ever previously been seen in economic history.

It would again seem, from the weekend reports of the mercantile agencies, that the merchants are as perplexed as Wall Street and the stock market over the outlook for trade. Statements that definite signs of the future scope of business are still lacking; that the prevalent policy of merchants is "to hold commitments within the limits of safety," and of manufacturers "not to accumulate reserve stocks of merchandise"; that the previous rise of wholesale prices "has not been fully passed on to consumers," thus leaving dealers to "operate on close margins"; that Northern cotton mills are curtailing while Southern mills are still keeping close to maximum activity—such testimony merely indicates an obscure and somewhat confused position. Perhaps the most obvious comment is that, assuming the general situation to be sound and normal, pursuance of this ultra-cautious policy at the present time would indicate much closer readjustment of supply to demand, with more favorable Autumn conditions as a consequence.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JUNE 22, 1923.

Light demand for Stock Exchange accommodation, coupled with rather scanty offerings, combined to keep call money rate unchanged at 5 per cent. charge, which has ruled without variation since Tuesday. Time money market continued dull and without change at prevailing quotations of 4¾@5 per cent. There was increased activity in discounting of merchants' notes; good inquiry being reported from both local and interior institutions; rates, however, were unchanged.

HEAT CAUSED TRADE TO SLACKEN PACE

With Seasonal Slump at Hand, Rarity of Cancellations Is Viewed as Reassuring.

Business activities were affected during the past week by the heat wave in the East and other sections, according to Dun's Review. While consumption of some goods was quickened by the high temperature, numerous consumers were absent from the shopping districts, and there was a perceptible slackening in manufacturing establishments.

"The season has come," says that paper, "when a practically general restriction of operations is to be expected, and the great productive effort of recent months has made shutdowns for repairs imperative at different plants. No new trend in demand is discernible as the first half of the year nears an ending, the situation still being marked by irregularity, and many interests apparently are awaiting the passing of the Summer and more exact knowledge of crop results before definitely determining their future action.

"It is reassuring that cancellations have been comparatively few, a fact attested by continuance of a remarkably heavy movement of freight on the railroads."

Bradstreet's says:

"A fair improvement in crops, and a smaller gain in retail buying and in reorder trade with jobbers of Summer goods, followed clearing skies in the South and West, while needed rains have made for a better crop outlook in the Northwest. These natural developments in a favorable direction are to be considered over against some, at least temporarily, disturbing features in the shape of failures of two old financial houses, which unsettled the stock, cotton and other speculative markets; rather heavy declines in wheat prices and sympathetic or seasonal weakness in other commodities which seem to make it fairly certain that June will see another decline in price index numbers."

To Sell McCrory Preferred Stock.

A public offering of the unsold portion of the $3,000,000 issue of 7 per cent. preferred stock of the McCrory Stores Corporation, recently issued and not fully subscribed, is expected to be made shortly by Merrill, Lynch & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. The stock is expected to be offered at par. The stock is callable in whole or in part, at the company's option, at 110 and accrued dividends on thirty days' notice. Dividends are cumulative at the rate of 7 per cent. annually from May 1, 1923.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $66,632,900

Industrials Aggregate $27,750,000 and State and Municipal Issues $26,482,900.

$9,400,000 FOR UTILITIES

Liquidation Precipitated by Brokerage Failures Affects Prices, But Market Recovers.

New offerings of bonds this week totaled $66,632,900. In only one classification did the offerings exceed in volume the total for the previous week. New Land Bank offerings, including an issue of $1,050,000 floated outside of New York City, amounted to $4,600,000, comparing with $2,800,000 the previous week.

By groups the offerings of bonds this week and last follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Industrial	$27,750,000	$20,000,000
State and Municipal	26,482,900	30,000,000
Public Utility	9,400,000	10,117,000
Land Bank	4,600,000	2,800,000
Railway		2,000,000
Railroad		1,500,000
Miscellaneous		1,000,000
Total	$66,632,900	$115,554,700

The two largest offerings this week were the $15,000,000 issue of March Cities coupon notes and the $12,000,000 Pure Oil Company notes, the offering of Pure Oil notes came on the heels of two pieces of financing the week before by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the first $30,000,000 debenture issue of the Standard Oil Corporation, $25,000,000 in each instance. Another large industrial offering was $8,000,000 gold notes of the Wheeling Steel Corporation. The total of the industrial offerings was thus by most the total of thirty-one State and municipal issues.

The week has been interesting in many respects. Due to unsettled conditions growing out of the failure of Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne and of Zimmerman & Forshay, a large liquidation movement was precipitated. This was principally in the form of stocks dumped on the market, but a sympathetic influence was exerted over bonds at a speculative and semi-speculative character, and some fairly sharp price recessions resulted. On Thursday, during the forenoon, the investment element appeared to have regained its composure, and the market firmed materially.

Bond houses reported a scarcity of new offerings. According to one firm a number of industries have come to which business had been expected during the late summer have managed to raise sufficient money from sales to make new financing unnecessary. Several States also which had been expected to issue bonds soon find there will be no need of further financing to take care of improvements for some time to come. One factor in this situation is that industry in general has enjoyed a profitable season, and this prosperity has resulted in increased revenues for the States from taxation.

Bankers are discussing the possibility of new South American and European loans, but it is not expected there will be any of this financing soon.

Brick Standard Sizes Cut to Two.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Manufacturers, consumers and builders using brick have agreed to the adoption of two standard dimensions for that product, it was announced today at the Department of Commerce, and will eliminate all of the remaining thirty or forty brick dimensions now in manufacture and use. One of the new sizes will be 8 by 2¼ by 3¾ inches, while the other will be 8 by 2¼ or 3¼ inches. The standardization, it is believed, will greatly manufacturing practice and installation methods to a degree that will cheapen the product for consumers.

OFFER PORTUGAL LOAN PAYABLE IN STERLING

Government to Issue Four Million Pounds in Gold Bonds to Citizens—Will Yield 12%.

In an effort to stabilize her currency the Government of Portugal is offering to her citizens at home and across extensive rights to an issue of four million pounds sterling guaranteed tax-exempt gold bonds. If to be sold at Portuguese exchange at the rate of 5 pence, each ten-pound bond is to bear interest of 6% per cent (gold) and will cost 416 escudos. According to George S. Duarte, Portuguese Consul General in this city, who is receiving subscriptions from local Portuguese, the bonds will yield better than 12 per cent. at the present rate of exchange. They are payable in 15 years at the option of the holder, in the pound sterling.

Senhor Cabral, Minister of Finance of Portugal, has arrived in this city and has established offices at 120 Broadway. The first series of bonds, totaling $4,000,000, will be offered in this country on Monday. Senhor Cabral, who is accompanied by Senhor Pinheiro Chagas, Governor of the Bank of Portugal, and Senhor Ferreira de Almeida, Secretary of the Finance Ministry, including the Bank of Portugal, have declined any commissions or pay for their services in connection with the flotation of the loan. Senhor Cabral, a member of the firm of the Banco Nacional Ultramarino, Lisbon, who arrived in New York two weeks ago and will sail for home next Tuesday, said the sale of bonds at present is being made through the principal offices of the bank, 53 Liberty Street, but that the issue was essentially a national one.

"Since the war Portugal has never asked a loan, and I regret to say that I have no statement to make as to the intention of the present Government to reduce the number of paper notes now in circulation by disposition of the gold in the national reserve," Senhor Cabral said. "The question is a delicate one, full of problems both in and outside of Portugal."

ROADS ACT TO AVERT FREIGHT CONGESTION

RECORD AUTUMN EXPECTED

Indications Are That All Shipping Records In This District Will Be Broken.

Initial steps to prevent freight congestion in the Port of New York during the heavy traffic this Autumn were taken yesterday by the New York office of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association when blanks and notices were mailed to the thirteen railroads entering this terminal, asking them for daily records of the number of cars in their yards.

From these daily records that are to be submitted to the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association a joint report will be made up that will show exact conditions in the New York terminal on any day. The purpose of these reports is to warn the officials the moment anything like a congestion of traffic is impending.

These reports will show the number of loaded cars on hand for north and east bound traffic and the number for south and west bound traffic, as well, as the number of empty cars being held in the New York terminal.

Since this classification the cars held on the yards will have to be listed as to whether they are for the export trade, and also as to their contents. The classifications for contents are grain, coal, station freight and transfers.

According to the present plans, these reports are to be made up and mailed into the office of the American Railway Association, starting Monday. This will give ample time to obtain a complete record and have the system in first class working order by the first of July, it was said.

This is but one of a number of plans that will be carried out by the newly created district office of the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association in New York. One of the most pressing needs in creating the office in this city, it was explained at the time the office was opened, was to prevent a freight congestion in this district during the heavy movements of late Summer and the early Autumn.

While the office will look after the entire Eastern district, it will give its considerable part of its time and attention to the Port of New York. Thousands of carloads of freight are expected to pile into the port, both for consumption in New York City and for export, this Autumn, when, if the predictions of railroad men are fulfilled, all previous freight records will be broken.

Despite the fact that the number of cars loaded throughout the United States have reached more than a million a week twice within the last four weeks, present conditions in the New York terminal are said to be very favorable. Hundreds of carloads of perishable food are coming into the city daily with a very small loss, it is said. One railroad has been successful in bringing in 800 loaded cars of produce a day from the South, according to information given out yesterday.

ORDER DELAYS CHANGE IN SOUTHWEST RATES

Roads Will Confer With Complaining Shippers — Revision for Western Coal Schedules.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—All new rate schedules filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Southwestern railroads previously ordered to become operative on June 30 revising freight charges in the lower Mississippi Valley and in the Southwest under decisions rendered in the Memphis-Southwestern investigation were suspended today by the Interstate Commerce Commission until Oct. 28 next.

Complaints by shippers, the commission said, have produced "sufficient showing to indicate that the suspended schedules produced increases in present rates not authorized or required by the decision." Further, the schedules contained a large number of errors and failed to conform to the commission's requirements.

Railroads concerned were instructed to confer with a shippers' committee on a second revision. General freight agents of Southwestern railroads were named on a committee to represent the carriers and the commission asked for a report by July 20 on the possibility of reconciling differences. If the schedules can be corrected, the commission will vacate the suspension and allow new schedules to go into effect.

Revision of Western rates on coal from mines in New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana was recommended by the commission, the railroads concerned receiving ninety days in which to file new schedules.

CANADA BANK USES SURPLUS

Transfer to Reserve, It Is Believed, Will Protect Union Bank.

MONTREAL, June 22.—Difficulties of the Union Bank of Canada, one of the Dominion's oldest financial institutions, which came to light yesterday when the dividend was cut from 10 to 8 per cent. to meet losses incurred by foreign exchange transactions and bad loans, were believed in banking circles today to have been overcome.

The statement of W. R. Allan, President of the bank, advising shareholders that $4,250,000 of the institution's rest, or surplus account, had been transferred to contingent reserve to make provision for loans also was accepted as an indication that the embarrassment would be only temporary.

The bank's unimpaired capital of $3,000,000 and a rest account of $1,700,000 was believed sufficient to enable it to carry on its extensive business without interruption. This view was shared by Sir Frederick William-Taylor, President of the Canadian Bankers' Association, who said the bank had adopted "a wise and courageous course which should inspire confidence."

Mr. Allan informed the shareholders that the bank's directors believed in the essential soundness of the institution, for not only was its capital unimpaired but its rest account was still substantial.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Fulton Trust Company of New York has issued its quarterly circular on "Investments." The bank announces that it does not offer these securities, but that they are merely suggestions for investments to depositors and friends.

The Guaranty Trust Company is prepared to deliver definitive "American Rolling Mill Company Five Year 6% Secured Gold Notes dated Jan. 1, 1923," in exchange for outstanding temporary notes.

Milton J. Ayers of Harris, Ayers & Co. is taking a trip to the Pacific Northwest with an ultimate purpose of visiting Alaska in the interest of a banking following interested in important Alaskan enterprises.

"Hat a Few Facts about Atchison," is the caption of a circular issued by Lambern, Hastings & Co.

SUGAR PRICES FIRMER

Refined May Set a New High Record for Year Soon.

Both raw and refined sugars hardened in prices during the last half of the week. Refined sugar is again established on a 9.75 to 9.90 basis, while Cuban raw sugar yesterday advanced ¼ cents a pound to 5¾ cents. Predictions are being made in the trade that if current demand continues, the price of the refined product may establish a new high record for the year within the next few weeks.

"The present improvement in the sugar situation is due to conditions in England and to the improved domestic demand," reports Federal Sugar Refining Company in its review of the industry.

"Better care of the Cuban fields, improved treatment of labor, installation of new machinery and many other improvements will result during the coming year from the better conditions. The past season, in spite of the reduction in outturn from the original estimates, has given the first definite sign of recovery from the collapse of 1920-1921. The effect of this is certain to show itself in improvements which could not have been thought of before the reaction came about. Last year was phrophetic in this respect."

Willett & Gray have issued their latest estimate on the world's sugar crop, covering production for the current season. The estimate calls for a world output of 18,280,115 tons, against 17,642,229 tons in the previous season. The organization continues to estimate the Cuban crop at 4,000,000 tons, despite the fact that many private estimates call for a production of between 3,500,000 and 3,600,000 tons for the island, against estimates made earlier in the year of 4,150,000 tons. The reductions in the private estimates were mainly responsible for the rapid rise in sugar prices during the earlier months of the year. According to Willett & Gray, Cuba's output for the current year will be virtually on a par with the production for last year.

INCREASED ACREAGE PLANTED TO COTTON

HEAVY RAINS A DRAWBACK

Scarcity of Labor Has Also Handicapped Efforts at Greater Production.

The Financial Chronicle, in its forecast of acreage planted to the new cotton crop, states that the disposition everywhere throughout the South has been to increase the planted area, but that weather conditions have been so extremely unfavorable outside of Texas that the hopes originally entertained have largely been given up. The Chronicle estimates, however, a total planted acreage exceeded only by those of 1920, 1918, 1914 and 1913, and 1,917,000 acres above last year's plantings. Following is the comparison with previous years, giving area picked and actual production up to and including 1922:

	Acreage. Planted.	Picked.	Production Bales.
1914	37,408,000	36,852,000	16,134,000
1915	36,307,000	31,412,000	11,191,820
1916	36,052,000	34,986,000	11,449,930
1917	34,925,000	33,841,000	11,302,375
1918	37,927,000	36,008,000	12,040,532
1919	35,881,000	33,896,000	11,420,799
1920	37,043,000	35,879,000	13,439,603
1921	31,678,000	30,809,000	7,958,641
1922	34,016,000	33,036,000	9,761,817
1923	35,933,000

The Chronicle summarizes its reports on the cotton planting and the season's difficulties as follows:

The rains were of such a nature that often, after the seed went in, the ground was packed solid, and very little came on top, the seed rotted. Where the seed did come up, the rains would wash out the young plants, making replanting necessary, and this would happen two and three times. In the district that suffered the most replanting was incumbent to a larger extent than ever before it would seem. In Arkansas most of the returns speak of replanting having been necessary to the extent of 50 per cent. And in some cases the ratio was as high as 80 per cent. Of course that is an extreme.

"To add to the difficulties of planters, there has been a great scarcity of labor. There has been an exodus of negroes to the West and North, to take advantage of the high wages paid for common labor in the manufacturing districts.

"The farmer has done the best he could under the circumstances, and the only effect of the drawbacks and obstacles just enumerated has been to reduce the increase in acreage to quite modest proportions. In the great State of Texas there has been no excessive rainfall in any portion of the State's vast domain, and conditions indeed have been highly propitious. All the accounts agree in saying that the additions to area in that State will be 14 to 15 per cent., and this means an addition of roughly 1,750,000 acres to the area in cotton in that one State alone.

"Texas has large undeveloped areas, and in those sections the increase has run as high as 100 per cent. but there have also been substantial additions to the cotton area in the older parts of the State. In the other large cotton-growing States the additions to cotton acres have been much more moderate, though it may be that in Alabama the increase will be in ratio up to that for Texas."

RUMOR SENDS STOCK UP.

Tuttle-Harriman Interests May Buy P. & W. Va. Stock.

Representatives of the Tuttle-Harriman interests refused yesterday to confirm or deny a report that they would purchase on next Wednesday 90,000 shares of the stock of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway, on which they hold an option at $46 a share. A denial was, however, given to the part of the rumor that the purchase was being made for the New York Central Railroad, which has been trying for a number of years to get improved terminal facilities in Pittsburgh. If the purchase were made, these representatives said, it would be for an independent coal group, and not for one of the large railroads.

As the result of the rumors there was an advance in the price of the stock of 5¼ points to 54¼ per share.

According to available records there are 305,000 shares of the common stock outstanding, and it is reported that the purchase of the 90,000 block would give the Tuttle-Harriman interests control.

The Tuttle-Harriman interests include members of the Tuttle Coal Corporation and W. A. Harriman & Co. and their associates.

Member Banks Reports Show Increases In Commercial Loans and in Deposits

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Net liquidation of $10,000,000 of Government and corporate securities, also of $23,000,000 of loans supported by such securities, as against an increase of $38,000,000 in other, largely commercial, loans and discounts, is shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement of condition on June 13 of 774 member banks in leading cities.

Corresponding changes in the accounts of member banks in New York comprise reductions of $5,000,000 in Government and corporate securities and of $5,000,000 in loans supported by such securities, as against an increase of $11,000,000 in all other loans and discounts.

Apparently in anticipation of tax payments, due on June 15, net demand deposits of the reporting banks show an increase for the week of $148,000,000 ($55,000,000 in New York City). Time deposits declined about $5,000,000 ($9,000,000 in New York City), while Government deposits show out nominal changes.

Borrowings of the reporting institutions from the Federal Reserve banks show a decline for the week from $471,000,000 to $441,000,000, or from 2.9 to 2.7 per cent. of their combined loans and investments.

For member banks in New York City a decline from $136,000,000 to $119,000,000 in the borrowings from the local Reserve bank and from 2.6 to 2.3 per cent. in the ratio of these borrowings to total loans and investments is noted.

In keeping with the substantial increase in demand deposits, reserve balances of the reporting banks show an advance of $14,000,000 in their cash in vault shows a decline of about $5,000,000.

Member banks in New York City report an advance of $3,000,000 in reserve balances and a nominal reduction in cash.

STAY HALTS DELIVERY OF SINKING FUND DATA

Nicholson Obtains Delay Pending Appeal in Proceedings Brought by Controller Craig.

Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson announced last night that he had obtained from Justice John Proctor Clarke of the Appellate Division a stay pending an appeal in the proceedings brought by Controller Charles L. Craig to compel James Matthews, Assistant Secretary of the Board of Estimate, to deliver all the papers and minutes of the Sinking Fund Commission to him.

The stay was obtained in conjunction with an order to show cause, returnable July 3, when the Corporation Counsel's motion will be heard, why the stay should not be made permanent until the appeal taken has been decided by the Appellate Division. In the proceedings brought by the Controller against Peter J. Brady, Supervisor of The City Record, the Corporation Counsel has also taken an appeal which carries with it a stay. When informed of the action of Justice Clarke, the Controller issued a statement in which he told of difficulty he had to serve Matthews with the court order.

"Up to the present time," said the Controller, "Matthews has succeeded in evading service, and the records and papers of the Sinking Fund have not been delivered to the Controller, despite the law and the order of the Supreme Court, of which both Matthews and the Corporation Counsel have full knowledge. A notice of appeal has already been filed on Matthews's behalf, although Matthews has not yet been served with the order. This may not be irregular from a technical standpoint, but it is certainly an unusual mode of procedure."

CITY TO RUSH WATER TO TOWNS IN QUEENS

Hylan Orders Municipal Crews to Work Night and Day to Relieve Drought.

Mayor Hylan yesterday directed that New York go to the relief of Hollis, Jamaica and other localities in Queens which have been suffering from a water famine for the last few days, with a view of remedying the situation within forty-eight hours.

The attention of the Board of Estimate was directed to the drought by Maurice Connolly, Borough President of Queens, who asserted that water is supposed to be supplied by the Jamaica Water Supply Company.

"They may be lying down on the job," interposed Mayor Hylan.

President Connolly said the situation was most urgent and requested that the city adopt means of seizing the Jamaica company's plant and supplying water to Queens residents at a certain charge.

Benjamin Marvin, Commissioner of Public Works in Queens, estimated the number of families deprived of water in the last few days at between 15,000 and 20,000. The Street Cleaning Department has been furnishing people with bucketfuls of water, Commissioner Marvin declared. Such a condition, he said, "is really a crime for a city of our size."

"What are they up to?" asked Mayor Hylan. "What's their game?"

"I have my own opinion," replied Commissioner Marvin, "but I don't want to discuss it here."

Merritt H. Smith, Chief Engineer of the Department of Water Supply, asserted that arrangements have been made to connect five emergency mains between the city system and the Jamaica company's system.

Mr. Hylan directed the Commissioner to proceed at once with the work and to labor day and night to complete the job. On a resolution of President Connolly, the board called upon the Corporation Counsel for an opinion regarding the power of the Health Department to seize the company's supply system.

ARKANSAS ROAD TAX IN SUPREME COURT

Woman Appeals From Assessment Which Was Upheld by Highest State Tribunal.

HAD NO NOTICE OF LEVY

Appellant Says Commissioners Assessed Submerged Land and Cultivated Acres at Same Value.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Opposition to the levying of alleged excessive road taxes in Arkansas, against which farmers have long been complaining, again reached the Supreme Court today when there was filed with that tribunal the appeal of Mrs. M. L. House of Arkansas from the decision of the State Supreme Court upholding a levy by Road Districts 2 and 5 of Conway County. The tax levied was $2.02 a year on a farm the value of which was assessed by the courts at $30, and the tax was laid without the knowledge of the owner.

In the petition former Chief Justice Hill of Fort Smith, Ark., estimated that the gross income from the farm over a period of years would not average more than $8,000, while the net income would not average much more than half that amount. The appeal is based on the ground that the levy is a denial of the equal protection of the law; that in fixing the taxes the Road Commissioners grossly discriminated against the owner of the farm and that lake bottoms, bypass swamps and inundated, subject to overflow were assessed on the same basis as acres under cultivation and above overflow.

In the District 5 part of the case the plaintiff is said to be the owner of 960 acres which the Road Commissioners held would be benefited to the extent of $15,780 as a result of the construction of the road, this being more than 100 per cent. tax on the assessed valuation of the acreage. The payments were fixed at $946.80 annually for twenty years or a total of $18,936. This is the district in which the taxpayers appealed to President Harding for relief, the President ordering an investigation, as a result of which the Secretary of Agriculture cancelled the district as a Federal aid project.

To add the House farm to the district, Judge Hill asserts, the Road Commissioners included as a part of their project what is known as Shaw's lateral. They then proceeded to sell bonds, the face value of which was $260,000, of which amount the appellant avers, more than $40,000 was paid out in unlawful commissions. An additional bond issue of $100,000 was stopped when the taxpayers obtained an injunction.

This Shaw's lateral, Judge Hill contends, was the "excuse" for the tax, and when the lateral was abandoned by the Road Commissioners that fact was cited in the courts of Arkansas by Judge Hill, who maintained that, having abandoned the lateral, the House farm should have been eliminated as an illegitimated beneficiary of the project. Associate Justice Hart of the Arkansas Supreme Court in a dissenting opinion held that the undisputed facts show that the lands of the appellant are separated from direct connection with the proposed road by lakes and brakes which are impassable.

The majority of the Arkansas Supreme Court held that the lateral had been abandoned but tax would have been voided, but it took the word of the Road Commissioners when they swore that they had acted "unofficially" to obtain United States Government road money. W. W. Duff, Road Commissioner and Secretary of the Roads Commission, in a communication to the Highway Commission wrote that "we have cut out" the lateral, adding that "as the taxpayers are taxed to the limit, we respectfully ask that you come to our aid in the matter." In court, Duff swore that the letter was unofficial, although signed by himself and W. J. Brown, another Commissioner, constituting a majority of the board. The Government did allot $58,000 to the road district, but this was cancelled as a result of the appeal to the President.

In Road District 2 the tax was assessed against the acreage fixed by the Road Commissioners as 3,217, although the actual acreage, according to the appellant, is 2,900, the remaining 317 being the bed of the Arkansas River. Of these acres, 1,743 are in cypress brakes and sloughs and unfit for cultivation, and 300 are low bottom lands subject to overflow and of little value, the total acres subject to cultivation being a little in excess of 700, and of these 700 more than one-half are subject to overflow. They have been inundated twice this year and the cotton crop lost as a result.

The Road Commission assessed lands subject to overflow at from $25.50 to $30 an acre, while lands on other farms likely to be overflowed were assessed at from $5 to $15 an acre. They passed 725 acres constantly covered by water for roads at the tax rate of from $4 to $12.50 an acre. Overflow lands the market value of which is asserted to be not over $5 an acre were assessed, it is charged, at from $5 to $20 an acre.

Mrs. House was living in Washington when the taxes were levied. The only notice the Commissioners gave was a short notice in a county newspaper. This did not describe the district nor indicate whose farms were involved. Land owners had twenty days in which to find out whether their property was in the district and at the end of that time the case was closed.

In the case of the Kansas City Southern Railway vs. Road District 6 in Little River County, Ark., in which the road was taxed $37,000 for 32 miles of track, the Supreme Court, by unanimous decision, reverses the Arkansas Supreme Court, declaring the discrimination "so palpable and arbitrary as to amount to a denial of the equal protection of the law."

EUROPE ON REACTION IN AMERICAN MARKETS

French Opinion as to Causes—The Present Situation and 1920.

Opinion in the financial press of Continental Europe has varied considerably as to the meaning of the reaction in American industrial activity and as to what the present setback foreshadows for the longer future. In general, the view is hopeful of subsequent recovery. The financial weekly Situation Economique of Paris sums up the European opinion by saying that everybody, both in Europe and in America, agrees in declaring that the existing situation has no real resemblance to that of 1920.

It points out, however, that "this agreement does not help to settle the question of the future, because economic phenomena never repeat themselves in exactly the same way. The one certainty is that nowhere has a community given itself up the last few years to the same kind of excessive speculation as prevailed in 1919-1920. Remembrance of the crisis of the last-named year seems to have been still present with all minds and to have moderated all enthusiasms."

As to whether the check to industrial expansion in the United States is destined to spread, it is admitted that prediction in that matter is difficult. The summary continues: "Numerous indications that have been received in Paris from America appear to indicate that, after a period of intense activity, American industry is at present suffering from an unsettlement caused equally by the disappearance of its old outlets in the trade of Central Europe and by the rise of prices and enhancement of salaries. If those conditions are destined to continue and to affect all the principal industries, it would seem that even the Paris market must in its turn feel the consequences of the American depression; for, contrary to what seems to be believed in the United States, all the world's markets are more or less affected by conditions in one another."

WHEAT GOES HIGHER IN LIVELIER MARKET

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Strength in the Northwestern wheat markets, with a marked change in sentiment, was largely responsible for a sharp upturn in values here. The bulls received little assistance from the outside and the market had a way of fading away at times. Net gains, however, were 1@1½ cents.

Undoubtedly part of the strength in both Minneapolis and Winnipeg came from spreading operations, as a Chicago house was reported to be a good buyer of Winnipeg October against sales here, and New York interests were persistent buyers at Winnipeg.

Dry and hot weather talk came toward the last from Minneapolis with claims of crop fading rapidly in sections where there has been little or no rain of late, and there have been numerous reports of late of the grain commencing to head on short straw.

A private French cable, while claiming that there had been a reduction of 20 per cent in the crop as compared with early expectations, estimated the yield at 293,000,000 bushels or 58,000,000 bushels in excess of last year.

Several large commission houses turned from the bear side over night and there was a fair run of commission orders. Hedging pressure is as yet small, with further reports from the Southwest that farmers are not disposed to sell at prevailing prices.

Export demand today was somewhat less active, with sales of around 400,000 bushels in all positions, but there was an active inquiry here, one house claiming that it could have sold 800,000 bushels to Montreal today if boats had been available. It is estimated that total sales to exporters by local handlers were 200,000 bushels, although only 65,000 bushels were confirmed. France and the United Kingdom were the buyers at the seaboard.

July corn sold up to 84¾ cents today, a new high for the season and closed at 84 cents, a net gain of ¾ cent. Shorts were good buyers and there was also buying by a cash house which is regarded as short.

Increased country offerings were noted with the advance, with purchases of 100,000 bushels to arrive. Cash basis broke ½@1 cent with No. 2 yellow 2½ cents over July. September came in for more attention, due to the strength in the July and gained 1¼ cents while December was up ¾ cent.

It is expected that a leading local industry will close down for several days and another short shut-down is looked for later in the month. Demand for corn products is showing seasonal dullness.

July oats are commencing to act tight and there was a good class of buying throughout the day, owing to the light stocks and the fact that the new crop grain will not commence to arrive in volume until late in July, some congestion might develop. Hot weather is regarded as unfavorable for the new crop.

Rye gained 1¼@1½ cents with houses with eastern connections buying September, and local spreaders bought December and sold more or less freely.

Primary arrivals of wheat today are 693,000 bushels; week ago, 649,000; last year, 780,000. Shipments were 671,000 bushels; week ago, 1,256,000; last year, 955,000.

Corn receipts were 497,000 bushels; week ago, 592,000; last year, 318,000 and shipments, 226,000 bushels; week ago, 438,000; last year, 544,000.

DAUGHERTY ISSUES WARNING TO MINERS

Says the Government Will Act "Forcefully" if Strikers Tie Up Foreign Coal.

ASKS BOARD TO INQUIRE

Urges Fuel Commission to Act as Harding Suggests It Speed Report on Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Reports that the United Mine Workers of America had negotiated a deal with miners' unions in foreign countries to halt the digging of coal to be consigned to America in event of a coal strike in this country brought from Attorney General Daugherty today a warning to the miners that such action would be illegal and result in "prompt" and "forceful" measures by the Government.

The warning was embodied in a letter on the subject which the Attorney General forwarded to the Federal Coal Commission, in which he requested the Chairman, John Hays Hammond, to whom the letter was addressed, that he begin an investigation to ascertain the facts "in order that such action may be taken as is justifiable."

A letter sent by President Harding to the Coal Commission indicated the President expressed the hope that a speedy settlement would be reached by miners and operators in the anthracite coal fields and end the danger of another strike when the present wage agreement expires on Aug. 31, was made public by Mr. Hammond.

President Harding said he had been given to understand that the report of the commission's investigations in connection with the anthracite industry would be ready by July 1, and that he was confident it would aid the operators and miners in their efforts to reach an agreement. There was plainly expressed the desire on the part of the President that the report would be made available with as little delay as possible, and the commission, it was said today, would bend every effort to complete it by July 1.

The President's communication reads:

"In acknowledging your brief statement of the program of the work of the Coal Commission I wish to express again the high value I put upon the work you are doing. Though this is the season of the year when both temperature and vacation habits may tempt the average citizen to dismiss the subject of coal, the issue remains a serious one, and I therefore look to speak for the forthcoming report of your commission on the anthracite industry a most thoughtful reception. No solution of this vexing economic question can be found except as the general public thoroughly digests the facts as you present them and decides upon the proper action to take.

"I regret that those who serve the anthracite consuming public as mine operators and mine workers have not already agreed upon the terms of a new contract, but with your report available on July 1 there should be no delay in reaching a speedy agreement. The public deserves prompt assurance that there will be no interruption after July 1 in the flow of household coal from mine to market.

"As I believe your commission stated in an earlier report, industry and the home alike must be freed from the menace of constant interruption of their coal supply. To that end public opinion must be well-informed public opinion and I therefore trust that our citizens may keep up a lively interest in coal in season and out of season. The subject is a most interesting one, but it is much more: the issue is a vital one to the welfare of the well-being of the whole nation, and not in a material way alone, for I know questions are before you that strike deep into the very heart of our American institutions."

At the office of the commission it was said today that the report which is now being prepared is fact-finding in character, dealing principally with cost of production, wages, profits and so on. The broader recommendations dealing with general principles for stabilization of both bituminous and anthracite industries will be made later when the findings in regard to the bituminous industry also are completed.

The belief was expressed here today that operators and miners of the anthracite field will reach another agreement before Aug. 31. Regret was expressed that definite steps toward such a settlement had not been taken some time ago. The tri-district convention of the union will open in Scranton next Tuesday, and it is expected that a joint conference of miners and operators at which a new agreement will be reached, will be called as a result of deliberations at the meetings held by the miners.

The Hotel Calvert property on the northeast corner of Broadway and Forty-first Street, has been subleased by D. A. Schulte to L. Walter Lissberger and Joel Jacobs, who were active as operators twenty years ago under the title of Lissberger & Jacobs.

The present lease is for eighteen years expiring April 30, 1941, for a total net rental in excess of $2,000,000, the annual net figure being $115,000. The lease was taken through the medium of the 1,452 Broadway Corporation.

The property is known as 1,452 to 1,460 Broadway and involves the seven-story structure, 46.4x113.4, on the immediate corner and the adjoining three-story building on Broadway, 66.1x92.8.

The combined properties front 102.8 feet on Broadway, adjoining the Knickerbocker building. The Schulte interests leased the premises from Ottinger Brothers in 1920.

Subsequently they sublet them to the St. Regis Restaurant, Inc., and the latter again sublet the property to Tobias Lapin and Jacob & Max Lashkin a year ago; taking back a lease of the store it occupies. The Lapin-Lashkin syndicate two months ago sold their lease to Cooper Brothers of Chicago.

Henry Shapiro & Co. were the brokers in the present deal.

Cahn & Cahn, operators, resold to Domenico Dipalma, 638 East 150th Street, a one-story building containing two stores on a plot 25 by 100. Mr. Dipalma has been a tenant of this property for the past ten years, conducting a high-class restaurant, and has made this purchase with the idea of making extensive alterations in the present building and adding a new extension in the rear.

The same operators resold to Charles Schreier the adjoining property, 641 East 150th Street, a two-story building with two stores and apartments on a plot 25 by 100. Mr. Schreier has likewise been for many years a tenant in the above building and also contemplates making extensive improvements.

The properties are located at the foot of the 149th Street and Third Avenue elevated station. The sales include all stores on 150th Street with the exception of the corner property and the adjoining three brick buildings on Third Avenue, which Cahn & Cahn still own. The broker in both transactions was H. Kadenburg.

Meister Builders, Inc., have resold to J. Mandel 63 and 65 West Seventieth Street, between Columbus Avenue and Central Park West, two four-story American basement dwellings on a plot 18.2 by 100 each and held at $70,000.

The purchaser is Dr. Theodore H. Albright, who will occupy the property as a residence and office. The property was held at $35,000.

Commercial Leases.

The McCrory Stores Corporation has secured under lease the premises 216 and 218 West 125th Street, now and for many years occupied by the Adams-Senior Department Store. It is a two-story building on a plot 62½ by 200 feet, running through to 124th Street. The owner is Mrs. Fannie Blumstein, widow of L. M. Blumstein. The lease for the first period of twenty-one years aggregates over a million and a quarter dollars and carries two renewals of twenty-one years. This will make the third 5 and 10 cent concern on the block between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, Woolworth and Kress being there. Charles Clucas was the broker in the transaction.

The latest and one of the largest office leases made in the Bar Building, at 36 West Forty-fourth Street, has been negotiated with the architectural firm of Severance & Van Alen, who have taken space for a five-year term at an aggregate rental of $52,000.

They formerly occupied a floor in their own building at 373 Lexington Avenue, at Forty-first Street, which space is now in the market. This concern was architect for the Bar Building, and will be the only architects' occupying space in it.

Samuel J. Flash, who recently purchased from D. A. Schulte Company a lease of the Tuxedo Building, situated on the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, known as 637 to 645 Madison Avenue and 33 to 39 East Fifty-ninth Street, being on a plot 99 by 100, which lease has about forty years to run, at a net rental of approximately $3,000,000, has sold and transferred the lease to a syndicate known as the Madison Tuxedo Corporation. The brokers in the transaction were Morgan & Verdon.

Long Island City Project.

The Motometer Company bought the plot containing an area of 45,000 square feet and occupying the greater part of the block at the south side of Wilbur Avenue, between Van Alst Avenue and Sunswick Street, Long Island City, having a frontage of 192 feet on Wilbur Avenue and 250 feet on Sunswick Street, and opposite their present manufacturing building. The property was assembled from Monson Brothers, Amos Trading Company and Mogartel Realty Company, Inc., and is one of the few remaining large industrial properties adjacent to the bridge plaza. This purchase, in conjunction with the buyer's present large holdings, permanently settles the company in Long Island City which, as the result of the thousands of recently constructed houses near their plant, makes Long Island City, in the opinion of the buyers, the best labor market in the East. The site just acquired is to be eventually improved with a multi-story fireproof building having a minimum floor area of 30,000 square feet to house the new plant for the manufacturing and distribution of the motometer.

Roman-Callman Company was the broker.

Allan Fox Company of Long Island City has sold a plot 75 by 100 feet on Seventh Avenue, near Grand Avenue, for Stellman Realty Corporation to Louis and Samuel Weinstein. Negotiations are pending for a resale to a building concern which will improve the property with homes similar to those already constructed. The property is in the Norwood Gardens section.

Trading in Brooklyn.

Brighton Line Homes Company sold for Midhomes, Incorporated, a new one-family brick and stucco home under course of construction on the east side of Elmore Place, 255 feet north of Avenue L, on a plot 40 by 100 feet, in the East Midwood section of Flatbush. The purchaser was William Olock of the Olock Advertising Company, who bought the house for his exclusive occupancy as a home. The price was $18,500.

The same brokers sold to Annie Cohen for Algerson D. and Mamie Lesser a two-family stucco house of 11 rooms with two-car garage at 1,143 East Tenth Street, in Midwood Manor, on a plot 28 by 100 feet. The price paid was $15,500.

Max M. Hoffman Company resold for Meister Builders Inc., P. Meister, President, to a client of theirs 212, 214, 218 and 220 Kingston Avenue. The property was held at $105,000. These sales complete the resale of the thirteen houses which were recently sold by M. Hoffman Company to Meister Builders, Inc.

The same brokers also sold for A. Parodny 26 Virginia Place, private dwelling, to Charles A. Connell, for immediate occupancy.

West Thirtieth Street Sale.

William C. A. Witt of Esopus, N. Y., sold to an investing client of Meinhards Eckstein, Inc., for improvement, the five-story front and rear buildings at 238 West Thirtieth Street, on a plot 20.5 by 98.9. This is the first sale of this property since 1894. The parcel was held at $50,000.

Add to Steinway Site.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have sold for the Danforth estate 100 West Fifty-eighth Street to Steinway & Sons, who will start demolition this Fall of the houses on the plot they purchased some time ago and upon which they purpose to erect a thirteen-story store, office and showroom building. The new Steinway building will have a frontage of 62 feet on Fifty-seventh Street, 50 feet on Fifty-eighth Street and a depth of 200 feet.

Several years ago the Steinways made their original purchase, which consisted of 109-11-13 West Fifty-seventh Street and 113-114 West Fifty-eighth Street. About a year ago, in order to square out their plot on Fifty-eighth Street, they purchased through Douglas L. Elliman & Co. No. 116. The acquisition of 106 West Fifty-eighth Street, which is separated from their main plot by a 50-foot intervening house, is for the purpose of preserving their easterly light. With this purchase they are exceptionally well protected on all four sides.

THE HILL-TOWNS of AMERICA

Imagine all our American towns and cities as hills rising from a level plain—hills of endeavor.

The inhabitants living on the sides of these hills, their altitude depending on their worth-whileness in the community; the poor and shiftless and indolent clustering around the base and struggling a little way up the sides—the more able they are, the higher they get up the hillsides.

At the bottom are the people who never read a newspaper, or anything else.

As you go up the hill, you begin to reach newspaper readers, and as you go higher the people get better and read better newspapers, and read more intelligently.

And as you approach the top you reach the people who are the leaders in thought and action in that community—the heads of its businesses and the leaders of its professions. They read the newspapers, but they demand something more than newspapers. They demand The Digest.

You can go as high as you like after that, you will not get above The Digest.

So all the upper section of any community are newspaper readers. And the upper section of the newspaper readers are Digest readers.

On the upper reaches of these hill-towns are the men and women who have got somewhere, whose positions are so high, whose contacts are so many that they are multiple customers, buying goods or influencing buying in many capacities for their homes, for their offices and for their factories.*

The upper half of the hill-towns of America is composed of Digest readers. As they think, act, and buy, so goes the community.

*It is simply a matter of figures. We have the figures. Our survey of Digest readers shows that 73 per cent have reached positions of power, are either owners, officers or executives in their businesses. The Digest did not make them successful, but being successful they need The Digest. The Literary Digest, 354 Fourth Avenue, New York.
